Non-Toxic Chemicals Sought

Resumption Of Mosquito Spraying Asked By Village

by PAT GERLACH

Despite pending litigation, the Village of Schaumburg took emergency steps this week asking immediate, but temporary, resumption of Northwest Mosquito Abatement District spray control.

In the interim program, necessitated by recent and abundant rainfall, village sanitarian Robert Grossmann has asked the district to employ non-toxic spray materials.

Last year Schaumburg, along with Palatine, banned use of malathion and other chemicals considered to be toxic in the control program within the villages' municipal limits.

THE MOVE RESULTED in court action involving both villages; a continued hearing is scheduled July 27 in Cook County Circuit Court.

Wilbur Mitchell, district director, confirmed having met with Grossmann Wednesday and indicated the abatement district may begin spraying in Schaumburg as early as Monday.

He said Grossmann had agreed to the use of malathion as a spray substance since it is the only chemical used by the district.

In the discussion of the matter at Tuesday's village board meeting, Mayor Robert O. Atcher said the village has never prohibited any NMAD program but has forbidden only the use of the two chemicals considered environmentally harmful.

Schaumburg favors a drainage method rather than spray control and has advised NMAD accordingly, suggesting taxes could be better used in a program designed to eliminate mosquito breeding places, Atcher explained.

MITCHELL CONTENDS malathion is the least toxic substance used in control programs and says it is not overly harmful to birds, animals or humans.

He further explained that NMAD has used oil spray control and larvaciding in Schaumburg this year.

Village officials have indicated suspicions that NMAD has not come into the village since the ban was created.

Atcher also pointed out the ordinance preventing malathion gave NMAD authority to enter the village in an emergency.

He believes that it was the responsibility of NMAD to spray in Schaumburg during recent rainy conditions.

Atcher said Grossmann has the authority to contact NMAD in what he considers an emergency without express direction of the village board.

The sanitarian is also responsible for insuring cessation of the temporary program when conditions become less critical.

Regarding drainage control, Mitchell feels this method is presently impossible for several reasons.

IN ADDITION TO being financially out of the question, the problem becomes more difficult due to obstructions and faulty engineering.

In related action Tuesday, the village board amended the ordinance in question to permit larvaciding of catch basins and ground sewers provided work is done by a professional.

In response, Mitchell claimed this type of control is brought about with the same insecticides which are now banned in Schaumburg.

SCLC Plans Suburb Racism Study

The Suburban Division of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference (SCLC) plans to launch a study to determine the extent of racism in the Northwest suburbs.

Clyde Brooks, suburban SCLC chairman, made the announcement Tuesday night at a chapter meeting in Arlington Heights calling the study "an affirmative action program" to create a positive environment for residents of minority racial groups living in the suburbs.

The investigation is to include educational opportunities for minority students, industrial hiring practices and open housing provisions.

ALTHOUGH THE SCLC will investigate all area communities, Arlington Heights, Des Plaines, Elk Grove Village, Hoffman Estates and Schaumburg are among those singled out for an "in depth look."

The need for the study is apparent, according to the SCLC, because of the increasing numbers of minority persons living in the suburbs and the expectations of more moving here due to the expanding job market.

After the information is compiled, appropriate recommendations will be made to affect institutional change, the SCLC said. There was no specific course of action revealed.

Brooks told the group of 20 SCLC members that there is a definite shortage of low and moderate-income housing within the suburbs. "We want low-rise, low and moderate housing on scattered sites in every suburb," he said.

SUBURBAN POLICE departments which lack minority group representation also is an area of concern, Brooks said and the study will include local law enforcement agencies.

He said information will be gathered to find out if local police departments receive monies from the Illinois Law Enforcement Commission and whether the police are in compliance with equal opportunity requirements.

During the meeting a discussion was held regarding the progress of the SCLC in the suburbs. A representative from Hanover Park alleged that Hanover Park Human Relations Commission is "not moving forward with the agreement for improved minority relations."

The SCLC said it will continue to pursue a solution to reported racial incidents in that suburb.

The SCLC intervened in Hanover Park two months ago when a cross was burned in protest of a black child moving into a neighborhood there.

THE CROSS WAS burned on the front lawn of the prospective home of Prof. Willard Williamson of Harper College who has a year-old adopted black daughter.

The family later moved into the subdivision without further incident.

$52,000 Mental Health Grant OK'd

Elk Grove Village's Community Service has received a $52,000 grant from the state to start a mental health center.

Jordan Rosen, Community Service director, said a letter was received yesterday from Gov. Richard B. Ogilvie announcing that the grant was approved.

Details and stipulations of the grant were not given to Community Service. Rosen said the Community Service Board will hold a meeting once the details of the grant are known.

The grant would permit the establishment of a mental health center to serve Elk Grove and Schaumburg townships. These communities, along with Wheeling and Palatine townships, had been served by the Northwest Mental Health Clinic in Arlington Heights.

DR. EUGENE Trager, director of Northwest, had opposed the formation of the Community Service center, calling the move "premature."

But Dr. Trager said yesterday he was "happy for Jordan (Rosen)" that the grant was approved. He expects a gradual phasing out of his group's services in Elk Grove and Schaumburg townships as the Community Service center develops.

His group will still serve Wheeling and Palatine Townships.

Dr. Trager said that Northwest was given a $175,000 budget from the Illinois Department of Mental Health. This is an increase over last year's $130,000 budget, but was not as much as Northwest had requested. Dr. Trager said the clinic had asked for $195,000, but he said the lower sum was "adequate to do the job."

Community Service's application for the grant was submitted in January. Funds for the Department of Mental Health were among the last of the bills passed by the Illinois Legislature last month.

LAST DECEMBER, Rosen said the Community Service was applying for the grant "for the geographic concerns of our citizens and in terms of population growth we believe it would be difficult for one agency to handle all the four-township area."

WITH THE FERRIS wheel ready to turn this evening, last Shopping Center into the Hoffman Jaycees carnival, minute preparations today will transform the Golf Rose which opens to the public tonight through Sunday.

Lancer Homeowners To Hear Zoning Details

Plans for development of a T-1 (transitional) zoned parcel northwest of Melneke Community Center will be detailed Wednesday at a special general membership meeting of Lancer Park Homeowners Association.

Neal Hunter, of Lancer Corp., and representatives of architects involved in the project will exhibit charts and maps and may include slides detailing construction proposed at the site, according to Malik C. Parkash, association president.

South of Schaumburg Road, Lancer Park lies between Roselle and Plum Grove roads; the development now consists entirely of single-family homes.

"The large tract to be discussed at the special meeting is zoned T-1 and can affect the life of our beautiful community if not properly planned," Parkash said.

The village zoning ordinance was amended prior to the development of Woodfield Mall to T-1, the most comprehensive classification in Schaumburg, to allow for development of the regional shopping center.

Although four parcels of land remain in T-1 districts, issuance of that zoning classification ceased several years ago.

Late last year, village officials attempted abolition of the T-1 classification but later agreed to the establishment of covenants on the existing transitional areas which would prevent what they consider improper development.

Parkash stressed that a question and answer period will follow the Lancer Corp. presentation and urged all interested Schaumburg homeowners to attend the meeting.

It will begin at 8 p.m. at the Community center, 220 E. Weathersfield Way.

This Morning In Brief

Convention At A Glance

Sen. George McGovern tonight is expected to accept the Democratic party's nomination for the presidency, which was given to him last night.

As the National Democratic Convention draws to an end the battles fought Monday night over the credentials of key state delegations apparently told the tale of the convention as a whole.

Facing the assembled Democrats now is the lone query of who will be the party's standard bearer with McGovern; who will be the vice-presidential candidate.

Although speculation focused on as many as a half-dozen public figures for that key post, the one candidate who could please everyone remained aloof.

Kennedy Says No

Senator Edward Kennedy of Massachusetts remained unmoved to the appeal for his nomination to the vice-presidency and remained in his home state.

Although McGovern himself has made no public statement about possible choices for a running mate, he did say he would telephone Kennedy after officially receiving the nomination.

Sources said he will either ask Kennedy to join the ticket or ask his advice in choosing a candidate. Kennedy has repeatedly said he will not accept the second spot.

Governors Choose Mills

Governors who met with McGovern yesterday reportedly urged him to offer the position to Kennedy or Rep. Wilbur Mills, D-Ark., who had earlier announced his withdrawal from the presidential race.

Others reportedly being considered included Sen. Abraham Ribicoff of Connecticut, Sen. Thomas Eagleton of Missouri, Sen. Philip A. Hart of Michigan, Gov. Reubin Askew of Florida and Leonard Woodcock, president of the United Auto Workers.

Wallace Rejected

Tuesday night's mild-mannered and restrained discussions over the party's platform typified the tone of the convention. In spite of an appeal from crippled Democratic hopeful George Wallace, the convention routinely voted down the Wallace plank on the platform and turned instead to a moderate platform inspired by the McGovern forces—but not as dramatically revolutionary as some of McGovern's early campaign speeches.

For Wallace, the last hope of the candidate was still to hold out the possibility of entering the presidential race as a third party candidate, thus ensuring some unpredictable vote tallies in November.

Youth Stay Calm

Outside, the hundreds of spectators to the convention remained as calm as the deliberations inside the convention hall itself. Police reported only the mildest of disturbances, virtually no arrests and generally good deportment among the young people living in tents.

Security remained strict, however, particularly around Governor Wallace as he traveled through the city.

NW Hospital Opens Its New Psychiatric Unit

The first psychiatric unit ever at Northwest Community Hospital in Arlington Heights opened for patients last week under the direction of Dr. Geoffrey Levy.

The 38-bed unit is located in the west section of the hospital formerly occupied by medical-surgical patients. The staff includes about 20 persons, according to hospital officials.

Jack Ryan, hospital spokesman, said there definitely is a need for the psychiatric unit at Northwest Community Hospital, calling mental health "one of the largest health problems in the United States today." The unit already is nearly filled with patients, Ryan added.

The psychiatric section has a large living area, occupational and recreational area, kitchen and dining facilities, laundry and conference rooms. The patient rooms are for double occupancy and there is a security section with three single rooms.

Police Reveal Use Of 10 Weapons

Hanrahan Trial Begins Testimony

by ROGER CAPETTINI

Four Chicago policemen testified at the trial of State's Atty. Edward V. Hanrahan and his 13 co-defendants yesterday as the special prosecution team opened the trial by attempting to connect the raiding party with an arsenal of weapons.

Hanrahan, Richard Jalovec, one of his assistant state's attorneys, and 12 Chicago policemen are charged with conspiring to obstruct justice stemming from a pre-dawn raid on a Black Panther apartment Dec. 4, 1969. Panthers Fred Hampton and Mark Clark were killed during the raid.

The testimony offered by the four policemen during an all-day session in the hot, crowded, noisy courtroom provided little new information about the raid, but was used by the prosecution to establish the weapons were the same ones used during the raid. On a stand in front of Judge Philip Romiti's bench were a sub-machine gun, five shotguns, three revolvers and one carbine.

CHICAGO POLICE Lt. John C. Delaney, administrative assistant to the chief investigator of the state's attorney office at the time of the raid, said he issued the submachine gun and three shotguns to three of the defendants.

Delaney said Jalovec and Sgt. Daniel Groth of the state's attorneys police first asked for the weapons the day prior to the raid but Delaney refused to issue them. He said he did not give them the weapons because he was not certain the men in Sgt. Groth's unit were qualified to handle the weapons.

The lieutenant said later in the day that three policemen in a second unit at the office requested the weapons and he issued them, because he knew they were qualified.

Delaney identified the trio as defendants Joseph Gorman, Raymond Broderick, and William Corbett.

Delaney said along with the weapons he issued 110 rounds of .45 caliber ammunition for the machine gun to Gorman and 40 rounds of 12-gauge shotgun ammunition. He said the policemen told him they needed the weapons because they were going on a raid in search of illegal firearms.

Delaney said the next day 58 rounds of the machine gun ammunition was returned to him.

The lieutenant said the weapons were later sent to the Chicago police crime lab and to the Federal Bureau of Investigation in Washington, D. C. and both times were returned to him.

Earlier, the first witness called by special prosecutor Ellis Reid, Sgt. Mitchell Kretch, also assigned to the state's attorneys police, said he has had custody of the weapons since they were turned over to him by Delaney.

Of the 10 weapons, Kretch said, six of them were not the property of the state's attorneys office. He said he has memoranda indicating who owns the weapons, but under cross examination admitted he has no personal knowledge of that ownership.

The other two witnesses yesterday were patrolmen assigned to squadrol duty the day the raid took place at 2337 W. Monroe St.

Patrolman John Maxwell said he was sent to the address at 4:55 a.m. and arrived 10 minutes later. Maxwell said he was ordered to carry out an unidentified man on a stretcher and take the man to the Cook County Hospital.

Patrolman said the man was pronounced dead on arrival. He said he later learned the man was Fred Hampton. Patrolman Charles Strum, also on squadrol duty, said when he arrived at the Panther apartment he saw a man lying face down near the front door. He said he also saw a number of firearms and ammunition scattered about the room.

Strum said the man, who he later determined was Mark Clark, was also pronounced dead on arrival at the hospital.

The trial was recessed for the day shortly before 4 p.m. and is scheduled to resume today at 9:30 a.m. More than 150 witnesses are expected to be called before the trial is ended.

They're Married In A Pool

Area Pair Take The Plunge

by JOHN MAES

Jesse and Judy Tompkins will always have a soft spot in their hearts for the swimming pool at the Mount Prospect Holiday Inn. They were married in it yesterday.

Judy of 72 Beau Ct., Des Plaines, a nursing assistant at Holy Family Hospital in Des Plaines, exchanged nuptial vows with Tompkins, 700 W. Rand Rd., Arlington Heights, yesterday morning while standing in waist-deep water.

The ceremony was fast and simple with no organ music or long bridal procession. The swimsuit-clad maid of honor and best man strolled solemnly along the pool deck and stepped into the pool.

Escorted by Salvatore DiGiovanni, manager of the inn at 200 E. Rand Rd., the bride emerged in a white bikini with a long white lace coat over it.

THE REV. Maurice Wright, of the Logan Square Baptist Church in Chicago (who said he forgot his swimming trunks) performed the ceremony from the top step of the pool.

After vows were exchanged, the newlyweds took a nuptial swim to the other end of the pool where they were greeted with smiles and champagne by guests and inn employees who had flocked around the pool to witness the wedding. According to the new Mrs. Tompkins, the decision to be married in the pool came while discussing wedding plans with DiGiovanni, and it sounded like a good idea.

"This was just something they decided to do on the spur of the moment," said DiGiovanni. "I thought it was a great idea."

Rev. Wright said he had no objections when the couple asked him to perform the ceremony in the pool. He said he wasn't shocked at the couple's request — he once married a couple on roller skates.

Village Moves To Develop Airport

The initial move toward possible development of a municipally owned general aviation airport in Schaumburg was taken Tuesday by village trustees. They acted to approve the limits of work to be presented to three engineering firms vying for selection as consultants in a feasibility study.

Prepared by the village airport study committee, guidelines were presented for board approval by group chairman Denis Ledgerwood. Documents will be forwarded to prospective consultants immediately.

Firms involved — Ralph H. Burke Associates; Howard, Needles, Tammen and Bergendoff, and Arnold Thompson Co. (combining with Vickrey-Wines, Inc.) — are being asked to submit proposals on the project before Aug. 14.

A village-owned general aviation airport is being discussed in line with plans for a regional transportation center in Schaumburg proposed by Mayor Robert O. Atcher.

The work outline was reviewed and approved by Village Atty Jack M. Siegel with minor revisions under the site selection phase.

Trustee Peter Justen, chairman of the village health and safety committee, lauded the airport committee for particular care in establishing the environmental study portion of the scope of work.

The feasibility study is expected to be paid by two-thirds funding provided by a Federal Aviation Administration master planning grant; one sixth of its cost will be picked up by the Illinois Department of Aeronautics.

VILLAGE PORTIONS of the study will be funded by a revenue bond program involving special usage fees to be levied by the airport creating no taxpayer burden.

Selection of consultants is expected to take place at a special mid-August meeting of the airport committee and later ratification will be by the village board.

Nearly $60,000 was appropriated by the village for the study since all payouts will come through village offices even though recapture through federal and state funding is anticipated.

The guidelines emphasize that study procedures are not to be limited to the existing Schaumburg Airport which is now privately owned; consultants are also being asked to survey other sites either in or annexable to the village.

Mosquito Issue Bugs The Village

by PAT GERLACH

Bugged by a recent bumper crop of mosquitoes, people from Levitt's Sheffield Park development brought their discomfort to an equally distressed group of village officials Tuesday.

Itching to get at the subject, residents remained cool when it became apparent that the subject of mosquito control was on the village board meeting agenda this week.

Following trustees' discussion of temporarily allowing Northwest Mosquito Abatement District to reenter a control program in the village, Jack Halpin of Sheffield Park Homeowners Association spoke.

"It's a disaster," Halpin said in reference to four large areas of standing water that serve as giant mosquito breeding places in the development.

Two unidentified women from the Sheffield area also commented.

One explained that the village health department had advised her to appear before the board concerning an oil spreading program to reduce breeding in ponds and other water areas.

"Apparently, there is a lack of communication between the Northwest Mosquito Abatement District and the village because they (the district) told me Schaumburg allows no spraying," the second woman said.

MAYOR ROBERT O. ATCHER explained that last year the village banned NMAD from using malathion and another toxic chemical in its spray program but said a control program using other substances was not prohibited.

"Some say the village may be better off with the mosquitoes than with the stuff sprayed," observed Village Atty. Jack Siegel.

Siegel wrote the ordinance creating the malathion ban and currently represents Schaumburg in the resulting NMAD litigation.

Sponsoring a move to permit spraying in what has been termed an emergency situation, Trustee Herbert Aigner also addressed the subject.

Aigner sympathized with residents unable to use backyards and other outdoor areas this year due to the mosquito problem he, even as a trustee, shares with them.

"Maybe with the temporary program we are going to lose a few birds, but people moved to Schaumburg to enjoy the community and I think we are wrong in depriving them of this privilege," Aigner said, noting that when the ban was instituted it was hoped that nature would, through its own forces, provide controls.

"I SINCERELY HOPE that science will develop non-toxic control substances but we're really not benefiting anyone right now and Mother Nature has not treated us kindly this year," Aigner added.

"The reason we passed that ordinance was that we had mosquitoes with spraying and even if we were to rescind it, it does not insure that we still won't have them," Atcher told the group.

Meanwhile, spraying will begin again in Schaumburg, at least for a time.

But when this will happen is up to the schedule being used by NMAD, and perhaps, considering the pending litigation, there may not be any particular hurry.

Resident Seeks Cat Law With Teeth

"Pussy cat, pussy cat, where have you been?" will soon be a question asked by Schaumburg police if resident George Daugherty has his way.

Approaching the village board Tuesday, Daugherty proposed cat control legislation patterned after an Evanston ordinance which he claims has been enforced for several years.

Citing an existing Schaumburg ordinance restraining dogs from roaming through the village as "discriminatory" since other animals are not included, the resident presented documentation from officials of Brookfield Zoo and the state department of agriculture indicating cats have a high potential for rabies.

"I am angry that dogs are placed under control and cats are not when this information proves those animals a more frequent source of rabies," Daugherty said.

DAUGHERTY PRESENTED petitions in favor of his idea, signed by 84 animal owners, 88 residents who have neither dogs nor cats, six who own both pets and one family in possession of nine cats.

He proposes that rabies inoculation be required, that cats be appropriately tagged and not let roam at large through the village.

Daugherty also suggests that a special dart gun which renders a suspicious animal harmless for a period of time be purchased as protection for village police who act in the capacity of animal wardens.

Mayor Robert O. Atcher told Daugherty he personally would not object to such an ordinance but pointed out that the law was written by Atty. Jack M. Siegel who also acts as Schaumburg counsel.

Siegel said the Evanston ordinance was amended to conform to changes in Illinois legislation in 1969, but admitted difficulty in enforcement.

THE ATTORNEY noted that neither inoculation nor registration of cats is required in Evanston but impounding is mandatory in the event of reported cat bites.

Daugherty's proposal was turned over to the village health and safety committee, directed by Trustee Peter Justen, for further study.

Atcher also reported that monthly information provided by the Illinois Municipal League indicated a similar suggestion had been offered by Patricia Enger, also of Schaumburg.

The newsletter noted that Mrs. Enger made this suggestion following a recent first aid course offered at Schaumburg Park District's Meinecke Community Center.

District Board To Hear Reports

Guidance directors from all four Dist. 211 high schools will make reports to the district board of education at its meeting tonight.

The board will meet at 8 p.m. in the administration building, 1750 S. Roselle Rd., Palatine.

Also on the agenda is a report on the home construction project being planned for the fall. In the program, students from Conant High School will be able to build houses based on their own plans.

Car Wash Operations To Get Village Study

The merits of permitting single-stall car wash operations in Schaumburg is to be taken up for study by the village public works committee.

Although Schaumburg has an ordinance prohibiting chain-pull car wash facilities, except in M-1 (manufacturing) or as a special use in B-4 (business) districts, the committee has been asked to examine the concept of single-unit operations.

Noting that several of the single operations have recently been installed in gasoline service stations, Mayor Robert O. Atcher suggested this week that the investigation be undertaken to provide a ruling.

Roselle Bank May Get Third Village Account

Roselle State Bank is being considered as a third depository for Schaumburg village funds.

Presently, village capital and surplus funds are deposited in Schaumburg State and Woodfield banks but a third facility now is required since allowable deposit percentages, under Illinois law, soon will be exceeded by both local banks.

Through passage of a bank resolution this week, trustees authorized Mayor Robert O. Atcher to discuss possible interest percentage agreements with the Roselle bank.

Superintendent Has Year-Round Job

by JERRY THOMAS

Building a sea wall is just another job, like putting up a pencil sharpener or waxing about 300 floors, said Joe Viso, superintendent of buildings and grounds for Schaumburg Township School Dist. 54.

Keeping the district's 21 schools open, operating and clean is a year-round job for Viso and his maintenance and custodial crews.

Construction of a stone sea wall at the Hanover Highlands School is a little unusual, Viso admitted, but it does point out the varied duties of his job. At the Highlands School the sea wall work was requested by the principal when a creek undermined a walkway. Most other repair jobs are more ordinary.

"I've got to brag about the crack-jack maintenance crew I head," said Viso. "Every man on the crew is versatile and I believe we can handle any job that comes up."

Summer months are set aside for the heavy cleaning, repainting and small construction projects within the district.

At present men are roofing the Blackhawk School, installing supplementary heating in the mobiles and cleaning boilers and heating units. There is also the perpetual waxing, scrubbing and wall and floor washing chores that never end, said Viso.

Viso has been superintendent in Dist. 54 for the past three years. He worked with Philco Ford as a refrigeration engiwarehouse supervisor, are never seen by the public but their roles are important," he said.

"Big as this department is, about 75 people in the summer, we work well because we are a team," he added. "Each summer when I make up the program I think we are never going to make it, but we do," Viso said.

"MOST PEOPLE worry about heat in the summer but our department worries about heat in the wintertime. Without heat in our schools we are out of business," he said.

Dist. 54 schools have never closed for boiler trouble, said Viso. "Once when a feeder pipe burst and was discovered at 3 a.m. the men repaired it, opened up the school on time and then called to tell me about it," said Viso. "It takes more than a paycheck to get that kind of performance out of a worker," he said.

Viso attempts to visit each school at least once a week on inspection tour and travels about 40 to 50 miles within the district in a day just job checking.

He welcomes calls from area residents who might notice some work that should be done. "I just hope they remember it's a big district," he said.

He set up a preventive maintenance system that involves creating a card file on every piece of machinery in each school. Custodians in each building receive at least 10 such cards a week and must oil, service and check each piece of equipment and send the information back to Viso's offices.

"We know when something breaks down it's not because we neglected it," said Viso.

A PERPETUAL inventory system of all district purchases and supplies, including text books, is also Viso's responsibility.

"Most people think of the custodian when they think about school maintenance and he is an important guy. But there are a lot of other people who make up this department," said Viso.

'In Two Years, They'll Be The Establishment'

Youth In Miami — But Not Like '68

by BOB LAHEY

MIAMI BEACH — The steam has gone out of the youth protest movement that made a shambles of the 1968 Chicago Democratic National Convention.

Here in Miami Beach there are an estimated 3,000 protesters of one stripe or another. But they all are on different horses, riding off in all directions and they have been easily controlled by police.

Protest demonstrations have been spotty, ranging from an attempt by some 700 persons to crash the convention hall on Monday night to two young women of the Students for a Democratic Society (SDS) gaining entrance to a high-fashion show for Democratic women at a swank hotel to protest against poverty.

But the lack of unity and common purpose is reflected at Flamingo Park, where the protesters are camped. Police here have adopted a hands-off policy on the park, and marijuana smoking and skinny dipping continue almost without official notice.

The camp appears somewhat ludicrous in light of the heritage of these Johnny-come-lately members of the remnants of the historic civil rights movement of the 1960s.

ASK A BEARDED young man in ragged shorts and bare feet why the people are assembled in Flamingo Park, and he will likely tell you:

"Go up where the blacks are. They can tell you the story."

The striking phrase is, "where the blacks are." For Flamingo Park is no general commune where all are meeting for some common goal. It is a segregated camp, not on strictly racial lines, but segregated nonetheless.

The Vietnam Veterans Against the War have their own compound, as do the SDS, the Young Socialists, the Yippies, the Zippies and the other splinter groups.

All are polite and gentle to each other and freely beg from one another and the tourists. But all remain basically close to their own camps.

Members of the different sects converge on the trailer headquarters of the Hare Krishna camp for free meals of scrambled eggs and grits. But most mumble excuses when a shaved-head youth wrapped in white cotton asks for contributions.

The Jesus Children come for food too, assuring their Orientalist benefactors, "Jesus loves you."

Then they all go their separate ways.

The near absence of violence has been, justly, attributed partly to the low profile maintained by local police, who steadfastly resist confrontations.

THERE HAS been no glaring publicity on the few clashes that have occurred, but local press representatives say that has no bearing on police policy.

Each story, said a news executive of the Miami Herald, is simply judged on its merits.

He did acknowledge that Miami Herald executives had made an extensive study of Chicago press coverage of the 1968 convention and had discussed protest coverage with police authorities.

In any event, coverage of the demonstrations has been thorough but subdued, mostly appearing on inside pages of the Miami Herald, and hardly at all on television.

The central reason for the lack of violence, however, appears to be the diffusion of purpose among the demonstrators, many of whom appear to have no purpose at all.

A young girl with frazzled red hair bummed a cigarette from an observer in Flamingo Park and considered his questions. The only common thread among the groups, she said, was opposition to the Vietnam war.

"They're like the Establishment. They all think they have the solution to everything, and they aren't interested in other people's ideas."

Most of them are anonymous. Ask their names, and they may answer "Tom," or not at all.

WHERE ARE you from? "I came here from Alabama. I was in Tallahassee last week."

Why are you here? "Just waiting to see what happens."

Abbie Hoffman and Jerry Rubin are hard to find.

One man who appeared to be in his early 30's complained, "I saw Hoffman here earlier this week. The next time I saw him he was at a press conference wearing credentials for Popular Mechanics."

"That's what's wrong with our leadership."

Many of the Flamingo Park residents moved here from no farther away than Miami or Orlando.

Some of the leaders of the 1968 Chicago protests have found their way into the system.

Chicago attorney Newton Minow, former director of the Federal Communications Commission under President John F. Kennedy, watched young delegates from Chicago rejoicing Monday night over the ouster of Mayor Richard REMARKABLE IS THE way most observers of the Miami convention are describing the relaxed and casual attitude of police and demonstrators.

Choate Blasts Convention Treatment

MIAMI BEACH (UPI) — The Illinois delegation's flirtation with peace and quiet after stormy opening days ended yesterday when Chairman Clyde Choate exploded over the administration of the Democratic convention.

"The chairman of the convention has not done a fair job of running this operation," Choate said after warning the chair that he had better be treated more courteously in the future.

Choate had repeatedly tried to get recognition from the chair when some of his delegates decided to change their votes on an abortion issue. The issue was ended without the Illinois change.

Finally getting recognition in the middle of another issue, Choate demanded the Illinois roll be changed, adding, "We insist on being treated courteously at this convention and we are going to be treated courteously."

IN AN INTERVIEW later, Choate said he is used "to this kind of business in the Illinois Legislature. It's a simple matter of cooperation, courtesy and doing what is right," he said.

He said Lawrence O'Brien, chairman of the convention, "has not done a fair job of running the operation." The way the chair ignored the delegation was only one illustration, he said.

The Illinois delegation has been in a state of confusion all week, only partly because of the wrangle over seating a Chicago delegate.

Choate said the credentials provided for the delegates have been mixed up all week. "Yesterday we were short 12 credentials for the delegation. Today we were short seven or eight and we were short some 20 seats."

He said the convention added delegates with split votes to the 170-member total, but made no arrangements to give them seats on the floor. "If it's not done tomorrow they are going to hear from me just a wee bit stronger," he said.

COMPARED WITH past conventions he has attended, Choate said, this convention's operation has been "totally inadequate." Another gripe he had was caucus rooms consisting only of steel railings and curtains in which delegations are supposed to meet while noisy pushcarts are clattering by outside.

Choate also cleared up another mystery — the whereabouts of Chicago Mayor Richard J. Daley on Sunday and Monday. He confirmed what Sen. Adlai E. Stevenson III, and Ald. Ed Vrdolyak had said earlier, that Daley never came to Miami.

Choate said Daley spent the two days at both his Chicago home and his home in Michigan and spoke with Choate by telephone, once on Sunday afternoon when he was rumored to be in Miami and again Tuesday morning when Daley called to thank Choate for helping the Daley fight for convention seats.

EXCEPT FOR THE Choate outburst, the Illinois delegation appeared relaxed during the lengthy debating. The issues dividing it settled, the seating established and declarations of unity made, the delegation presented a sharp contrast to its appearance on Monday.

With no Chicago seating to wrangle over, the presidential question settled and the disorganized condition of the delegation smoothed out, the delegates spent the lengthy second-day session reading newspapers, chatting, yawning and looking generally bored with the platform debate.

Delegation activity and the convention proceedings themselves were in sharp contrast to the feverish movements, endless lobbying, long meetings and 20-hour days of the 59 Chicago delegates fighting to keep their seats against a bruising challenge by Mayor Richard J. Daley.

Having slept through much of the day after getting back to their hotel at 6 a.m. Tuesday, the Illinois delegation had at last gelled into one cohesive delegation.

UNTIL THEN the Illinois group had been like three separate delegations, one for Daley's group, one for those challenging him and one for the downstate delegates watching the Chicago proceedings and trying to work their way through the confused state setup.

The delegation's interest in the proceedings perked up when Sen. Adlai E. Stevenson III, D-Ill., spoke in defense of the gun control plank in the platform.

Stevenson urged his fellow delegates to approve the plank, arguing that it did not call for confiscation of handguns, that it would only aid in prevention of assassination attempts like that made on Alabama Gov. George Wallace who addressed the convention from a wheelchair on the same platform.

Democratic Convention's Platform At A Glance . . .

MIAMI BEACH (UPI) — Here is the Democratic National Convention platform at a glance:

Jobs, Income and Dignity: A full employment economy; tax reform directed at more equitable distribution of income and wealth; federal income assistance for welfare families.

Rights, Power and Social Justice: Free expression and privacy; child advocacy; national health insurance; ratification of the equal rights amendment; rights of poor people, servicemen, consumers, youth, veterans, American Indians.

Cities, communities, counties and the environment: Support of general revenue sharing with use of federal income tax; overhaul of federal housing policy; support for new towns.

Education: Support for goal of desegregation as a means to achieve equal access to quality education for all children. Busing is one of many tools for desegregating schools.

Crime, law and justice: Equally stringent law enforcement for rich and poor; drug addiction and alcoholism are health problems; abolishing capital punishment as an ineffective deterrent to crime.

Farming and rural life: Farm income must be improved; price ceilings on agricultural products will be resisted until farm prices reach 110 per cent of parity; support for family-sized farms.

Foreign policy: Immediate and complete withdrawal of all U.S. forces in Indochina; cessation of all military action in Southeast Asia and return of all prisoners held by North Vietnam and its allies; adequate military forces for deterrence but reject use of SALT agreement as excuse "for wasteful and dangerous acceleration of military spending"; unequivocal support of Israel's "right to exist within secure and defensible boundaries"; steps should be taken to establish regular diplomatic relations with China; relations with Cuba should be reexamined.

People and the government: Public business should be transacted publicly; freedom of information; total overhaul of financing elections; regulation of lobbyists; universal voter registration by postcard.

McGovern Seeks Old-Liners' Help

by STEVE GERSTEL
MIAMI BEACH (UPI) — A conciliatory George S. McGovern — assured of the Democratic presidential nomination tonight by his mastery of the "new politics" — appealed to the old masters today for their help in defeating President Nixon.

But his unity overtures collided with the diehard opposition of organized labor's candidate — Sen. Henry M. Jackson of Washington, who vowed to go down battling what he considered McGovern's politics of Democratic disaster.

McGovern had the votes to beat Jackson and George Wallace and four token opponents on tonight's first ballot — and everyone here knew it.

So he secluded himself in his penthouse and concentrated on re-establishing the old Democratic coalition with telephoned appeals to a smoldering George Meany, president of the AFL-CIO, and Chicago Mayor Richard J. Daley, miffed by his ouster by a vote of the convention.

IN ANOTHER move toward reassuring the old guard, McGovern asked party chairman Lawrence F. O'Brien to stay on the job, foregoing the candidate's privilege of installing his own loyalist in the party top command.

The old liners were hard to get. Louisiana Gov. Edwin Edwards left the convention, declaring it would be a waste of time for him to stay.

"McGovern can't win in Pennsylvania," grumbled delegate Hugh Carcella, president of a steelworkers local in Philadelphia. "He's a right-to-work son-of-a-bitch..."

Gov. Robert W. Scott of North Carolina said McGovern, "my last choice," could carry neither his state nor the nation.

Scott was one of five southern governors invited to breakfast today by McGovern in his seaside penthouse. None of the five are avowed McGovernites. The senator asked a liberal, Wisconsin Gov. Patrick J. Lucey, to join them.

Also invited were Govs. John C. West of South Carolina, Dale Bumpers of Arkansas, Jimmy Carter of Georgia and Reubin Askew of Florida — whose performance as keynoter McGovern praised.

All five Southern governors on the list have been mentioned by the McGovern camp as potential running-mates.

ON THAT question, McGovern kept his own counsel, but his staff said the senator would submit only one name to the convention after he consults with Edward M. Kennedy and other party leaders. Kennedy continued to scorn the vice presidential nomination.

Sen. Edmund Muskie helped McGovern's unity move with a warm endorsement Tuesday after pulling out of his own hopeless race, a victim of McGovern's mastery of the primary system.

Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey withdrew first, but significantly did not endorse McGovern despite his own inclination to rid the Democrats of their fratricidal tendencies.

"The temperature of a number of people is slightly high," a relaxed Humphrey told reporters in explaining why he was waiting. "I don't believe you ought to start talking to people about going to the dance or to the ball while they've got a fever."

HUMPHREY'S AND Muskie's withdrawal from the race left George C. Wallace and Jackson as McGovern's chief rivals but four other candidates are to be put in nomination tonight — Rep. Shirley Chisholm of New York; Rep. Wilbur D. Mills of Arkansas; former Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy of Minnesota, and former Gov. Terry Sanford of North Carolina.

The vice presidential nomination will be made Thursday at the convention's final scheduled session. Three declared vice presidential candidates — Sen. Mike Gravel of Alaska, an outspoken Vietnam dove; former Massachusetts Gov. Endicott Peabody, and Stanley Arnold, a New York accountant and business consultant — said they would fight it out with McGovern's choice, just on principle.

McGovern's olive branch did not extend to Wallace, whose dramatic 15-minute appearance before the convention from a wheelchair failed to sway the delegates from their convictions on the platform.

Some black delegates booed and held up defiant clenched fists as Wallace called compulsory busing "asinine." After he was carried and wheeled away, the delegates by a loud voice vote decided to retain the party platform's endorsement of busing as a useful tool toward a desirable end.

BUT THE McGovern view prevailed in convention votes that defeated platform plank proposals favoring legalized abortion, proclaiming the rights of homosexuals and calling for tax reform considerably more far-reaching than anything McGovern has backed.

In a platform debate stretching deep into this morning, a voice vote that was tough to measure defeated tax reform proposals offered by lame-duck Sen. Fred R. Harris of Oklahoma. He advocated the abolishment of all tax loopholes — including those popular ones that help homeowners, borrowers and the aged as well as those which benefit oil tycoons and Wall Street investors.

Florida's Askew To Be VP Choice?

MIAMI BEACH (UPI) — Florida Gov. Reubin Askew, keynoting the Democratic National Convention, brought delegates shouting to their feet Tuesday night when he said that President Nixon holds the line on welfare payments while waging a $500-million-a-month war.

Askew, mentioned as possible running mate for Sen. George S. McGovern, was frequently applauded during his talk, but his comments concerning welfare and the war struck the most responsive chord. "We're told there's no money available to pay for those higher Social Security benefits, but we continue to spend $500-million a month on a war that should have ended long ago."

The cavernous hall erupted in cheers and some delegates came bounding to their feet chanting, "Stop the war, Stop the war."

The young Florida governor also urged his party to turn its back on a system that taxes the working man's fare of salami and cheese, but not the business lunch of "steak and martinis."

GOV. PATRICK LUCEY of Wisconsin, who was on the podium while Askew spoke, told UPI Askew "might very well be" McGovern's choice for a running mate.

"I'd like to see him get it. He's good," said Rep. Sam Gibbons of Florida, who also was on the podium.

McGovern, Daley Truce Is Predicted

Sen. George McGovern's aides said Wednesday, he will attempt a truce with Mayor Richard J. Daley as soon as he formally wins the Democratic presidential nomination.

Frank Mankiewicz, a top McGovern aide, said in Miami Beach that the South Dakota senator will call Daley "within a day or two" to ask for help in unifying the party in Illinois.

What reception the mayor will give McGovern is doubtful since the senator's backers helped oust Daley and 58 other Chicago delegates from the Democratic convention.

Daley, who has been elusive since the convention opened Monday, has not been in Miami Beach, according to Illinois delegation leader Clyde Chaste. Chaste said the mayor stayed in Chicago and at his Michigan summer home while his forces were defeated at the convention.

Daley's ousted Chicago delegates left the convention after they lost their seats Monday night to the challenge delegation led by Chicago Alderman William Singer.

But there were pleas for peace within the Illinois Democratic party from some party regulars and from the independent liberals who have long been at odds with Daley and are tasting their first major victory over him.

State Rep. Bruce Douglas, sometimes ridiculed by Daley backers in the Illinois House, invited regulars and independents to attend a McGovern victory celebration last night in Chicago.

"We must unite as Democrats behind the McGovern banner," he said.

Illinois School Supt. Michael Bakalis, a delegate and part of the Daley organization's younger set, said he will ask the mayor to take part in public hearings around the state to get ideas on party reform. Bakalis said he would discuss his idea with Sen. Adlai Stevenson, Lt. Gov. Paul Simon and Daley's sons.

Kennedy's Position Remains Unchanged

HYANNISPORT, Mass. (UPI) — Sen. Edward M. Kennedy said his position was "unchanged" and he would not accept the Democratic vice presidential nomination if offered.

Asked by newsmen what he would do if Sen. George S. McGovern, the expected presidential nominee, telephoned to offer him the second spot on the ticket, Kennedy said, "I think we've been answering that question all week. My position is unchanged."

The Massachusetts Democrat talked to newsmen as he boarded his 54-foot sailboat Patrician.

The Doctor Says

by Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

Dear Dr. Lamb — I have noticed that my body holds fluid. The doctor prescribed a water pill for me to use before my periods and this helped tremendously. But now I've started retaining fluid all the time, rather than just before my period. It causes me to have awful headaches and sluggishness. I get very irritable and short-tempered. I told my doctor this and he told me I could take the water pills every other day and they wouldn't hurt me. I would like to know what causes this condition and what could be done to correct it. I am on thyroid which I have to take for the rest of my life anyway and I'd hate to take these two since I'm only 35 years old.

Dear Reader — There are many reasons for retaining fluid. The premenstrual retention of fluid is pretty well known and, of course, is related to the hormones. What really happens is the body retains salts and the more salt the body retains the more water one accumulates. Other causes for retaining fluid include such things as heart disease, kidney disease and liver disease. I rather doubt you have any of these unless you have some symptoms which you didn't mention.

Why don't you try cutting down on the amount of salt you use? The water pills actually work by causing the kidneys to eliminate salt and thereby eliminate the excess water. Remember salt and water go together. The problem with water pills is they sometimes flush out other minerals. An ideal way to cut down on your salt is to stop using salt in cooking and don't add any free salt. There will still be quite a bit of salt in your regular diet, since there is sodium, or salt, naturally in meat, milk and, to a lesser extent, in vegetables. Even so this will make a tremendous difference in your salt intake. It's worth a try and it may decrease your need to take the water pills and improve your over-all feeling.

Dear Doctor — I read an article by a doctor warning people of the radium used on watch dials. He claimed the human body absorbed enough through these watches that the dials were harmful. Our son is contemplating buying a watch to be worn daily and also in scuba diving. There is a lot of luminous material on the watch. Is it safe to use this type of watch?

Dear Reader — Of course, it is or the Federal Trade Commission would have had it withdrawn from the market. Some luminous dials are produced by using small amounts of radium. This could be harmful to employees making the dials and continuously exposed but proper precautions are taken. There were some reports years ago of workers in watch factories who developed difficulties in using radium materials to make luminous dials. I don't know of a single case of anyone who has ever had radiation sickness from wearing a watch with a luminous dial.

The Lighter Side

Democratic Convention Resembles Used Car Lot

by DICK WEST

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A recent survey of 20 major occupations conducted by a group of psychologists showed that politicians ranked next to last in public trust, barely nosing out used car salesmen.

Maybe that explains what was happening in Miami Beach this week.

Many of the delegates to the Democratic National Convention obviously were shopping around for a presidential candidate the same way they might buy a second hand automobile. To wit:

"Hello there. 'Honest Sid' Lemon-pusher at your service. May I be of assistance?"

"Why, yes. I was looking around for a good, late model presidential candidate to run against Nixon this fall. Do you have any in stock?"

"DO I EVER! Sweetheart, you have come to the right place. Take a look at this McGovern Reformer. Just arrived on the lot this morning. I haven't shown it to anyone else because I wanted to save it for someone who really appreciates quality."

"It looks like a frontrunner all right, but there's an awful lot of mileage on it. It must have been running a long time."

"I give you my word of honor — this baby has only been driven in a couple of easy primaries. It's hardly broken in good."

"Well, I've heard it tends to swerve to the left and has labor trouble. Do you have anything else?"

"My friend, you are in luck. This is your chance to pick up a 1972 Humphrey with a supercharged intonator and a synchroized vocalizer with refillable vocabulary."

"Isn't that the one that broke down four years ago?"

"The 1968 Humphrey was recalled for removal of an LBJ escalator that was causing a campaign drag. But now it's as good as new."

"What's that one over there? It looks something like a Lincoln."

"THAT'S A Muskie Moderate. It makes a great family candidate and now comes equipped with an emotional stabilizer that has automatic weeping inhibitors."

"Do you still have that Wallace Hardhat you were trying to sell four years ago?"

"You mean the one with the white backlash? It's no longer available. But we do have a Wallace Populist with built-in anti-busing controls. And that isn't all."

"We also can offer you a Jackson Hawk with a military-industrial complex, a Chisholm Crusader that runs on black power and a wide assortment of other models all in top condition."

"Fine. I'll make up my mind as soon as I kick the tires."

LIFE EVERLASTING!

This is the greatest good news the nonChristian world has ever had. The Christian God of unselfish love has guaranteed everlasting life, not alone to Christians but to every one else living or dead (John 5:28-29; 1 Tim. 2:3-6; 4:40; 1 John 2:2; Mat. 25:31-40; Rom. 2:10)

In God's new world to come, he is giving the nonChristians a second chance to take advantage of his generous offer. All of us who have accepted Jesus Christ in this world will enjoy special privileges and the Israelites in deed will benefit from their unique relationship with God. (1 Chron 16:16-18; Acts 3:21)

If you are interested in the following, write for "Free Bible Facts." M. W. Hart, Box 53, Glen Ridge, N.J. 07028. The four kinds of Christians from the wolves in sheep's clothing to the Saints: "life immortal" (Rom 2:6-7; 1 Cor 15:53) "partakers of divine nature" (2 Peter 1:3-13); the "second death" (Rom 2:8-9; Rev. 2:11); the miraculous or supernatural nature of Christianity; "baptism of the Holy Spirit" (Mat. 3:11; Acts 19:1-7); "the dead know not anything" (Eccl 9:5-6; Job 14 20-21; Psa 6 5; Dan 12:2). # Win At Bridge

by Oswald and James Jacoby

Old man Z looked over the dummy carefully. He had to lose a club and he had to take care of the queen of trumps.

Z remarked, "This looks like a hand I played in Wilbur Whitehead's column back in 1925. In any case, there is no reason not to provide for a possible trump coup."

Then he called for dummy's ace of hearts and a lead of a low heart at trick two.

He ruffed and led a trump to dummy's ace. West showed out.

Z said, "Just as Whitehead set the

The top diamonds and the ace-king of clubs were cashed next. East had to follow all those leads and Z was home — lead another heart from dummy and ruff it. It made no difference whether East ruffed first or discarded his last diamond.

Now Z was left with the king-jack of trumps and a low club. He led the low club. West tried to take the trick, but East had to ruff and lead a trump into Z's tenace.

The card taken at trick two had paid off and Z had scored another slam.

A 1914 Advance Thrasher, with its whistle blowing, still runs along the Wisconsin countryside.

Moehrerke reverts the men who hand tooled forms for cast iron wheels.

This Ol' Farmer Travels In Style

Herb Moehrerke laughs a lot.

And, he got a real kick when my gang and I rolled up in our modern car on the country back road where he was maneuvering his old steam operated thrasher.

The car had overheated while driving on an interstate highway in southern Wisconsin. There was no doubt that my vehicle will never live as long as Herb's has.

"It was made about the same time I was born," said Herb, about the thrasher. Its serial number has been traced to 1914 and the Advance Thrasher Co., a firm that manufactured farm equipment in northern Michigan.

HERB, WITH HIS overalled body and sun weathered face, had come with the thrasher from Sheboygan, his home, to participate in a small town Wisconsin parade.

Reviewing the machine's history, Herb said it was first used at a sawmill in Stevens Point and later bought by "old Joe Plano" who drove it the 70 or 80 miles to Plainfield where old Joe lived.

Driving the thrasher such a long distance with its cast iron wheel was a pretty good trick, the way Herb tells the story.

Joe used it up till 1952 when he became too old to handle the big machine. His daughter used to go out every morning and fire up the boiler.

"They used wood for fuel because coal was too expensive," said Herb, adding that past the early '50s Joe just let the old thrasher stand.

Herb seemed to be a natural for taking possession of the machine. As he explained how the boiler system gives power, he added, "I'm two thirds boiler maker."

AND HE'S A welder too, practicing the trade professionally; so he can also appreciate the other parts of his prize possession.

The cast iron wheels were made out of hand formed molds that are particular in design, he said, adding, "They can't be replaced. The wheels were cast with the spokes right in them," said Herb, "The pattern makers were mathematicians too. They knew enough about pressure points to hand tool the molds."

Gears on the machine were awesome in size and the thrasher runs very quietly. Herb keeps those gears running smooth with a high grade grease he gets from the Sheboygan County Highway Department.

"Go over there with a coffee can and they're real understanding," said Herb, and he laughed and laughed some more.

Jewel Open To Midnight

Several Jewel Food Stores in the Northwest suburbs began offering expanded shopping hours this week.

Jewel followed the lead set a few weeks ago by another major food chain, Dominick's Finer Foods, which announced it would keep selected stores open until midnight.

Jewel stores which will now maintain 3 a.m. to midnight hours Monday through Saturdays include: 80 W. Golf Rd., Arlington Heights; 819 S. Elmhurst Rd., Des Plaines; 948 Grove Mall, Elk Grove Village; 955 Randhurst Shopping Center, Mount Prospect; 8730 E. Dempster St., Niles; 45 S. Plum Grove Rd., Palatine; 91 Shopping Center Ln., Schaumburg; and 217 Irving Park Rd., Streamwood.

Limited shopping hours will be available on Sundays.

A spokesman for Jewel Food Stores said the expanded hours are designed to provide customers with greater flexibility for shopping and to reduce crowding at peak shopping hours.

All shops within the stores will be open, except fresh meat departments which will continue to be closed at 6 p.m.

Fireworks: Use With Care

The death of one man and the number of injuries to several other men and children, combined with a number of near misses during the recent holiday weekend, are further indications of the need for stricter controls in the use of fireworks.

In what was termed a "freak accident" at a pyrotechnic display in Wauconda July 4, a 24-year-old member of a display crew was killed when a rocket blew up inside the firing tube.

Three other persons, including an off-duty policeman and a nine-year-old boy, were seriously injured. Five other persons received less serious injuries.

The Wauconda accident was the most serious, but was not the only incident which marred the Independence Day festivities. A misfire at a display in Brookfield set off the entire store of fireworks the same evening, injuring one man and apparently causing the heart attack of a spectator.

During a fireworks demonstration at Lions Park in Elk Grove Village, a man whose property adjoins the site, apparently disgruntled by the display, reportedly fired rockets at the fireworks crew. Village Fire Chief Allen Hulet said it was "sheer luck" someone was not killed or injured.

The fireworks display in Palatine, sponsored by that village's Jaycees, reportedly was ended prematurely because of possible danger to spectators.

All of these incidents occurred at organized displays, supposedly closely supervised and controlled.

We submit the current supervision and control is not sufficient.

The problem of control is a difficult one. Fireworks appear to be dangerous in and of themselves. Locally, only in the case of the unhappy neighbor can the blame be attributed to the person who ignited the charge. In all other cases the accidents were the results of faulty devices or misfires. At the Wauconda accident, for example, what was described as a "six-break, heavy-duty salute shell" exploded in the firing tube instead of being launched into the air.

We are reluctant to suggest controlled fireworks displays be outlawed in the state. That would serve only to detract from the celebration of what is this country's proudest moment in history.

However, such cause for celebration cannot be allowed to endanger the lives of citizens, policemen, firemen or even the crews which handle the devices.

Fireworks, especially those used for commercial displays, must be recognized as the highly explosive and dangerous charges they are.

Village and city officials who issue permits for such extravaganzas must shoulder the responsibility to make certain controls on the use of the devices are strong enough to guarantee future celebrations do not end in tragedy.

Dist. 57: Board Member Scolded

In response to Mr. Foster's attack on Mr. Ronchetto, it leaves me somewhat in doubt as to the board's credibility. It seems strange after much discussion by the people and the board members of Dist. 57 during the period of financial crisis, the board assured everyone it would do its utmost to cut costs. Yet all the administrators were given raises, the plans for more construction is on its way, the spending is almost like playing with monopoly money. It goes on and on.

Now we have one of these same board members who says very little at meeting to account for his credibility, is boldly attacking a very fine upstanding citizen of this community.

My first encounter with Mr. Foster was at a meeting where there were 350 or more citizens out to discuss the referendum. Mr. Foster was mumbling and could not be heard in the back of the room. A gentleman said, "Could you please speak louder so we can hear you in the back?" With that, Mr. Foster picked up the microphone and very ungentlemanly-like snorted into the microphone and put it back on the table and continued to mumble.

Another time was when the board members were asked to give their views on what they would like to see set up as guide lines for the coming year. Mr. Foster was attending negotiations that evening, so his excuse when his turn came to give his views were "I am not ready and you know why." But it seems strange other board members were ready. When Mr. Novy first took office he asked that they be thinking about the guidelines for the coming year. So, Mr. Foster had ample time to prepare. However, this seems to be the steady diet of Mr. Foster, attack the other guy first when the crowds will not see his own inadequacy and his lack of doing his home work.

This is the same man then who has been elected by the people responsible to the same people as he was elected to represent them on the school board. This same man has the unmitigated gall to attack Mr. Ronchetto who is not a board member but a very responsible citizen who took the time to prepare a budget, answer people's questions and give them a copy of same. Mr. Foster is the same man who snorts into microphones when asked by people who voted for him to speak louder please.

I will put my vote of confidence in a man like Ronchetto any day.

Mrs. D. J. Griffith

Local Housing Opponents Needed

Mayor Behrel's four recommended laymen for the Housing Commission are a very disappointing development to those who were hopeful that at least two of the four citizen members would represent majority thinking, which is opposition to low-income housing. Where is the mayor's sense of justice in recommending two persons who have publicly expressed opinions in favor of low-income housing (Reverend Halberg and Mrs. Lapides), while failing to recommend an equal number of persons who have declared against the issue?

Such a commission will, if elected by the city council, predictably recommend some form of government subsidized low-income housing in their final report, rest assured on that point. This same tactic was used successfully in Arlington Heights to establish low-income housing, over strong opposition of local citizens. Now it is being attempted here!

Citizens of Des Plaines, your aldermen will vote by secret ballot on this issue, Monday, July 17. Phone or write them NOW, telling them you demand equal representation on that Housing Commission, via appointment of at least two members who share your views; those who spoke AGAINST low-income housing last November 11, 1971, at Cumberland School Auditorium. Your wishes then were understood very clearly by the city council, who rejected all five demands of the CMCC Organization. Remind them again that you do not want to forfeit your battlefield victory at the conference table.

Des Plaines residents, your most direct voice in local government are your aldermen. Contact them now, so their vote July 17 to elect the housing commissioners will reflect your choice.

Remember the sellout in Arlington Heights!

An Honest 'Cause'

Common Cause, the "people's lobby," led all other lobbies in terms of spending, according to financial reports published in the Congressional Record covering the last three months of 1971.

As required by law, Common Cause, which is supported by donations from individuals around the country, reported spending slightly over $123,000 in the period in its efforts to influence legislation.

Other big spenders included the Veterans of World War I, of the U.S.A. — $96,590; The American Postal Workers Union — $73,726; and the American Farm Bureau Federation — $41,385.

It may be that Common Cause is simply more honest than some other organizations, which reported only minimal expenditures or none at all. One of its goals, in fact, is reform of the much-criticized, loophole-ridden laws governing lobbying activities.

But if money talks, the voice of the little people, which Common Cause claims to represent, is coming through loud and clear.

Timely Quotes

We see several progressive elements working among the Democrats, and we will do everything possible to create a peaceful atmosphere where they can work unhindered.

—Jeff Nightbyrd, spokesman for the Yuppies at Miami Beach.

Their (Democratic presidential candidates) broadly publicized notion that we can simply pack up and pull out (of Vietnam) with a claim that we have done "all that could be expected" harkens back to the unusual ethical proposition advanced by Pilate, who thought he could cleanse his conscience by washing his hands.

—Noel Koch, White House staff assistant and speech writer.

Nepotism and corruption in Vietnam will never be eliminated, but today I would guess only about one rural official in 10 is corrupt. When we were starting here, about 90 per cent were corrupt.

—American psychological warfare expert, on the success of "pacification" in Vietnam.

I do not believe it right for one group to impose its vision of morality on an entire society. Neither is it just or practical for the state to attempt to dictate the innermost personal beliefs and conduct of its citizens.

—New York Gov. Nelson Rockefeller, vetoing a bill that would have repealed the state's permissive abortion law.

Arlington 'Favored,' She Charges

I am writing this letter to cancel my subscription to the Arlington Heights Herald. I am doing this because I'm sick and tired of your obvious favoritism for Arlington High School. "Favoritism?" you say, or don't you call it favoritism that you just happen to put five — count 'em, five — pictures and two articles on their musical in the paper. Then Hersey's musical, far superior I might add, received one small skinny picture and a caption. I also didn't happen to catch Hersey's yearbook editors announced, along with choral concerts, band concerts, National Honor Society members and other school functions. I did not notice this laxity on the part of Arlington High School, whose homecoming received several pages while Hersey was awarded with one picture.

Cancel my subscription as of now. Need I say more...

St. Alexius Praised

I want to take this time to recognize the fine service of St. Alexius Hospital, Elk Grove Village.

A month ago I spent two weeks in the hospital and received nothing but the finest care. I feel very fortunate that within minutes my family and residents of this community have access to this necessary facility.

Organic Gardening Backed

Robert Lambie spreads a little dehydrated cow stuff on the ground and calls it an organic garden. Clap, clap. After such an act, what does one do for an encore?

"Organically-grown food is food grown without pesticides; grown without artificial fertilizers; grown in soil whose humus content is increased by the additions of organic matter; grown in soil whose mineral content is increased with applications of natural mineral fertilizers; has not been treated with preservatives, hormones, antibiotics, etc." Lambie's garden goodies obviously aren't organic. That he got much produce at all is surprising considering he took no measures at pest control, definitely not organic gardening.

What the whole movement is about is that man used to grow food without twentieth century chemical fertilizers, and pesticides and he still can. The food is, by actual assay, more nutritious than chemically grown food, a fact you'll hardly see advertised by Scott Chemical and the cartels: there's no money in it. Their vast advertising makes us forget the first grade geography pictures of the lush scenery of a million years ago (remember the dinosaur pictures?) with the distinct lack of suburbanites spreading fertilizers around. The scenery recycled itself and fertilized the next bunch, all very naturally.

Today we have a choice of using a thousand different chemicals and polluting the world even further, or digging in crop residues (PUT IT BACK) for starters and using any of a legion of non-chemical, non-polluting fertilizers and gardening techniques. For the organic crowd it's Hobson's choice, no choice at all.

Business Today

by TEIJI SHIMIZU

TOKYO (UPI) — The United States will have a first-hand chance later this month to learn whether Japan's new premier, Kakuei Tanaka, really wants to help America improve its trade balance.

The occasion will be official U.S.-Japan talks on trade scheduled for July 25 in Hakone mountain resort west of Tokyo. William Eberle, the U.S. presidential envoy, already has sent Japan a list of items America wants Japan to buy to close the gap in the two-way trade.

Tanaka, who formally became premier on July 6, indicated he would help but refrained from saying just how far he was willing to go. The United States had a deficit of $3.2 billion last year and is expected to register another $3.6 to $4 billion deficit this year if the present situation continues.

As Minister of International Trade and Industry in the cabinet of his predecessor, Eisaku Sato, Tanaka said Japan should spend at least $8 billion, half of its foreign exchange reserves, in buying raw materials and investment abroad. If he acts on what he advocated, his administration undoubtedly will encourage imports from America.

GOVERNMENT SOURCES say Japan will attend the trade talks with tentative plans calling for the purchase of uranium, livestock feed and aircraft worth about $1 billion. This would be designed to ease growing pressure on Japan to open its doors to more American-made goods.

"If the trade deficit persists," said an American economist, "the danger of 'protectionism' becomes greater and greater."

Being a pro-American politician, Tanaka is aware of the importance of keeping Japan closely aligned with the United States. Relations between the two countries, he said recently, are "like air and water. Without them we will all die." Tanaka says U.S.-Japan friendship takes priority over all other issues, including the improvement of relations with China.

However, despite such statements the new 54-year-old premier has proved himself to be a tough negotiator. Japan budgeted very little until the United States in effect devalued the dollar last year which was followed by a 16.88 evaluation of the yen. The Smithsonian agreement was, from the Japanese standpoint, designed to make Japanese products less attractive on the U.S. market and foreign goods more attractive in Japan.

DESPITE THIS, Japan sold $2.1 billion worth of goods in America and bought only $1.2 billion in American goods in the first three months of 1972, according to U.S. government statistics. Japanese imports consisted chiefly of wheat, coal, soybeans and jet airliners. Exports of automobiles and color television sets were heavy.

The Nixon administration obviously wants Japan to purchase products such as chemicals, machinery and transportation equipment. Japanese industrialists would prefer to buy technical know-how to produce goods of their own.

Tanaka is caught in the middle, but the squeeze is not too great. Japanese manufacturers realize that some adjustments are needed.

"We relied too much on the American market," said Junji Ito, president of Kanebo, one of Japan's top five textile producing companies. "From now on, Japan has to reduce its exports to the United States and diversify its foreign markets."

Chicago Area Execs Get 3.7% Boost

Chicago area executives, from the chief executive officer through 41 other top and middle management positions, received an annual increase in total compensation (base salary plus cash bonuses) of 3.7 per cent in the 1970-72 period. The 2,387 surveyed executives fell somewhat short of the 5.5 per cent federal wage guidelines for pay increases.

This was one of the findings in the sixth biennial management compensation study conducted by Manplan Consultants of Chicago in cooperation with the Midwest Industrial Management Association.

Direct comparisons were made between 63 companies that participated in the current study and the 1968-1970 survey.

Two-year pay increases and decreases fluctuated from a high of 17.6 per cent average increase in total compensation for managers of manufacturing engineering to a low of an 11.6 per cent decrease for managers of market research.

One of the hardest hit positions was that of chief executive officer; his base salary rose only 6.1 per cent in two years (four out of 10 got no pay increase at all), and total compensation including cash bonuses actually dropped 3.1 per cent for the '70-72 period compared to the '68-'70 span.

George S. Swope, partner of Manplan Consultants, said, "The chief executive officer's rewards are reflected in what the economy does and what the corporation does. Both have done poorly in the last two years. As a result, 55 per cent of these top executives had their cash bonuses cut."

In comparing identical companies, Manplan Consultants found that their sales volume rose only 11.7 per cent in the '70-72 period compared to 18.1 per cent and 19.5 per cent in the two previous biennial studies.

HIRING WAS AT a six-year low, probably as one measure to keep a lid on operating costs. The number of employees among the comparable firms dropped 5.2 per cent in the latest study while increases of 15.1 per cent and 7.6 per cent were found in the '68-'70 and '66-'68 studies, respectively.

Another reflection of tight operating controls is seen in financial and accounting positions, which fared much better than the average. Over eight out of ten such managers got base pay increases, which averaged about 16 per cent (for such posts as top financial executive, treasurer, controller and manager of general accounting). For example, all but a few managers of cost accounting got pay increases, and nearly nine out of 10 got cash bonuses in addition.

For the 90 companies studied, incentive cash payments are a way of management life. Nearly nine out of 10 companies offer bonuses to top and middle management on a selective basis, incentives that are in addition to deferred compensation benefits such as profit-sharing, pensions, or stock options. Most companies have established formal bonus systems based on specific corporate profit factors.

Big increases for hourly workers were not necessarily good news for top and middle managers. Ninety per cent of the interviewed firms do not pass along hourly employee general increases to management.

Manufacturing companies in the study range in sales from over $1 million to over $500 million and are located from Rockford, Ill. to Gary, Ind.

Lower Flood Insurance Rates Now Available

New, reduced flood insurance rates for residents and businessmen are now in effect in 13 areas currently eligible for flood insurance protection in Illinois, the National Flood Insurers Association (NFIA) said. Arlington Heights and Palatine are among the eligible areas.

Farmland Values Headed Up, Says Fed

Farmland values in the Midwest are headed up again, says the Federal Reserve Bank of Chicago in its monthly review "Business Conditions."

After averaging annual increases of 6 per cent and more in the mid-sixties, the value of "good" farmland in the Seventh Federal Reserve District declined 1 per cent between mid-1969 and mid-1970 — the first year-to-year decline in nine years. Although values began to strengthen by late 1970, recovery has been slow, says the bank.

Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, and Michigan may witness farmland values rise at an annual rate of 4 per cent or more, and values suggests a slowing in the rates of increase 8 per cent or more in 1972. The longer-term outlook for farmland values suggests a slowing in the rates of increase experienced during the past 20 years, especially for land with strictly agricultural uses.

The NFIA said rates have been reduced almost 40 per cent to encourage wider purchase of flood insurance by people living in flood-prone communities.

A spokesman said the massive floods that hit Eastern seaboard states, South Dakota, Arizona, California and other areas were doubly tragic in that many property owners had failed to take advantage of available flood insurance. Damage from flooding is not covered in most standard property insurance policies.

Flood insurance coverage, available in amounts of up to $17,500 for one-family homes, $30,000 for two-to-four family homes and small business buildings, and $5,000 for contents, is being sold under the emergency provisions of a program established by the National Flood Insurance Act of 1968.

Flood insurance rates for household and business contents also have been substantially reduced, according to the NFIA. For example, rates for the maximum available amount of such coverage ($5,000) have been cut from $25 to $18, if purchased in conjunction with building coverage. Coverage for contents also is available separately at reduced rates.

Collecting Coins

One of the rarest of U.S. gold pieces is the 1808 Liberty Cap-Quarter Eagle ($2.50). It is the Type III of the Quarter Eagle series, weighing 67.5 grains and measuring 3/16 of an inch in diameter, with a standard fineness of .9167 parts gold to .0833 parts copper. The edge is reeded.

There were only 2,710 of these coins struck in 1808 before the Mint depreciated the size to 3/8 inch while maintaining original composition and weight.

R. S. Yeoman, in his 1972, 25th edition of "A Guide Book of United States Coins," estimates a specimen in Fine condition is worth roughly $2,000; in Very Fine condition, $4,200; in Extremely Fine, $5,250, and uncirculated at $7,000.

Among Type collectors and investors in the United States there is a ready market in all of the above four conditions. In any likelihood, any specimen submitted to auction anytime within the next six to eight months will bring more than the Red Book price.

COUNTERFEIT

GOLD QUARTER EAGLES

Almost perfect copies of the 1808 Type III Gold Quarter dollar are counterfeited abroad and brought into the United States via returning servicemen and tourists not subject to body-search.

Since uncirculated coins are more easily detected than those that have seen a little wear, fakes are rarely found in uncirculated condition. This permits the "importer" to carry the coin in his pocket change.

They may even be rubbed with mercury to give the appearance of a nickel or silver piece until such a time as the carrier can remove the coating.

Some counterfeiters have been sprayed with a copper-tone or silver aerosol coating to make it harder to detect on coin bracelets and watch chains.

A fake coin being brought into this country in any of the methods suggested above is never "holed" and fitted with a link joining it to a chain. The piece is invariably held by a "coin mount" which in turn is linked to a bracelet or key chain. A holed coin, while it can be repaired, is of little value to collectors.

Specimens of this counterfeit have been seen are products of the lost wax process and readily identifiable by most professional collectors or dealers. But the potential customer is hardly to be an expert in the field of bogus currency, this would be asking for trouble.

I would like to repeat Virgil Hancock's warning against buying any coin of high value without first submitting it to the American Numismatic Association Certification Service for verification. If you are offered an 1808 United States gold Quarter Eagle by anyone, withhold payment until it has been authenticated by the ANACS. If you can afford a $7,000 coin you can most certainly afford $350 to see whether or not your $7,000 is safe.

Mail all coins insured-registered to American Numismatic Association Certification Service, to the attention of Charles Hoskins, Director, Box 87, Benjamin Franklin Station, Washington, D.C. Enclose a money order for the proper fee: $5 for coins valued to $150; $7.50 for values from $151 to $300; $10 for values from $301 to $500. Coins valued over $500 are tested at 5 per cent of the total worth. Include sufficient funds for return postage insured and certified.

Bill To Refund Tax On New Autos Signed

Gov. Richard B. Ogilvie signed legislation under which the state will refund part of the sales tax paid by persons who bought new automobiles or light trucks last fall and received refunds of federal excise taxes on the vehicle.

Ogilvie said about 300,000 Illinois residents who purchased new cars between Aug. 15 and Dec. 10 or who purchased light trucks between Sept. 23 and Dec. 10 would be eligible for state refunds averaging $10 to $20 each.

He said instructions on how to receive refunds and forms to fill out were ready to go to the post office when he signed the bill. Refund forms also will be available at auto dealers and state revenue offices, he said, and inquiries will be handled by the Illinois Department of Revenue in Springfield.

The governor said he hoped all the refunds, totaling $3.7 million, will be made by Sept. 15. To be eligible a person must have received a refund of his federal excise tax, he said. People who bought a car out of state and paid an Illinois use tax for the same period will also be eligible for refunds.

Plenty Of Fireworks As Palatine, Lions Deadlock

by LARRY EVERHART

It was a game with so many things to remember. But one of these that stood out the most was the irony of no decision being reached — after all those hits and runs, all that excitement, all that tremendously competitive battling back and forth and never giving up.

All of that went for naught as far as both teams were concerned at the St. Victor High School diamond Tuesday — though the fans loved it.

After seven full innings of 20 hits (seven for extra bases) and a see-sawing lead, the Palatine and Logan Square Lions American Legion teams ended in a 10-10 standoff. The game was finally halted at 8:25 p.m. because of darkness.

Since it was a Ninth District league game, it will have to be resolved. Coaches Larry Nemellini of Logan Square and Bob Grybas of Palatine agreed to replay the game in its entirety Saturday, July 22 (the day of the All-Star game) at noon at Fremd High School. (Individual statistics from Tuesday will still count).

It's taking quite a while to decide the rubber match of the regular-season three-game set between the two clubs. Palatine won the first game 2-0 some time ago and Logan Square took the second, 6-5 last week.

It was strictly bombs away Tuesday. Most of the seven pitchers who saw action must have feared for their own safety as drives rocketed past them to all corners of the lot. (Strangely enough, though, there were no home runs).

Right away it was evident that the Lions would do more against George Pattee than the first time they faced him. In that game he had shut them out on three hits. The Lions got two runs on four hits in the first inning alone Tuesday. They came on singles by Ken Martin, Steve Bobowski and Mike Garbus and a double by Stan Bobowski.

Palatine equalled those two in the second when Keith Steelman doubled, scored on an error and Pattee singled in a run.

Post 690 (acting as home team since the site had been switched from its field) scored four times in the fourth for what seemed to be a safe 6-2 lead. Highlights were Dave Hauswirth's two-out, two-run triple, long doubles by Bill Arkus and John Gimmier and singles by Jene Bell and Pattee.

But Pattee, who had allowed just one hit and no runs in the second through fourth innings, was hit harder in the fifth than he has been all year and knocked out for the first time.

The Lions sent 10 men to the plate and scored six runs on seven hits in this uprising. Martin's ground-rule double and a succession of singles by both Bobowskis, Bombicino, Garbus, Ed Collins and Tom Chapman did the damage.

Fully in the offensive spirit of things,

Palatine roared right back with three to take a 9-8 lead. Two walks and singles by Arkus, Gimmier and John Erickson (the latter good for two runs) put the reg team on top.

Terry Smith, in another fine relief job for the Lions, ended this rally after Erickson's hit. But Palatine added one more key run in the sixth off Smith when Gary Pemberton singled, moved up on a wild pitch, stole third and came in on Arkus' third straight hit.

Then came a clutch rally — as Logan Square has done several times before — in the seventh. Collins walked but reliever Randy Jones (a new addition to the Palatine team) retired the next two men.

But with the pressure on, Martin smashed a two-run double — his third hit — to tie it again. That's how it ended, after Lion Mike Cook struck out the side with darkness rapidly closing in.

All that for nothing? Well, no. There was enough excitement to last everyone a while.

Thoughts From A South Side Trip

HAVE YOU SEEN the red, white and blue computer card loaded with the greats, not-so-greats, has-beens and could-be's?

If you're any kind of baseball fan, you've punched and written on this 3 by 7 1/2 inch sheet and then dropped it in a ballot box or mail box. For this is the official All-Star ballot for major league baseball.

I exercised my franchise last week while attending a White Sox game. The best part was receiving the ballot. Attractive young ladies, dressed in mini Sox uniforms with hot pants, passed them out.

Controversy has been a part of this ballot ever since Commissioner Bowie Kuhn turned the voting over to the fans. This year was no exception.

If you follow baseball religiously, you'll know what teams Enzo Hernandez, Toby Harrah, Gene Michael, Doug Griffin and Angel Mangual play for. Those are some of the lesser known players that make up the 64 athletes who are eligible for each league.

The first name under the National League heading at the upper left-hand corner of the card is Orlando Cepeda. Besides being in the wrong league, old Orlando was being platooned until this week when he had surgery. That's one of the more humorous things about this ballot.

Picking the NL starters wasn't too hard:

1B — Lee May, Houston; 2B — Joe Morgan, Cincinnati; SS — Don Kessinger, Chicago; 3B — Joe Torre, St. Louis; C — John Bench, Cincinnati; OF — Cesar Cedeno, Houston; OF — Hank Aaron, Atlanta; and OF — Dave Dingman, San Francisco.

Kingman, a former star of the Herald area, wasn't listed among the 24 outfielders. But even those less prejudiced than I would have to consider him after looking at the homer and RBI lists. Big Dave was tied with Bench as of Monday with 21 round-trippers and was second to the Reds' super star in RBIs, 63 to 58.

If Kingman was doing his slugging for a New York team, he probably wouldn't have much trouble landing a starting spot. But he doesn't.

To give you an idea about the pull New York players have, no less than four are listed as possible All-Stars — Willie Mays, Tom Agee, Cleon Jones and Rusty Staub. Only the Mets' Staub is having a decent season, but all have been platooned so far.

Not at all surprising was the fact that Mays was among the top three outfielders polling votes until just recently. On the AL side of the ledger, four outfielders from the same team are listed. Can you picture four All-Stars coming from the Tigers? They are Jim Northrup, Mickey Stanley, Willie Horton and Al Kaline. Needless to say, none deserve to play in the classic this year.

An ironic thing about the AL list is the placing of two White Sox. Richie Allen is listed as an outfielder and Carlos May as a first baseman. Despite the reversal of roles, both should start in the All-Star game.

The AL players look like this: 1B — Dick Allen, Chicago; 2B — Rod Carew, Minnesota; SS — Bert Campaneris; 3B — Sal Bando, Oakland; C — Chicago; OF — Reggie Jackson, Oakland; and OF — Lou Piniella, Kansas City.

If you disagree with any of my picks, don't rush out and try to offset my votes with your choices. It's too late. The deadline was July 9.

Just as was Sports Editor Bob Frisk's

huck earlier in the week. I saw Allen crunch one into the stands against Baltimore. Sadly enough, nobody was on base and the Sox eventually lost 2-1.

Never having seen Allen perform in person, I came away agreeing about all that was said about him. If there's a more vicious swing in the majors, I'd like to see it.

A Chicago columnist said he never thought he'd see the day when a player would come along that could equal Babe Ruth's swing. That was until Allen showed his stuff on the South Side.

With nearly 20,000 for that game just a week ago today, it had almost all the similarities of attending a Cub contest. The four exceptions were these:

- It was a night game.
- The owner of the team — John Allyn — was seen walking among the crowd.
- The players for this Chicago entry were younger and faster.
- A winning air prevailed despite the loss as the happy-go-lucky fans left the park.

Although not wishing to be repetitive, just as our Sports Editor mentioned last week, I'm alive and well after the South Side excursion. The only guns I saw were holstered to Chicago policemen who directed traffic.

There were plenty of children with their parents at the park and I plan to take mine when they become old enough to sit through a two-hour game. The unsafe label just doesn't hold up for White Sox Park.

Taking in Cub and Sox games last year was difficult for me to do because of the summer workload. I only made a couple of trips to each park. My last trip downtown was to see Milwaukee. The attraction was Bill Melton as he tried to win the AL homer title.

Although he socked two that night to tie for the lead, only a small crowd attended. Naturally, this recent Baltimore game drew more partly because the Orioles have a fine team. But attendance has been on an upward swing all season.

One thing that I noticed most this time down was the abundance of young people. A great number of teens and those in their twenties were there.

You might say it proves one thing — winning baseball and the addition of a super player like Allen have a dual appeal for packing the old ball park.

Speaking of the youth movement, I received a compliment while buying a beer at a refreshment stand. "May I please see proof that you are 21 or over?" said the lady concessionaire.

Pushing 28, starting to notice extra fat around my middle, a receding hairline and grey hairs have had me becoming concerned that 30 wasn't far away. But after showing her my license, I felt 21 all over again.

If I had it to do all over again, I would have bought her a beer, too.

Cardinals Barely Miss Sweeping Doubleheader

After the first five innings of the second game, it appeared as though Arlington was going to sweep hosting Barrington Tuesday. Then the Bronchos rallied for three in the final two frames and escaped with a split.

The Cardinals won the first game, 4-1, and were edged in the nightcap, 6-5, in a Northwest Suburban Baseball League doubleheader.

A run-scoring single by Wayne Geyer put the Cards on the board in the first inning. In the third, a walk to Bill Wrenn, a single by Ward Schell and an error made it 2-1.

Arlington pulled away in the fifth. George Vukovich singled as did Gregg Hauptly. Vukovich scored on a passed ball and Wrenn singled in another.

Hauptly went the distance, striking out five and walking three.

FV Sweeps Twin-Bill

Forest View enjoyed the home field advantage Tuesday against visiting Fenton. Seemingly to respond to the familiar territory, Falcon batters pounded the visitors into submission twice in Northwest Suburban League play, 6-1 and 8-1.

Rick Haaning had things under control over the first six innings to allow Coach Tom Seidel to use Jeff Kurz to get in some throwing time in the last frame.

The same thing happened in the nightcap as Bob Richter showed his stuff against the Bisons and Kurz finished up again.

Zander Paces Logan Square

Logan Square was pitted against two foes Monday night as they battled Northbrook and even peskier mosquitos under the lights.

Craig Zander made it worth the Arlington Heights-based entry's while, though, as he spun a nifty one-hitter to pace the Lions to a 4-2 contest.

The triumph marked Logan Square's 23rd of the campaign against eight losses and one tie and reversed an identical decision against this same club in early June.

Zander held the hosts in check despite yielding six passes. He also brought his strikeout pitch as he whiffed nine and more importantly, held a booming bat.

The victors notched the scorebook in the top of the first frame as Ken Martin walked, drew a wild pickoff throw from Arlington came back with three in the fifth to regain the lead. Heidenson walked, stole second and scored on Vukovich's single. A fielder's choice brought in one and Wrenn drove home another.

Joe Losos, Arlington's starting pitcher, gave up a double to start the bottom of the seventh and was replaced by Hauptly. However, the winning run scored later on after a passed ball.

Two Ride State Title Trails

Rich Vehe and Steve Pederson, a couple of local bicycle enthusiasts out of Mt. Prospect and Prospect Heights, respectively, competed for the Lake Shore Wheelmen of Chicago over the weekend and dominated the Illinois State Bicycle Track Championships at Meadowhill Bicycle Track in Northbrook.

Each area star swept his division convincingly. Pedersen blistered the track in each of the Junior Men's half-mile, one-mile, two-mile and five-mile competitions — out-pointing his nearest competitor, Henry Heirbaut of Chicago, by a whopping 28-14 margin in the overall champion point totals.

Vehe was equally impressive in land-sliding the 1,000 meter match sprints, the 4,000 meter individual pursuit, the 1,000 meter time trials and the 10-mile pack style final.

In capturing seven points per race, Vehe also buried runnerup Jim Rossi of the Windy-City Wheelmen, 28-15. Vehe is only the second senior to ever win all four senior events.

Rossi, the senior men's runnerup, was six times National Champion and former member of the U. S. Olympic Team and Pan American Teams. He returned to racing this year after a three-year layoff.

The Lake Shore Wheelmen of Chicago won all championships except the senior women's circuit.

Northbrook broke through for a pair in the last of the fifth on a walk, its lone hit of the evening, another pass and an error at short.

The eventual winning runs paraded home in the second as Mike Garbus and Jim Bucaro coaxed consecutive passes and then staged a double steal. After Tom Chapman popped to the pitcher, Zander rocketed a two-run double to left-center.

An insurance marker in the fourth was derived from two-out singles by Ed Collins and Bucaro and back-to-back walks to Chapman and Zander.

Fremd Trims Hersey In Slugfest

Fremd and Hersey staged an exciting, see-saw offensive battle Tuesday on the Vikings' diamond before the hosts pushed across an eighth-inning run for a 7-6 victory in Northwest Summer League play. Fremd upped its record to 7-5-1.

Jeff Brissom pitched the first three innings and Randy Kraft the last five for Fremd, both being pecked away at. Tom Good went six innings and permitted six runs for Hersey.

Bob Marzec, Hersey's cleanup batter, had quite a day in a losing cause. He was a perfect five for five including two doubles.

After two outs in the top of the first, Hersey got the scoring going with a single by John Kanelis and double by Marzec. The Vikings took the lead, however, with two in the first on a double by John Slack, triple by Brissom and squeeze bunt by Fred Smith.

The host made it 3-1 in the second on an error and Slack's single. The Huskies got one of those runs right back on a walk, another double by Marzec and an error.

Hersey led 6-3 after a four-run explosion in the fifth when it batted around. Kanelis doubled, Marzec and Good singled, a batter was hit by a pitch, a walk forced in another, and a dropped fly handed the Huskies their last two.

Fremd tied it in the sixth with three tallies. Smith belted a two-bagger, Jeff Hanisch singled, Kraft walked, Larry Coughlin sacrificed, and Tom Knecht smashed a clutch two-run single to make it 6-6.

The winning run in the eighth scored on a wild pitch after two walks and another hit by Knecht.

Fremd will host Arlington and Hersey will be at Dundee in league action Friday.

Meadows Downs Maine

The Rolling Meadows entry in the Northwest Summer High School Baseball League recorded its 10th victory of the season by downing Maine South 4-1 on the losers' diamond Tuesday night.

Carl Pedersen, who no-hit a tough Addison Trail ballclub in his last outing, was not as sharp as normal even though he picked up the win. Pedersen went all the way, scattering eight hits and walking five. But he helped kill a few threats by picking off two runners and his catcher nailed one. Pedersen struck out eight.

Meadows posted three runs in the second inning, all after two were out. Rick Sidor singled. Greg Till followed with a base hit, and Scott Green cracked an RBI single. When the throw trying to get Till at third went awry, Till pranced in and Green took second. Then Marc Klemp delivered another hit to score Green.

The Mustangs added their final run in the seventh, and they didn't have to work very hard for it. Steve Breitbol was hit by a pitch, stole second base, went to third on a ground out, and tallied on a passed ball.

Maine South scored its only run in the first inning, which gave them a 1-0 advantage at the time. A single, a stolen base, and an RBI single did the trick.

Rolling Meadows remains one of the top teams in the High School Summer League with a 10-2-1 record.

Devaney, Stars Get Ready

Bob Devaney of Nebraska is the first college head coach to direct the All-Star football squad since a line of pro-oriented men was started by Curly Lambeau in 1955.

But Devaney made it clear in his first meeting with this year's All-Americans that he'll run a tight ship with things as much like a pro-training camp, including fines, as possible while the collegians spend three weeks preparing for their assignment against the world champion Dallas Cowboys on July 28 in Soldier Field.

"We're going to really work," asserted Devaney. "We'll practice twice a day until we feel we've had enough. We'll have squad meetings at night and take bed checks."

Altogether some pro scouts said the 1971 college crop was lean. Devaney seemed inclined to the contrary. He was content, he said to wait and see what transpires in the 39th annual All-Star classic which is played for charity every year.

"I do not feel qualified yet to pass judgment on the strength of this team," he said. Indicating this was the first pro draft he really scrutinized, Devaney added, "I do know, tho, we have some very fine athletes here. I just hope it's enough."

The 1972 All-Stars are a squad hand-picked by Devaney, who is recognized as the finest judge of football talent operating today, a point substantiated by Nebraska's two successive national championships.

Devaney didn't limit himself to the first two rounds of the major league draft, but went as far up the list as the seventh round to recruit the men he prefers to accomplish his objective. That objective is beating the world champions.

College football's game of the year in 1971 was Nebraska's 35-31 victory over Oklahoma on Thanksgiving day. Even the events leading up to that historic showdown put plenty of pressure on both camps. Devaney admitted the task of preparing for Dallas is more difficult.

"We'll be going against a well-organized team which has the advantage of having played together for some time," Devaney said. "We are taking a bunch of rookies and putting them together in three weeks."

"The odds are against the All-Stars, and it's their desire to perform well that gives them the opportunity to win the game. The other factors favor the pro team."

Devaney intimated, understandably, that All-Stars will use Nebraska's offense and defense.

"We won't be running the wishbone or anything like that," he explained. "We (Nebraska) lined up 50 per cent of the time in the I formation with one wide receiver and a slot back. We also used quite a bit of motion in this alignment. The other 50 per cent we were in a spread, with one running back and four quick receivers."

The "quick" receivers are two split ends, a slot back, and tight end.

Devaney, who has come a long way since his 14 years as a high school coach in Michigan, already has resigned his coaching post at Nebraska following the 1972 season to concentrate on his duties as athletic director. Could he be enticed back into coaching by another college or professional offer?

"I would never say it was impossible," he responded. "But it is improbable. There's a lot of work I've got to do as athletic director. And one thing we're doing now is building a new field house."

Wildcat Power Proves Decisive In Late Innings Against Prospect

Wheeling and Prospect battled on even terms through the first three innings Friday. Then the Wildcats, aided by the home run power of Bob Peter, scored five more over the next two innings to coast to a 10-6 victory at Wheeling High School.

The Wildcats, probably the most offensive-minded team in the Northwest Summer League, pulled away in the fourth. John Theriault walked and then scored on Peter's round-tripper.

They padded the lead in the fifth with the help of Prospect mistakes. Tom Slepicka was hit by a pitch, stole second and was joined on the base paths by Ken Margalski, the latter reaching on an error. Following an infield hit by Jerry Geimer to load the bases, Howie Brower's sacrifice fly scored one. After a walk to Theriault, Peter drove home two more.

Prospect could only score one more run in the final four innings as Gary Wennerstrom finished strong. In going the distance, Wennerstrom struck out seven and walked four.

The Knights failed to score in the first, but Wheeling did. Theriault reached on an error, stole second and scored on Pat McGinn's single.

Prospect grabbed a 2-1 lead in the second. Two walks, a wild pitch and a double by Kevin Kelley did the trick.

But Wheeling came right back. Tom Slepicka doubled, moved to third on an error and scored on Geimer's single. Carl Pfister later drove in two more with a single and scored himself on Theriault's hit.

The Knights tied the game in the third. Val Graffiti singled, moved up on an error and scored on a double by Mark Hartley. Jim Anderson's double scored two more.

Kelley was the losing pitcher. Paul Obuchowski paced the Knights with two hits. Peter, Geimer and McGinn each had a pair for the Cats.

Illinois Race Tracks Buckling Down

SPRINGFIELD (UPI) — Illinois racetracks are going to have to get along without the money produced by perfectas, quinellas, trifectas and other forms of "gimmick" betting but may get a second daily double to help make up for the loss in revenue.

The Illinois Racing Board took up the issue of betting Tuesday and reaffirmed an earlier decision to ban the gimmicks, including the quinella, where the bettor must pick the first two horses to finish the race; the perfecta, where he must choose the first two horses in their exact order of finish; and other, similar forms.

None of those betting pools, the board said, will be allowed after July 21.

The reason for the board's decision is that it is virtually impossible for the track to provide up-to-the-minute odds on such betting pools. That allows an unscrupulous owner, trainer, jockey or bettor to wager large sums of money on a fixed race without it being known to the betting public.

In straight wagering, track tote boards show continuously changing odds, reflecting the amount of money bet on each horse to win, place or show.

Board Chairman Alexander MacArthur cited several instances where he said the "blind" gimmick pools were used by racing personnel to win large profits on fixed races.

Racetrack operators protested that the gimmicks are popular and that they need the revenue they produce.

aces and a "late" double, perhaps on the last two races.

Moon said he would make a formal request for such an option after MacArthur said he thought the board "would look with considerable interest" at it.

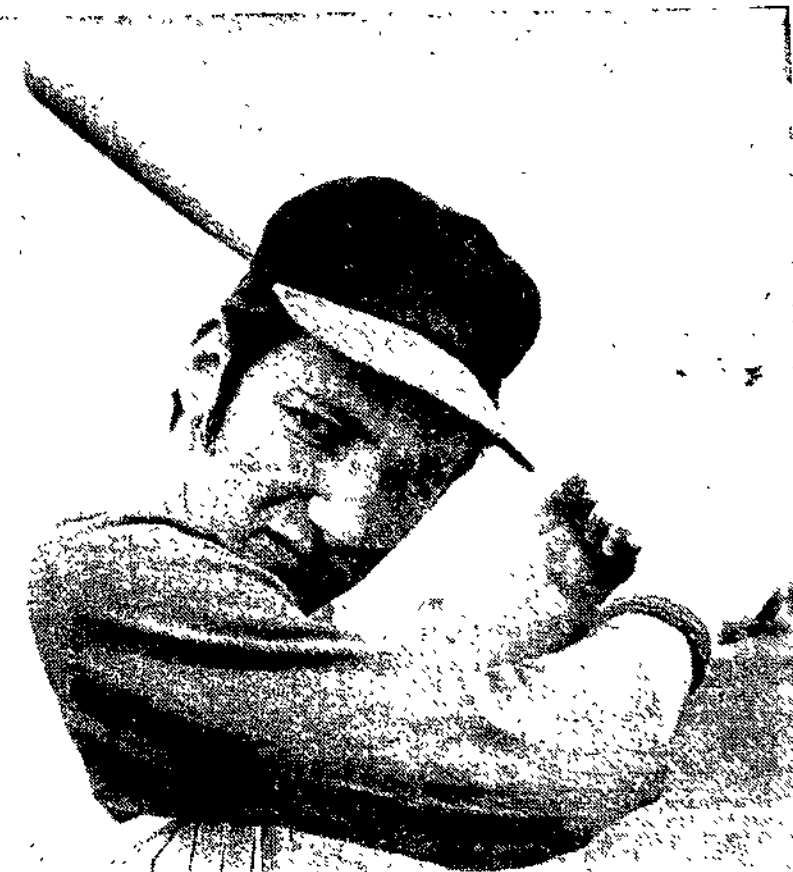

MEANWHILE, GOV. Richard B. Ogilvie has signed two measures that force racing associations and others who want horse and harness racing dates to reveal their racetrack holdings.

The measures, sponsored chiefly by Rep. Arthur Telser, R-Chicago, would require anyone with a five per cent or more interest in tracks or track concessions to file that information with the Illinois Racing Board and the secretary of state if they want to hold a race.

The measures, sponsored chiefly by Rep. Arthur Telser, R-Chicago, would require anyone with a five per cent or more interest in tracks or track concessions to file that information with the Illinois Racing Board and the secretary of state if they want to hold a race.

The legislation signed into law Tuesday also requires racing board approval of ownership transfers that affect 25 per cent or more of the controlling interest in any group or association holding a racing license.

The legislation further makes it unlawful for holders of racetrack stock to contribute to political campaigns.

BOMBO BOMBER. One of the big sticks in Logan Square's attack this summer is Joe Bombicino. Against Palatine Tuesday, the Lions' first baseman was 3-for-4 and drove in 6 runs. The game ended in a 10-10 tie at Fremd.

Mustangs Win Again, 4-1

Darkness and rain came all at once to force the Rolling Meadows-Crown High School Summer League baseball game to be called after just five innings Monday night with the Mustangs ahead 4-1.

Rolling Meadows had the bases loaded and no one out in the top of the sixth when the adverse conditions set in. The Mustangs had previously scored three times in the third inning to wipe out a 1-0 Crown advantage. Meadows added another in the fifth.

Crown's only run of the game came in the first inning on two Rolling Meadows errors and a ground out. But the Mustangs defense settled down thereafter and pitcher Dave Thorstensen scattered three hits, walked three and struck out eight in five innings.

Meadows took the lead in the third when Marc Klemp singled, Mike Saugling followed suit, and Steve Breitbeil delivered a run scoring single. After Saugling and Breitbeil had advanced to third and second, Crown tried a pickoff play at third, but the ball escaped the third baseman and Saugling trailed with Breitbeil moving to third. Then Glen Zawacki executed a nice squeeze bunt which scored Breitbeil.

In the fifth, Saugling walked, stole second, and came home on Zawacki's hit up the middle.

Darkness and rain then stopped the game but Rolling Meadows came away with its ninth victory of the summer against two losses and one tie.

Sewage Purification Worth A Fortune?

by KENNETH J. BRADDICK
TIBURON, Calif. (UPI) — Two scientists say they have found a way to purify sewage so the water is fit to drink and the waste can be used to grow high protein food. It could put them on their way to a fortune.

The project of recycling what the two call a "valuable resource" began a couple of years ago and has its results in a new sewage treatment plant for this San Francisco Bay community of 10,000 people.

The breakthrough treatment method has sparked interest in several small cities of the nation, though its developers say it is just as practical and cheap for a major metropolis or even an office building with 5,000 workers.

BRITON JOHN R. Hulls and his father-in-law, Keith A. Cooke, developed the method by using genetically altered algae, a low form of plant life.

The bearded, long-haired Hulls, 24, is reluctant to talk about specifics because 40 patents are pending and he and Cooke want to make a profit.

The system works by growing algae at extremely high density in a controlled environment. The algae eat the nutrients in the sewage and at the same time release oxygen.

It is done by cascading sewage water through tiers of small tanks seeded with one-celled algae. This allows the algae to grow and multiply on the sewage diet and then the algae and water are separated in a centrifuge.

Electronic monitors keep a constant check on the quality of oxygen, phosphates, nitrates and other effluent in the water. Analyses over several weeks have shown water quality after treatment is well within federal state certification standards.

Chlorine is added to the water after treatment to make it fit for drinking. The algae can be harvested and sold for use as animal feed, fertilizer or protein fats for adding to foods for human consumption.

HULLS SAID the method can be added to existing treatment facilities with no major modifications to the original plant. For a city of 10,000 persons, the treatment gear can fit in a building of about 2,200 square feet, much less than required for other existing systems.

Sanitary engineering "has been in the dark ages," Hulls said. "Everyone wants to forget when they flush the toilet. But it should not be forgotten because it's a valuable resource."

Hulls said he finally hit on algae as the answer to the problem "more out of pure laziness because I couldn't find any other way to do it."

The Tiburon plant will be able to handle 800,000 gallons a day on a regular basis, with peaks of 2.2 million gallons during heavy rainstorms.

Social Security and You

Q—I AM 65 and have doctor bill insurance under Medicare. So far this year I've had medical expenses of $97. When should I send in my claim to get my money back?

A—Since the first $50 of medical expense in a year is not reimbursable, the Social Security Administration normally asks a patient to wait until this deductible is met before submitting a claim. But if there is a reason to submit the bill earlier, they can be sent in at any time. As an example, sometimes it is necessary to submit a bill to Medicare for payment before a private insurance company will make their payment.

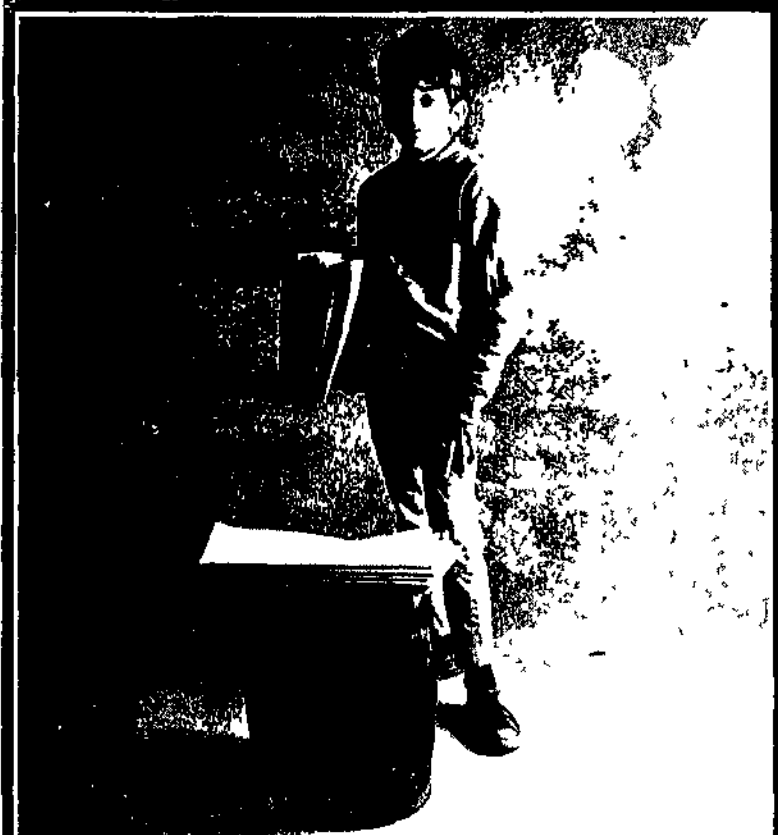

Q—IS EVERYONE who gets monthly social security payments eligible for Medicare?

A—No. You must be 65. If you're 65 or over and are entitled to monthly social security benefits, you are automatically eligible for Medicare's hospital insurance. Almost everyone now reaching 65 can sign up for the medical insurance part of Medicare. For more information you can call the Social Security Office Telephone Service at 239-7000.

Q—I KNOW there is a deductible that must be paid before Medicare will pay toward medical bills. From one source I hear that the deductible is $68 from another $50. Would you please tell me which one is correct?

A—As you probably know, there are two parts to Medicare: 1) Hospital insurance which helps pay for the care you receive as a patient in the hospital; and 2) Medical insurance which helps pay your doctor bills plus the cost of many other medical items and services. The deductible for the medical insurance is $50. Therefore both answers are correct.

A reminder for all residents of Buffalo Grove, Inverness, Palatine, Prospect Heights, Rolling Meadows, Arlington Heights and Wheeling: A new social security office is now open at 120 W. Eastman in Arlington Heights.

A lot of Americans are suffering from withdrawal symptoms.

What's wrong?

You're making more money than you ever have.

But every time you plan on putting money into your savings, you end up withdrawing some.

Maybe you're buying too many little things you don't really need. Little here, little there. After awhile it adds up.

You know, that's just the theory behind the Payroll Savings Plan. You sign up where you work, and they set a little aside from each paycheck and use it to buy U.S. Savings Bonds. You don't really miss the money that way... and before you know it, you've got a nest egg that's really worth something.

And now there's a bonus interest rate on all U.S. Savings Bonds—for E Bonds, 5 1/2% when held to maturity of 5 years, 10 months (4% the first year). That extra 1/2%, payable as a bonus at maturity, applies to all Bonds issued since June 1, 1970... with a comparable improvement for all older Bonds.

The Payroll Savings Plan. A great way to save a little here, a little there and end up with a bankroll.

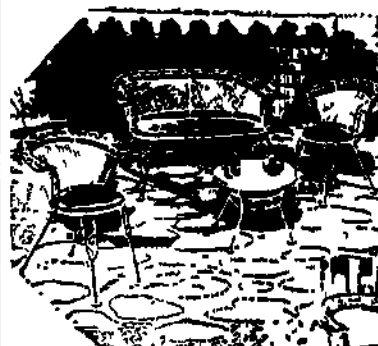

But Savings Bonds are safe. If lost, stolen, or destroyed, we replace them. With needed, they can be cashed at your bank. They may be redeemed at any time. And they're a handy, handy way to save.

Sense Of Touch — Use It

(This is a weekly column presented by Forest Hospital in Des Plaines, a fully-accredited 135-bed psychiatric hospital, known for its programs in psychiatric treatment, research, education and community service.)

Count your senses ... how aware of each of your senses are you? How much feeling or lack of it do you have?

If you are not in touch with yourself you're probably just an average, harried, conditioned to non-feeling American, says Bernard Gunther, author of "Sense Relaxation" and staff member of Esalen Institute in California.

"People in this culture avoid touching," he said, "and touching is not only the physical act of actually taking some part of your body and touching another's but touching is also done with your eyes, your voice. Touching is being in touch with your own feelings, your own body, with nature."

"We separate ourselves too much from ourselves and from others. We avoid contact yet contact is nourishing. Isolation is basic to insanity. The sense that you're not alone provides warmth and energy."

Gunther suggests that if you try and feel yourself — experience yourself. Test how much you can relate to your immediate surroundings. Can you feel the world around you or is it all verbal and dull — or is it an exciting dimension of your life? If not what's missing?

"SINCE MOST children are so aware of themselves, their bodies and their environment," Gunther said, "something must happen to an adult as he grows up which makes him lose touch or become insensitive to himself."

Gunther suggests you explore your body with your consciousness — "the posture you have or the pains you have are the language of your body. Your body is giving you a message — it could be saying you're nervous or anxious but if you concentrate you can tell how your body feels."

Gunther thinks the whole key to getting in touch with one's body is through the mind and at Esalen Institute he helps people explore themselves. People can learn to find new dimensions of themselves — dimensions in their own potential, creativity and the experience of self — an experience Gunther has found sadly lacking in most people.

The Volunteer Bureau

Palatine, Rolling Meadows Boost Services

by ESTHER RABCHUK

Near the end of the school year May 11, the principals of schools in Dist. 15, which serves Palatine, Rolling Meadows, Inverness and part of Hoffman Estates, received a report from the co-directors of the Lois Moore Branch Office of the Volunteer Service Bureau, Northwest Cook County.

The branch office is located in Palatine Township Hall, 37 N. Plum Grove, Palatine. It is closed for the summer months, but work is being done in preparation for opening date just before school opens.

Since the branch offices are staffed entirely by volunteers, the fringe benefit of choosing hours necessitates that the staff be excused from summertime hours because they are primarily mothers of school-age children.

The caliber of the branch directors is high, since the assignment is interesting, relevant to today's problems and it nourishes the need of the creative and competent women to put her talents where she knows they are needed and appreciated.

THE DIST. 15 report was put together by co-directors Isobel Burg of Palatine and Tammy Meade of Rolling Meadows. Mrs. Burg and Mrs. Meade were on the original steering committee to establish a branch office in their area, and the bureau is live and thriving today because of these two volunteers.

The Volunteer of the Month Awards were presented to Mrs. Burg and Mrs. Meade at the March annual meeting of the bureau, as it was to all the Branch Directors.

Other agencies received aid from the Lois Moore Branch in addition to Dist. 15, but it is in the schools where it is most convenient to keep records of who is where doing what because of the policy of the bureau that each school building must have a volunteer coordinator.

The report drew on the experience of the past year in serving Dist. 15, indicating that every request should go through the principal so that he or she may know who is in the building at all times for insurance purposes, and so he may ascertain that volunteers are not replacing paid staff. The paid staff remains responsible for the classroom, and the volunteer should not have to cope with behavior problems.

THE REPORT lists a pitfall that may occur if the school bypasses the bureau in requesting a volunteer previously used in that the volunteer can be over used and hence lost to the entire movement. The volunteer coordinator is trained in respecting the dignity of the volunteer and understands one of her roles to be that of a troubleshooter either when the teacher has an unpleasant experience with a volunteer or the volunteer has an unpleasant experience himself.

Illustrations of enrichment volunteers brought into the buildings as addition to the regular curriculum are a lecture and demonstration on American Indians; art demonstrations such as Acrylic Painting, Architecture and tie-dyeing; a lecture and demonstration by a carpenter, displaying of collections such as dolls, rocks, coins; a lecture on consumer buying, drug abuse, medical science, astronomy, ecology, egg hatching, fish hatching, forestry, unidentified flying objects, and photography; lectures on foreign countries such as Australia, Japan, France, Hawaii, Lithuania, Thailand, India, Denmark, Sweden and China.

One of the advantages of having a Central Office serving the five branch offices is that if one office does not have a certain enrichment program available on file, there is a good possibility that one of the other Branch offices does. The central office maintains a complete file with codes as to which Branch office such and such a person can be reached. Mrs. Joni

Byrne of Palatine is the board member of the bureau who is chairman of the Resource and Development Portfolio and whose responsibility is to keep it a working file. Since we live in a very mobile society this involves deleting as well as adding to the file as people move into and move out of the area.

Palatine, Rolling Meadows and surrounding area have contributed a great deal to the success of the Volunteer Bureau in the persons of Isobel Burg, Tammy Meade and Joni Byrne.

Veterans' News

Q—I AM A veteran's widow drawing VA pension. Would state welfare benefits reduce my pension?

A—No. VA does not consider benefits from public or private welfare organizations as income for purposes of computing pension.

Q—AS A veteran attending college under the GI Bill, I wonder why VA does not pay for all my educational expenses?

A—Like the World War II and Korean Conflict GI Bills the current GI Bill is intended as educational assistance, rather than a total subsidy thru four years of college. Veterans who went to school after WW II often had to supplement their educational allowances just as the majority of all well motivated college students do.

Q—I AM A World War II veteran and have used a small portion of my GI loan entitlement. Can my remaining entitlement be used in purchasing a mobile home?

A—No. You must have the maximum loan guaranty entitlement available to qualify for mobile home benefits.

Q—HOW DO I get admitted to a Veterans Administration hospital?

A—Apply in person to the VA hospital nearest your home taking with you a copy of your military separation papers. If unable to visit the nearest hospital, a private physician may request by phone admittance for a veteran-patient, being prepared to advise admissions authority as to military data and the need for hospital care.

GENERAL INFORMATION:

The first homes in the village of Hoffman Estates were completed in 1955; the population topped 8,000 in 1960 and nearly tripled by 1971. There are several new industrial firms in this town of young homes and young families. There are some small hills in the town, as this is the beginning of the Fox River Valley.

HOUSING:

A variety of models has been constructed in the community, including colonials, cape cods, bi-levels, and combination brick and frame homes. Prices range from $30,000 to $49,000, with new homes starting at $37,000. The total number of apartment units in Hoffman Estates presently is 596, but 3 new developments will eventually add some 4,130 townhouse units and 6,680 apartments to this total. Rents range from $180 to over $250.

SCHOOLS:

There are 15 public elementary schools in the town, and 2 junior high schools. The James B. Conant and the soon-to-be-completed Hoffman Estates High Schools are in the village proper. The pupil-teacher ratio is 23:1, with $548 spent annually per pupil. One Catholic elementary school is in the village, and a Lutheran elementary school is nearby.

CHURCHES:

Nearly all faiths are represented in the area, and the village has 3 Baptist, plus Catholic, Christian, Episcopal, Evangelical Lutheran, Jewish, United Methodist, and United Presbyterian houses of worship.

TRANSPORTATION:

C&NW trains are available in Palatine 7 miles north, and Milwaukee Road trains stop in Roselle, 4 miles south of town. Schaumburg Transportation Company buses serve the local area. A Northwest Tollway entrance is 3 miles northeast of town.

SHOPPING:

Hoffman Estates downtown shopping area has 2 adjacent plazas offering many stores and shops, and there is a small new area south of Higgins Road. Woodfield Mall is adjacent to Hoffman Estates to the east, with Randhurst Plaza 7 miles east in Mount Prospect, and downtown Elgin 12 miles west of town.

RECREATION:

The Hoffman Estates Park District, with administration offices and a community center at 650 West Higgins Road, operates 13 park sites in the village, and the Lions' Community Swimming Pool (an outdoor facility) on Grand Canyon Parkway.

A referendum approved by residents last month will provide $675,000 for park improvements in the community.

Hoffman Estates is also the home of Poplar Creek Forest Preserve, a 3,000 acre facility under development at the village's west end. Two fishing ponds are now available and two lakes, one 30 acres, the other 148 acres, are planned. The Cook County Forest Preserve District will also develop an 18 hole golf course adjacent to Hoffman Estates at Roselle and Central Roads. The Hilldale Village Golf Course in Hoffman Estates and Golden Acres Country Club and Golf Course are also open to the public, though privately owned.

GOVERNMENT:

Hoffman Estates is run by a Village Board of 6 trustees and a Village President. Auxiliary boards and commissions include groups responsible for zoning, planning, youth, and environment.

A new $1.1 million police and administration center at 1200 North Gannon Drive opened in Hoffman Estates last month offering the most modern facilities for municipal operation and law enforcement. Autonomous from the Village Board is the Hoffman Estates Fire Protection District which runs two fully equipped fire stations and has plans for a third station underway, with financing coming from a bond issue approved last year through referendum.

Use A Checklist When Buying A Home

When you've got a choice, make a good one. Especially when you're choosing an all-important item like a new home.

Whether you're newlyweds or an established family, you'll be smart to make a checklist and take it along when you go househunting. It will lead you past the sales puffery that promises a wonderful work-free world of country living just a hop - skip - and - jump from your downtown office.

What you need are the facts about construction, community and cost. Is it a sturdy, well-designed house that will need minimal maintenance and provide comfortable living in a neighborhood that suits your family? And can you afford it?

ONE SIGN of quality that's recognizable at first glance is the windows and doors. Use of wood windows, wood panel doors and other millwork adds beauty to a house; it also indicates the builder is providing comfort and low maintenance. Comfort because wood is a natural insulating material that helps keep the house warm in winter and prevents condensation.

If you're house-hunting in wintertime, feel the inside of the window sash — metal gets cold and moisture collects on it and drips. Wood stays warm to the touch.

Wood is also a low-maintenance material. Stock windows and doors of ponderosa pine are built to operate easily and to last for years. Ponderosa pine units designed for exterior use — windows, doors, shutters and entryways — are preservative-treated to resist weather abuse. The factory-made windows are equipped with weatherstripping and hardware that is both rugged and efficient.

If a house has wood windows with insulating glass — two panes sealed with a layer of insulating air between them — you can be even more confident of quality. Insulating glass saves heat and provides comfort in winter without the constant care and trouble of separate storm sash. Today many builders of quality homes and apartments are using wood windows with insulating glass to attract families who demand better-than-average living facilities.

AFTER YOUR first look at obvious things, check the layout of the house and its basic construction points — the roof, insulation, wiring, foundation, plumbing and heating and major appliances.

Be sure to check the builder's reputation by talking with other families who live in his homes.

You will want to evaluate the location for shopping, schools, recreation, and the local government for its attitudes toward zoning, taxation and other vital concerns.

A checklist and more detailed information about what to look for when you're buying a house is available in a booklet, "How to Spot a Better Home." For a free copy, write Ponderosa Pine Woodwork, Dept. P, 39 S. LaSalle St., Chicago, Ill. 60603.

Annen & Busse Adds Three To Sales Staff

Wallace E. Busse, sales manager for Annen & Busse, Inc. in Mount Prospect, announces the addition of three new sales associates in his office.

George Novak

Veronica Connelly

Veronica Connelly recently joined the Annen & Busse, Inc. team, bringing several years experience in the real estate field with her. She and her family have been residents of Mount Prospect for twelve years. She has served the people of the area during that time and is familiar with their problems, both buyers and sellers.

Andy Olson, new to the real estate business, has a rich background in dealing with people and their needs. His experience includes management positions in retail marketing, sales, and the advertising fields. He and his wife are residents of Mount Prospect.

George Novak, long a Mount Prospect resident, has been with Annen & Busse, Inc. for the past four years, working from their Elk Grove Village office. He joined the Mount Prospect staff as of July 1.

"We are pleased that the increased activity in the area has necessitated adding sales personnel. As in the past, we will serve all of the northwest suburban area, utilizing our memberships in the MAP Multiple Listing Service and the National Multi-List Service," commented Mr. Busse. "We are confident that these new associates will complement our already fine staff."

Framed Views

There are some unusually fine scenic wallpapers on the market today, and professional interior decorators are using them in a new and exciting way.

Instead of papering an entire wall, the decorators frame panels of the scenic paper to create the effect of a wall-mounted screen.

The paper is applied to the wall in its natural roll widths. But, instead of joining the edges, a separation of nearly four inches is left between. This space is covered with a 1x4-inch board that connects to 1x4's set at the top and bottom of the wall.

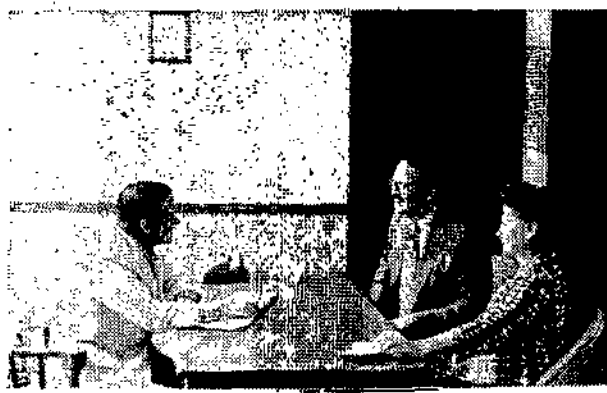

In this manner, a picture frame is built around each panel of the mural wallpaper. Usually, a simple molding is used around the inner edge of the 1x4's, too, in classic picture frame style.

It's often most effective if the framed panels are used on only the upper two thirds of the wall, with wainscoting installed below. Decorators also recommend that the framework and wainscoting be Douglas fir lumber stained a medium nut brown or darker.

Squassoni Named May Sales Leader

For the third time this year, "Woody" Squassoni has been named sales leader of the month of May. L. Kunkel & Co., Realtors.

Squassoni was presented an engraved plaque by Ralph H. Martin, Kunkel vice president, for having achieved the highest total of real estate sales and listing during May. In 1971, he was top salesman four out of the twelve months.

In addition, he was one of five Kunkel personnel who were each responsible for 1971 sales exceeding $1 million. This qualified him for membership in the "Million Dollar Sales Club" of the Illinois Association of Real Estate Boards.

Kitchen Office Center Petite

Take the bottom shelf of a dish cupboard, one emptied utensil drawer, a two-foot-wide breadboard, a telephone, and you've got the components for a kitchen planning center — in "nonexistent" space.

The only thing you'll actually need to add is the breadboard — a pull-out writing counter. It should be a piece of edge-glued, vertical grain fir, hemlock or pine lumber finished with urethane varnish. Install that in a base cabinet at a 28 or 30-inch height on side-mounted, heavy-duty file drawer guides.

A utensil drawer, preferably alongside rather than directly above the writing counter, will store pencils and paper. The dish cupboard shelf holds cookbooks, recipe box. Part of its length also could be devoted to pigeonholes for bills and correspondence.

Now move the telephone to the planning center, and you're done.

Design Designer Walls

Create the unusual on your walls — with wall effects used by leading interior decorators.

For a tough finish that blends with any decor, use a textured paint. While the surface is still wet, create a random pattern by going over it with a whisk broom, comb — you name it!

Stippling is another decorative effect that gives your walls extra dimension. Simply point the walls a background color and let dry. Then, press the walls with a natural sponge containing the contrasting color. Try silver on blue, gold on red — the combinations are almost endless.

To increase the size of a small room, you can stripe a wall for a focal point! First, paint the wall a background shade and let dry. Then, using masking tape, mark off the areas to be striped and paint them a contrasting color. Let dry before removing the tape.

Lease Unit To Optical Firm

Arthur Rubloff & Co., Chicago-based nationwide real estate firm, has announced the completion of transactions by their Industrial Division covering the leasing of a 7,900 square foot incubator unit in the Rogers Industrial Park, 2600 Greenleaf, Elk Grove Village, to Great Western Optical.

The Washington-based optical import firm will relocate their national headquarters to the Elk Grove facility. William R. Beak of Rubloff's was sole broker in the negotiations. Term rental was reported at $49,000.

How To Modernize Your Heating System

If your home is equipped with an older steam and hot water heating system which operates on the gravity principle, there's an easy way to modernize it, says the Chicagoland Better Heating-Cooling Council.

By installing a small pump known as a circulator, you can convert the system to forced circulation, making it respond more quickly to the demands of the thermostat, giving you more comfort.

Centex Homes 'Save The Trees'

"Save the trees!" said Joshua A. Muss, president of Centex Homes Corporation, and as a result the land site originally planned for The Townhouses of Winston Village became Winston Oaks... a new community of condominiums in Bolingbrook.

June 17 marked the grand opening of two other communities built by Centex Homes. Winston Park South, a community of single family homes in Country Club Hills, celebrated the opening of five new models. Willow Creek Condominium No. 4 located within the Willow Creek residential and commercial complex at Northwest Hwy. and Rte. 53 in Palatine opened with one, two and three bedroom condominium apartment homes. Coming just one week after the firm officially opened Winston Grove, a new community of 288 single family homes in Elk Grove Village, Centex Homes has opened four new projects valued at $35½ million within the recent weeks.

WINSTON OAKS, valued at $4½ million, is a 13½ acre community which will consist of one, two and three bedroom condominiums ranging in price from $20,990 to $26,990. In order to take full advantage of the topography — steep gradient with a 35' difference from high to low and an abundance of 60 to 70 year old towering oak trees — and maintain the natural slopes, the two and three story buildings are being spotted in small clusters. The original plan to use the site for townhouses was scrapped when its execution meant destroying a majority of the existing woods.

According to Babbitt, the small unit buildings (each will have four condominiums to a floor) were designed on a residential scale because the majority of prospective buyers are expected to be former home owners who prefer the intimacy of a neighborhood nestled in the natural setting. The other key factor was again that small units are more easily turned and linked together to conform to the natural terrain. The brick structures accented with rough sawed wood will feature colors — shades of browns and olive — to fit into the natural setting.

"Approximately 90 per cent of the trees in Phase I will be saved," stated Lee Circle. "In fact, a small portion of the buildings will be stepped... 3 stories on one side, 2 stories on the other... in order to protect the natural ravines as part of the landscape and keep as much of the land in tact as possible," he continued.

WINSTON OAKS is located at 515 Winston Dr., 2 blocks east of Rte. 53 on Boughton Rd. (formerly known as Oldfield Rd.), adjacent to The Townhouses of Winston Village in Bolingbrook. Models are open for inspection daily from 10 a.m. until 8 p.m.

The three bedroom apartment home features 1,500 square feet of living space and provides a living room and adjoining dining room, 2 baths, a master bedroom suite with walk-in closet, two additional bedrooms and a fully equipped kitchen with eating area. It is priced at $26,990.

The two bedroom condominium provides 1,170 square feet of living space and includes 2 baths, one of which adjoins the master bedroom, a second bedroom, adjacent living and dining rooms, and cabinet kitchen. This apartment home is priced at $24,990.

The one bedroom condominium priced at $20,990 offers 800 square feet of living area with adjacent living and dining rooms, kitchen, and one bedroom.

All condominiums at Winston Oaks feature all-electric kitchens equipped with stainless steel double sinks, dishwasher, disposal, free-standing range and exhaust fans. Standard features include a balcony or patio depending on floor; air conditioning; carpeting throughout in a choice of colors and styles with the exception of the baths where ceramic tile is used and the kitchens where vinyl asbestos tile is included; and storm windows and screens. Individual storage room is provided for each owner and there is a laundry room in each building. An intercom system provides security. Residential and guest parking is included.

Owners at Winston Oaks will be eligible for membership at the Oldfield Club, the $4½ million year-round recreational clubhouse built for the exclusive use of homeowners of Winston Woods, The Townhouses of Winston Village and Winston Oaks. Like all residents of the area, homeowners will also be able to enjoy the wide range of additional recreational facilities, shopping, established schools, churches and community organizations.

WINSTON OAKS, Centex Homes' new condominium community in Bolingbrook offers 1, 2 and 3 bedroom condominiums ranging in price from $20,990 to $26,990. Models located at 515 Winston Dr., 2 blocks east of Route 53 on Boughton Rd. (formerly known as Oldfield Road) are open for inspection daily from 10 a.m. until 8 p.m.

Everybody Wants Pizzazz-Right?

Although one out of five Americans will move this year, and the average family moves every seven years, there are still a lot of people who will stay put in their older homes. The high cost of a new house plus the emotional attachment they have for their present communities have made many people plan to modernize rather than move.

Whatever their project — building the attic, finishing the basement adding on a room, fixing up the garage — the new area will have year 'round use if it is heated. According to the Chicago and Better Heating-Cooling Council, nine out of ten home improvement projects require heat, and if planned along with everything else, will be far less expensive than adding it later on.

Even such simple projects as paneling a wall will be more attractive if heating is taken into consideration. If the home is equipped with old-fashioned, free-standing radiators, the room will not be as attractive as you hope. Replacing the bulky radiator with modern hydronic (hot water) baseboard heating panels will give the room a certain pizzazz.

If your home is equipped with hydronic heating, adding baseboard to the new additions is very simple. Because it utilizes small tubing, it's not necessary to tear down walls or rip up floors.

MAP TIPS TO HOME BUYERS AND HOME SELLERS FROM MAP MULTIPLE LISTING REAL ESTATE SERVICE

RECORD SALES MONTH FOR MAP

A record cooperative sales volume of $12,187,100 marked the highest May sales volume ever recorded for MAP Multiple Listing Real Estate Service. The sales volume record topped the 1971 May sales by slightly over $4,000,000.

The $12,187,100 May 1972 sales volume is the result of 314 cooperative sales between participating MAP Multiple Listing Real Estate companies and combined with the number of non cooperative sales established an all time high average home sale price of $38,291. Thus far in 1972 MAP Multiple Listing offices have sales totaling $54,097,301 in cooperative sales the result of 1,412 cooperative home sales.

The May sales figures were disclosed at a MAP Officers and Directors meeting where a main topic of discussion was the outlook for Real Estate sales in the coming year and the requirements needed to answer the growing changes in customer home buying habits.

We are unanimous in our feeling that the last half of 1972 will produce another outstanding year in area Real Estate Sales, says Bill Nieman, current MAP President. The MAP officers and directors base their outlook on the general atmosphere of buying and listing enthusiasm that is obvious in the market. We see no major fluctuation in the all important mortgage money situation and we all see continued substantiation in the fact that the North-west Suburban Chicago area is certainly still one of America's most desirable living areas.

Systems Don't Mix

When shopping for a new home, watch out for the claim that it's easy to add air conditioning to an existing heating system, warns the Chicago-based Better Heating-Cooling Council. For best heating, the outlets should be close to the floor, and for effective cooling, the outlets should be near the ceiling. Anything else is a compromise, and won't work at peak efficiency.

1st Plant-Fabricated Panel Basement Installed Here

Another first for the Chicagoland construction industry was demonstrated at the Kingsberry Homes Des Plaines development recently, as Ampress Brick Co. installed the first plant-fabricated panel basement in this area.

Among the numerous members of the construction and real estate fields in attendance, were Hale Olson, president of the Ampress Brick Co.; Alfred Prickett, Des Plaines building commissioner;

Mike Zemon, Zemon Concrete Co. of Palatine; Don Erickson, architect and president of Erickson and Stevens, Inc.; Jack Schuepfer, president of Poess Builders, Inc.; Ralph H. Martin, vice president and sales manager of Wm. L. Kunkel & Co., Realtors, exclusive sales agents for the Kingsberry Homes and Ernest G. Schlanbusch, Kunkel new homes manager.

The 10-inch thick by 4'8" high Loo-Wall panels, constructed of steel reinforced concrete, are partially hollow to assure insulation value superior to solid walls. After these panels were set together on poured-in-place footings, they were caulked, grouted, sealed and horizontally reinforced to assure a completely locked integral foundation.

According to Ampress, the Loo-Wall panels, approved by government and municipal agencies, may be installed in any type of weather or climate, with an average foundation completed in merely half a day. They are also proven more economical per square foot than previous poured concrete methods and a superior wall finish is achieved, comparable to plaster walls.

The Kingsberry Homes, located on Thacker west of Wolf Road in Des Plaines are being manufactured by the Boise Cascade Co. and constructed by Poess Builders, Inc. of Harwood Heights, Ill. Further information or an appointment can be obtained by contacting Kunkel Realtors on 734 Lee St. in Des Plaines or visiting the models open Saturday and Sunday from one until 6 p.m. The models can be reached by taking Mount Prospect Road to Fremont (one block south of Golf) and following signs to Kingsberry Model Homes.

Leisure Home Buyers Look For Place To Play

Leisure home buyers do indeed take the word "leisure" literally.

"Leisure to them means not only the time to have fun, but also facilities for having fun," declares Sabino Marinella, president of Continental Investment Corp., Boston, who adds that "this is true for all age groups."

"Leisure community developers report that water-oriented recreational facilities are, by far, the first leisure-oriented item potential buyers look for — a swimming pool is generally rated one of the most valuable assets.

"A lake or pond — even small and man-made — certainly gets the vote of those fathers and sons who like to fish. And if the lake is big enough to accommodate water skiers, the teenagers will flock to it," Marinella observes.

Second on the popularity scale is tennis, which is showing a new surge of popularity. More and more leisure home buyers are looking to see if tennis courts are available.

"Golf has always been popular, but, curiously enough, it is not a big selling point unless the course is already completed. Potential buyers usually are not too willing to wait several years until a proposed golf course becomes a reality.

"Developers are also surprised to find that while most folks do not ask about the availability of walking or hiking trails, when they find that they do exist, they use them heavily. And the same is true for bicycle paths," Marinella points out.

Horseback riding, while still a somewhat prestigious pastime, is growing in popularity in many leisure home communities.

"And, of course, the big demand is always for a spot — or spots — where the younger children can play in safety. A fully equipped 'tot lot' has been the deciding factor in many a family's decision.

"But the really successful leisure home developments are those that make sure there are a wide assortment of planned activities and supervised facilities for teenagers — a well planned program can make life worth living for youngsters between 12 and 20," he emphasizes.

"A good house and attractive surroundings are musts — but today's leisure home buyers not only look for a place to relax, they also want a place to play," Marinella concludes.

Keep Closets Dry And Airy

If you're playing a word association game and someone says "closet," do you counter with "musty?" If so, you probably need some louver doors.

No matter how clean your closets, they tend to get a musty smell unless air can circulate through them. That's where the louver doors come in. Local building supply centers carry stock louver doors made of ponderosa pine. They are ideal for closets because air circulates between the louvers, drying out moisture and preventing that musty smell. They also add a distinctive design feature to your room.

There's a choice of styles: bifold doors that move easily on tracks and take up very little floor space, or standard louver doors, either wide or narrow, that can be hinged to swing open or hung on tracks to glide open without requiring any swing space at all.

For a wide closet opening, two or three louver doors can be hung on tracks to glide by each other; on a narrow opening, a single louver door can be a "pocket door" that glides on a track into a pocket in the wall.

Some louver doors have solid panels in the lower section; others are fully louvered. Sanded smooth at the factory, they are ready to paint or stain when you buy them.

The Perils Of An Overpriced Home

Homes put up for sale overpriced run the risk of becoming "white elephants," warns a leading Chicago Realtor.

"Unrealistically priced homes may remain on the market for a long period of time, becoming shopworn like any other sale item," contends Robert G. Walters, vice president and district sales manager of both the Arlington Heights, 220 E. Northwest Hwy., and the Mount Prospect, 21 E. Prospect Ave., offices of Baird & Warner, Inc., and Michael J. Del Re, sales manager of the Mount Prospect office.

"Regardless of its attributes, if the home is improperly priced buyers will think there's something wrong with the property — not just the price — and the home may eventually sell for a price less than it's really worth," they added.

THIS IS ONE of the chief reasons the vast majority of sellers work with professional Realtors to establish a realistic list price, the price at which a home is initially offered for sale.

"The average homeowner just doesn't have the expertise or objectivity to determine the proper valuation."

The average homeowner working independently will arrive at a price for his home several ways:

First, he might ask his neighbor what he thinks his home is worth.

"And since he's an average homeowner too, the neighbor's estimation most likely will be based more on friendship than capability. Thus, in not wanting to offend, his appraisal may be much higher than the home is actually worth."

Second, he'll compare his home with the price of a similar home that sold in his vicinity and decide on an asking price for his property on that basis.

"This approach isn't sound, either. No two homes are exactly alike. Variation in exposure, condition and location, for example, are all factors that will influence the price."

Third, he'll take the price he originally paid for the home, tack on all the improvements he has made over the years, add profit or inflation factors, and consider that to be a fair market price.

"WITH LUCK, he may come close to the fair market value. However, we've learned that the homeowner's judgment is likely to be clouded by his own bias. Features he believes are important may be irrelevant to potential buyers," they agree.

Establishing a reasonable price quickly is doubly important to families who have to sell their home rapidly because they are leaving the city or because they've bought another home. Studies show a strong correlation between listing price and the time it takes to make a sale.

Homes that sell in an average time of 46 days are usually put on the market at a price of 4 to 6 per cent above the final selling price. Homes listed that are offered only 2 per cent higher than their actual selling price are sold in 33 days.

"On the other hand, homes put on the market overpriced by 10 per cent are still on the market after 60 days," said the executives.

Homeowners are advised to be realistic when pricing their homes.

"No matter how good the salesmanship, a family will not receive more for their home than the home is worth," they said.

This is one of the key reasons the professional Realtor is eager to help the seller establish a fair and reasonable list price. The Realtor will compare the value of the home to be sold in the neighborhood. He'll list all the strong and weak points of the home which would make the property comparable in price.

REALTORS HAVE at their fingertips a permanent listing of recent house sales and often check these prior to calling on the prospective seller to list his house. These are actual sales prices, not asking or rumored sales prices.

"Buyers are more sophisticated today than they were a few years ago. They know what they're looking for and what they're willing to pay."

"Therefore, it's important for the seller to know that the proper price creates buyer interest; an improper price does not. The first step in the selling process is creating interest. If you fail to do that, nothing else matters."

Buying A Home? Answer These Questions First

Are you one of the two million families who will buy a new house this year? If so, the Chicagoland Better Heating-Cooling Council has a questionnaire which may help you avoid some pitfalls.

Noting that a home is the largest single investment most people make in their lifetime and the heating system the most important feature with regard to comfort, the Council urges prospective home buyers not to be careless in looking it over.

Is there adequate insulation? The federal government is seeking to establish new guidelines calling for more insulation in homes, thereby reducing fuel consumption. Nevertheless, homebuyers should check for themselves to see that the attic and walls are well insulated.

Was the heat loss calculated by a professional heating contractor? If not, the entire system may be out of whack. A professional knows exactly the right amount of equipment to install so that all rooms controlled by the same thermostat will have uniform temperature.

Are the heating outlets located near the floor on outside walls? Most homes with hydronic (modern hot water) heating are now equipped with baseboard heating panels mounted at ankle height on outside walls, especially under windows. This acts as a barrier against the cold and keeps the floors warm. Because hydronic baseboard is never too hot to the touch, it is safe for floor-length draperies.

Is there a minimum difference in temperature — about two or three degrees — between the floor and ceiling? Unless you enjoy the hot head-cold ankle syndrome, you'll want to avoid this situation. Tests at the University of Illinois indicate that hydronic baseboard heating permits only a slight temperature difference throughout the room.

Another point to check, says the Council, is the location of the thermostats. They should be on inside walls away from sunlight, heat and cold. Otherwise, they will give a false picture of the room temperature, and you will be alternately hot and cold.

And also, make sure the heating system is one you can grow with. The house may seem large to you now, but in a few years you may need more room. If the heating system is easily enlarged, you will be dollars ahead. With hydronic systems, finger-size tubing can be snaked through walls with a minimum of fuss.

Talman Federal Exhibit Depicts Chicago Growth

As a feature of its 50th anniversary celebration, Talman Federal Savings and Loan Association will pay tribute to the city in which it has grown from small beginnings to a $1 billion institution in an extensive four-week exhibit starting Thursday, June 29, in its offices at 5501 S. Kedzie Ave.

"Chicago Is Growth," as the show will be called, will be a panorama of scale models, photographic displays and other graphic material focusing attention on significant commercial, educational, health and recreational projects now in progress or on drafting board. It will offer Chicagoans their first chance to see all of these developments at one time under one roof.

Space on three floors of Talman will be given over to the exhibit. It will be open to the public through Tuesday, July 25, during the association's normal business hours — Monday, Tuesday, Thursday and Friday from 9 a.m. to 8 p.m. and Saturday from 9 a.m. to noon.

Dominating the exhibit will be models of four huge office complexes soon to give new dimensions and character to Chicago's famed skyline. Biggest of these, the Sears Tower, now rising on the west side of the Loop, will reach 110 stories and be 1,450 feet above ground level. It will be the world's tallest building. A miniature replica of "Big Stan," which Standard Oil Co. (Ind.) is constructing on E. Randolph Dr., will also be shown. It will top out at 80 stories and be 1,135 feet above ground.

Another significant skyscraper to be represented is the striking new 52-story One IBM Plaza on the north bank of the Chicago River. It was designed by the late Mies van der Rohe, one of the nation's most celebrated architects. The twin Federal buildings in the center of the Loop, created as well by van der Rohe, will also be represented in miniature. The first of these structures, the Everett Dirksen Building, has been in use for several years. The other is now under construction.

Progress in health care facilities will be shown by architects' renderings of the projected $91,000,000 expansion program at Rush-Presbyterian-St. Luke's Medical Center, west of the downtown area, and a model of the new Rehabilitation Institute of Chicago. Other models include Park Forest South, new "town of tomorrow" rapidly taking shape on an 8,300-acre plot of prairie land south of Chicago, and the new Governors State University campus, located in Park Forest South.

One of the most unusual of the area developments to be spotlighted at the Talman exhibit are the plans for the proposed rejuvenation of the 63rd St. - S. Kedzie Ave. Shopping district. They were drawn up by architecture students at Southwest City College and have the approval of the Chicago Lawn Chamber of Commerce. Four models revealing recent improvements and new features planned for the Lincoln Park Zoo will be displayed by the Chicago Park District.

Talman announced last week that it had passed the $1 billion mark in total assets. One of the nation's largest savings and loan associations, it now has nearly 213,000 savings and mortgage loan accounts.

USING A SHOVEL made with an aircraft propeller blade, Barbara Kovacs, chairman of BarKo Development Co., Des Plaines, breaks ground for a "fly-in community" eight miles northwest of Elgin. Four of the five owners of The Landings are (left to right): Richard Blankenship, Elgin; Lyle King, Freeport; James Griggs, Costa Rica; and Gary Kovacs, Libertyville. The fifth owner of The Landings is John J. Brittain, Elgin. BarKo will be responsible for site improvements on the 160-acre first phase of The Landings. These will include a 3,000 foot long asphalt, lighted runway which will be for the exclusive use of residents of The Landings and their guests.

Begin Site Improvements At 160-Acre Fly-In Area

Site improvement work has begun on the 160-acre first phase of The Landings, a "fly-in community" being developed eight miles northwest of Elgin. These improvements will include:

- Completing a lighted, asphalt runway, 50-feet wide and 3,000 feet long which will be used exclusively by residents of the community and their guests.
- Deepening and widening an existing two-acre lake and creating a second one-acre lake. Erecting 10 hangars which can house 10 planes each and preparing grass tie-down areas for additional planes.
- Installing a fueling facility for the aircraft and preparing the land and paving streets to serve the 120 residential lots which represent the first phase of the project.
- Building a community water plant and completing a clubhouse, swimming Owners of The Landings which is located near the Illinois Rte. 47 interchange on Interstate 90 are: John J. Brittain, an Elgin lawyer; Richard Blankenship, Elgin; Lyle King, Freeport, Ill., who operates a number of franchise food operations in Illinois and Iowa; James Griggs, Costa Rica, founder of Dog 'n Suds food operations who now has extensive investments in Costa Rica; and Gary Kovacs, Libertyville, former senior vice president of Dunkin' Donuts restaurants and president of The Landings Corp.

Site improvements and sales at The Landings are the responsibility of BarKo Development Co., Des Plaines, which is headed by its chairman, Barbara Kovacs. Sales of the lots — which will be available for as little as $14,500 — will be handled in the Elgin-Rockford-Aurora area by Towne and Country Realty which is headed by Peter A. DeBoer of kenship, Elgin, president of Archie Food

Improve House Wiring For Better Appliance Service

The thermometer soars into the nineties. Your air conditioner turns on and a fuse blows or a circuit breaker trips out. That's a signal that you have too many modern appliances for your old and outmoded wiring system to carry. You can avoid this annoyance by turning off all other appliances before connecting the air conditioner. Better yet — Commonwealth Edison suggests that you upgrade your wiring system.

Years ago a 30-ampere service was ample for the few lights, the refrigerator and a toaster which most homes boasted. It is entirely inadequate for the many appliances in use today. In a nutshell, all those appliances are calling for more power than can get in to serve them.

Commonwealth points out that a 100-ampere service is an absolute minimum to supply power for lights, portable appliances and most major equipment. With large central air conditioning system or electric heating, a 200-ampere service probably may be required.

Taxing the wiring in a home causes a drop in voltage with the result that appliances do not operate at their peak performance. Toasters, percolators, electric irons and ovens will take longer to perform their tasks; lights dim when motor-driven appliances start up; the television picture begins to shrink.

Eliminate the necessity of replacing blown fuses or resetting circuit breakers. Consult your electrical contractor. Have him survey your electrical needs and replan your home to have all the general purpose, appliance, and individual equipment circuits necessary. In addition to the convenience you'll enjoy, there's another important consideration. Overloaded circuits can be a safety hazard.

Oil Spoils Wax

Oil and wax don't mix. If solid lumber paneling has been finished with an oil-base product, either pigmented or clear, never wax it and never use a wax-base cleaner.

Real Pain Noisy Home Can Be

Excessive noise can — literally — be a pain.

An acoustical study reveals that human responses to noise levels approach annoyance at about 50 decibels (less than some air conditioners), rise to perceptible ear discomfort at 115 decibels (doorbells can register 100) and are classified as "very painful sensations" at 140. The University of Wisconsin survey, "Auditory Environment in the Home," also indicates that home noise is rising at the rate of five per cent annually.

Despite such findings and increasing acknowledgement of widespread sound pollution, it's unlikely that noise will be abated much — or soon. While government and industry work on the problem, it is possible for homeowners to "protect" themselves from the onslaughts of excessive sound in their own houses.

Basically, sound breaks down into two classifications: transmission (noise which travels through walls and windows to enter a room; and reverberation (noise that bounces off walls, floors and ceilings within a room).

One way to block transmitted sound is by "soaking it up" before it reaches the ear. Drapes at the window, carpeting underfoot can absorb sound. Walls can be sound-conditioned if they are properly paneled.

For example, tests by an independent acoustical laboratory show that prefinished hardboard paneling has a high resistance to noise transmission when used as facing material over partition walls built of commonly-used backup materials, such as gypsum board and mineral fiber insulation. It has a "good" resistance when used alone and without further backup material.

The noise control measurement for hardboard (its "sound transmission classification") was above 50 in some cases and as high as 58 in others. These STC ratings are within FHA recommendations for acceptable noise transmission conditions in living quarters. Noise reduction qualities were further improved when panels were installed with resilient adhesives.

The ease with which hardboard panels can be installed (as with "nail-less" adhesive applications) is one of several factors that make sound-conditioning with paneling practical. Prefinished hardboard is already recognized for its decorative qualities and ease of maintenance. The panels come in a wide range of woodgrain designs, colors and patterns, resist dents and marring, and can be damp-wiped clean.

Cites Demand At Colony Country

"The demand for quality housing is so strong," vice president Manuel S. Kramer, of Hollywood Builders, announced, "that over thirty condominiums in Colony Country on Old Orchard, were sold before the models were built and the sales office fully staffed."

Colony Country on Old Orchard in Mount Prospect is an $86,000,000 development on 230 acres bordering the Old Orchard Country club and will be the most luxurious golfing community in the country. The sales office for pre-viewers is at 650 West Rand Rd., Mount Prospect, under the management of Gene Gayle. Condominium model rooms are open for inspection and town house models will be ready soon.

Colony Country will have a variety of dwelling units to suit individual needs with 286 country houses, 532 units in four story condominium buildings, 1282 units in twin-tower high rise buildings. A club house with indoor-outdoor swimming pools, saunas, game rooms, hospitality room, exercise room, and tennis courts will form a center for social and recreational programs.

The 230 acre private compound, enclosed within the borders of Old Orchard Country club will be completely maintained by the Colony Country Club Homeowners Association. The ecology of the golf course, with its trees, fairways and ponds, will be protected by a fifty year covenant.

Condominiums begin at $31,900 and Country Homes at $53,900. The condominiums are one, two and three bedroom units in Essex, Brittany and Claridge models. The Country Homes are one, two, three and four bedroom units in Dorchester, Mayfair, Canterbury and Windsor decor.

Room Scheme

A good idea to remember — for natural light filtered of glare, use translucent window shades. They come in a tremendous variety of colors to suit every room scheme.

Grow Along Room Described As Boy-Proof

In planning a boy's room, today's practical parent automatically thinks in terms of furnishings designed to take a maximum amount of wear and tear. The room also should offer design flexibility and be able to "grow along" with its youthful occupant, believes designer, Clair Upton, NSID who created this setting.

Mrs. Upton selected boy-proof walls

Check Warrenty Before Making Purchase

How many times have you heard a salesman say "Don't worry about a thing, it's guaranteed?"

Great, you think — no worries. I'll buy it. After all, if anything goes wrong, it's guaranteed.

But guaranteed for what? Parts and labor? What parts and for how long?

The warranty conditions should be one of the most important factors in your decision to buy a certain brand of appliance. Don't be misled by such claims as a "lifetime" guarantee. Talk over conditions with the salesman and read the fine print. Landwehr's Home Appliances in Arlington Heights suggest you ask these questions also:

What parts are covered by warranty and for how long? Is labor covered? For how long?

Who stands behind the warranty, the manufacturer or the dealer? If a dealer goes out of business, be sure you aren't without a warranty.

Is the warranty in effect if you move? Do you need to mail registration card (some have a deadline for mailing) or save your sales receipt?

Must you mail a defective part somewhere to get warranty coverage? If yes, who pays for the charge of removing, replacing and mailing defective part?

Must an authorized agent do the work? If yes, what is his address and phone number?

There are certain conditions under which the warranty does not apply. These, of course, differ from brand to brand, but some are standard.

Warranties usually do not cover damage due to acts of abuse. If your three-year-old breaks the dryer door hinge by swinging on it, don't expect the warranty to pay for the damage.

The appliance must also be used according to directions in the owner's manual. If you turn a timer dial in the wrong direction and break a spring, the warranty probably won't cover it.

The warranty may not pay for malfunctioning due to inadequate house wiring or plumbing or failure to follow installation instructions.

Also, most warranties don't cover damage due to "acts of God," such as damage by floods. Your household insurance may cover that, though.

If the warranty doesn't seem worthwhile on a particular appliance, then shop around and compare. After all, good service and product reliability are critical to your satisfaction. And, if and when something goes wrong, you'll want coverage.

When Kids And Parents Clash

Cyndie Sherly Helps Them Communicate

by BILLIE BACHHUBER

Cyndie Sherly is well acquainted with "people problems." As a youth consultant with the Youth Services Bureau in Palatine — better known as The Bridge — she's heard them all: dissatisfactions at home and in school, drugs, unwanted pregnancies, dating troubles, the draft.

But Cyndie thinks most family difficulties really stem from what she terms "relationship problems." Having talked with family members from 3 to 85, she's concluded, "Family trouble comes from lack of communication, not a generation gap or how much money a family has." The same kinds of problems occur in a moneyed community like Inverness and a more moderate income town like Rolling Meadows, she said.

In dealing with young people who bring their troubles to her, Cyndie also becomes acquainted with parents and says she enjoys working with them as well as with their children. Though she does not contact parents unless the young people who seek her help give their consent, she is always happy to talk to the parents.

MRS. SHERLY, a graduate of Lake Erie College in Painesville, Ohio, with a degree in sociology, has talked to PTAs and other parent groups on family relationships.

This spring she moderated a 10-week group session for parents at Harper College. It was organized to give parents an opportunity to discover and exchange ideas, discuss their feelings and talk with others who had similar problems. The group read and discussed Thomas Gordon's "Parent Effectiveness" and books by Haim Ginott, child development authority.

While only women attended this pilot project, Cyndie said all of them, interested in being better parents, felt they learned a lot and were satisfied with how things went. This group has now disbanded for the summer, but Mrs. Sherly hopes another will be formed. Anyone interested may call her at 358-7490.

"PERHAPS IN THE FUTURE we can organize some encounter experiences, engage some special speakers and set up workshops for parents," she suggested enthusiastically.

Mrs. Sherly got into her present work at The Bridge after moving with her husband, Douglas, to Schaumburg two years ago. She was hired by the Palatine Youth Committee to help set up the Youth Services Bureau.

She had worked for the Opportunities Industrialization Center, a federally funded school in Erie, Pa., which gave job training to those from 16 to 65. Employed as a pre-vocational counselor, Cyndie also helped trainees with their personal problems. Her previous experience also includes working as a recreational supervisor for the Erie Park District and counseling and tutoring children in foster homes.

SINCE ITS FOUNDING The Bridge has grown from its original staff of three to nine youth consultants. Troubled youngsters call for help day and night, often just needing someone to talk to, Cyndie said.

Cyndie listens and tries to help. But she thinks many of the questions she's asked could be answered by parents. While not advocating a "buddy relationship," she believes deep friendship is very important between parent and child.

"Listen with understanding and be aware of what your child is feeling," is her advice to parents.

WHILE CYNDIE SHERLY'S main work is with young people who come to The Bridge, a youth center in Palatine, her job brings her into contact with parents too. She believes most unhappy relationships kids have with their families stem from a lack of communication and she tries to improve that.

Inequality Damaging

Let Father Do Some Mothering

by ALISON GODDARD

New York — If men had greater equality at home and women had greater equality in the outside world, both would be better off and so would their children.

This is the viewpoint of Jean Baker Miller, M.D., assistant professor of psychiatry at the Albert Einstein Medical School here.

"Men haven't taken the responsibility for what goes on in the family in a really deep way," Dr. Miller observes. They've been out in the "hard, cruel world" all day and think they should be left alone when they get home in the evening. "They feel they've already done their bit," she adds, "by bringing in the money."

Ideally, the psychiatrist declares, the men "should be struggling for a more equal role in the family although such involvement is no fun in many cases."

DR. MILLER suggests that the wife meanwhile concentrate more on her own personal development.

"Women have viewed themselves as

By concentrating all their drives and abilities on the family, the doctor points out, women established a certain leverage against their husbands. They could say, "See how little you do around the house. See how much more attention I pay to the children. See how much better I am. This led to a number of psychological problems for them and particularly for their children, the psychiatrist declares.

THE INEQUALITY between the sexes, Dr. Miller contends, is generally damaging to both. "It divides and distances men and women," she says. "It isolates them. They don't express themselves much with one another."

Much of this has recently been brought out into the open by the women's liberation movement, the psychiatrist notes

Before that, women feared they'd "make trouble" in their families or in their jobs if they aspired toward equality.

"They had this terrible self-doubt," she reports. "They personally blamed themselves for their inability to adjust to the situation. They felt so alone."

The new order "if it is to be," Jean Baker Miller asserts, will demand a number of adjustments by men. "They may now view women's aspirations as hostile and threatening," but these, she believes, "should not be harmful in the long run."

ACCORDING TO Dr. Miller, the ideal society should enable each parent to work part-time if he wishes to — perhaps five or six hours a day — and then share the family responsibilities more equally.

For women who have raised their families in the traditional way, "it's not easy for them to achieve a sense of their own value," the doctor asserts. To do so, they need to leave the confines of the family and "get both into action and interaction." They must move out into the world, the doctor explains, and begin to develop new concepts of themselves.

As they do this, and as they also interact with others, their self-image can begin to change and their confidence to grow. "Many more mature women can achieve this than believe they can," Dr. Miller declares, "but it's a tough thing to go through."

Auto Racing Gains Favor As Family Recreation

When the kids begin to drive you crazy because they're bored, and you can't think of anything new and different for them to do, and you're bored too — maybe you should try packing the family off to the auto races.

According to Mrs. Jeanmarie Fagan, public relations representative of the L&M Cigarette Co. which sponsors a series of auto races, the sport is "an exciting adventure the whole family can enjoy."

In promoting the family angle of auto racing for L&M, Mrs. Fagan travels around the country explaining to the uninitiated what it's like to go to the races and how to prepare for the day.

She suggests dressing casually and taking a picnic — as well as a beach blanket, suntan lotion, radio — much as you would for a day at the beach, which is where some races are held (Daytona, Fla., for instance).

Classes For Diabetics, Parents

Beginning Monday, July 24, Alexian Brothers Medical Center in Elk Grove Village will offer a series of four outpatient classes for diabetics and parents of diabetics.

The classes are held Monday through Thursday evenings of the fourth week of alternate months. Groups meet in the pastors' dining room on the ground floor of the medical center's main building from 7 to 8:30 p.m.

Presented by staff members of the dietary department and the education center, the series includes information about medical aspects of diabetes, diabetes emergencies, the diabetic exchange system, food preparation and eating

The series was developed under the guidance of the head dietitian in cooperation with the education center and a staff physician.

A nominal fee of $7.50 covers the cost of materials used during the course. All sessions are closely coordinated and family members are urged to attend with the diabetic at no extra cost.

Reservations for the series starting July 24 are required. They may be made by calling Alexian Brothers' dietary department at 437-5500, extension 480.

Scholarship Trays Awarded At Alpha Gam Convention

Lambda Undergraduate Chapter of Alpha Gamma Delta at Northwestern University was recently awarded two scholarship trays at the international fraternity's convention in Phoenix, Ariz.

Taking special pride in the presentation was the Chicago Northwest Suburban Alumnae Club, which is directly responsible for the chapter.

One tray was for achieving the second highest scholarship in the nation, the other for the highest scholarship improvement. Members raised the chapter's grade average from 2.8 to 3.5 in two years.

Six area residents attending the convention were Mrs. H. H. Barker of Mount Prospect, undergraduate editor of the fraternity's magazine, Mrs. Gary Sams of Lincolnshire, Province Six secretary-treasurer; Mrs. James Smith, Mount Prospect, Lambda Alumnae Club president; Mrs. Kenneth Roy of Arlington Heights, Chicago Northwest Suburban Club president, Paula Meister of Arlington Heights, treasurer, Eastern Illinois University chapter; and Nancy Blaine of Northbrook, affiliate at the University of Missouri, Columbia.

THE CHICAGO Northwest Suburban Club has locally distributed over $1,400 in the last two years on altruistic projects. Recipients included the Easter Seal Society, Clearbrook Center for the Retarded, The Salvation Army Homemakers Service, Samuel Kirk Center and Little City.

In addition, time has been donated in making classroom teaching materials for Clearbrook and in volunteer service at various local hospitals.

Founded at Syracuse University in 1904, Alpha Gamma Delta was one of the first social fraternities to adopt an altruistic project. It provides training grants for individuals working with children with learning disabilities and sponsors an annual symposium for cleft palate research. In 1962 the women established a cleft palate research library at the Hearing and Speech Center of Syracuse University.

The Potting Shed

by Mary B. Good

Inchworms have been a particular pest in the area this year.

I knew they would be so last fall when I took a walk through the Forest Preserve and heard an ungodly crunch, crunch, crunch and saw literally thousands of the things dangling from the trees and devouring the leaves — like Sherman's March to the Sea.

There is an organic product that can help homeowners and municipal officials and nurserymen stop the invasion, and do it with complete safety to pets, birds, and friendly insects, as well as themselves.

THURICIDE GIVES inchworms the ulcers. It is a stomach-destructive bacterium, and the approach is biological warfare. This interesting avenue of science involves giving the bug the bug. Like humans, insects get sick with virus, protozoa, fungi and bacteria. Scientists are now isolating close to 2,000 diseases of insects to a point where highly skilled production methods can manufacture these diseases. In this day and age, harmful bugs haven't got much of a chance! (Thuricide is distributed by the George Ball Seed Co., West Chicago.)

How's your fern? A scientist in Slippery Rock, Pa., is doing research to discover the insect-resistant element in ferns. Think about it — have you ever seen a buggy fern? And did you ever notice that the ground cover of our conifer forests is largely fern? Maybe ferns do have a thing going with the trees. Hmmm, sounds intriguing!

A few tips for summer: If grass stains are a problem, rubbing alcohol removes them from cotton and colorfast material. Follow with regular washing.

WHAT CAUSES perennials to rot out? Too much moisture and poor drainage.

Don't keep your portable plastic pools on the lawn for any length of time. If your pool is cumbersome, dig up the sod underneath before getting your water legs. Take it from one who has had the experience. The smell of suffocated, rotting grass is no rose garden, and the odor takes weeks to dissipate.

The home gardener can take a tip on storage of seeds from the pros, if he has valuable leftover seeds to keep until next planting season. Store in a sealed container in as low a temperature short of freezing as is available. (Got a spot in the frig?)

To protect apples and other garden goodies from birds the Animal Repellent Co. has an acrylic fiber which prevents the wild creature from reaping the harvest before you do. It's a lightweight, near-invisible, spider-like covering, which animals will not penetrate, and available at most good nursery or garden supply centers. Or better yet, plant a few sour fruits. Then the birds will stick their noses up at the sweets. (They have a "sour tooth.")

June Rites In Minnesota

Nearly every member of both families participated in the wedding of Sharon Eisefeld and James W. Goding on June 17 at Slayton, Minn. The date was the 37th wedding anniversary of the bride's parents.

The candlelight double ring ceremony took place at 8 p.m. in Lake Sarah Baptist Church.

Sharon had her brother and his three children in the wedding party and James his sister and two brothers. Both the bride and bridegroom's father sang during the ceremony.

Sharon is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Eisefeld of rural Hadley, Minn., and James is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Carl V. Goding, 1611 E. Columbine Dr., Schaumburg.

THE BRIDAL GOWN of Alencon lace was fashioned with a fitted bodice, square neckline, and its long straight sleeves had lace ruffles at the wrist. There were three layers of lace on the front of the skirt and nine in back that formed a train. Sequins were scattered over the lace and also on the Juliet cap holding Sharon's elbow-length veil.

Her nosegay bouquet contained a dozen and a half pink roses and baby's breath.

The six bridesmaids and two flower girls were dressed alike but in different colors. The gowns were of chiffon over taffeta with a midriff waist, gathered skirt and long chiffon sleeves ruffled at the wrist. Each girl wore a lace bolero and a headpiece to match the color of her dress.

MRS. AUDREY BERLIN of Rantoul, Ill., matron of honor, was in pink and carried a single large pink mum. The bridesmaids were Mrs. Sharon Koroshech of Baton Rouge, La., who wore lavender; Mrs. Pamela Olsen of St. Paul, Minn., in blue; and Nancy Cooper of Rolling Meadows, in coral. They carried single mums to match their dresses.

Mr. and Mrs. James W. Goding

Junior bridesmaids Cindy Eisefeld, the bride's niece from Avoca, Minn., and Bonnie Goding, the groom's sister, wore yellow dresses and carried single yellow mums.

The bride's nieces, Tammy Eisefeld, 3, and Renee Eisefeld, 5, also of Avoca, served as flower girls. Dressed in green, they carried baskets of multi-colored pompon mums.

The bridegroom's brother, David, 8, was ring bearer.

ANOTHER BROTHER, John, was best man, while ushers were George Oreskovich, Carol Stream; Tom Cappelen, Hanover Park; and Jim Stoez, St. Paul. Junior groomsmen were the bride's nephews, Randy and Ricky Eisefeld of Avoca.

A reception for 300 guests was held in the church parlor.

After a one-week honeymoon at Echo Lake in northern Minnesota, the couple are at home at 670 E. St. Charles Rd., Carol Stream.

The newlyweds both received their degrees from Bethel College, St. Paul, in May, he in mathematics and she in social work and sociology. James, a '68 graduate of Conant High School, now is employed by Goding-Sutphin Electric Co. in Addison.

Hazardous Home

NEW YORK (UPI)—It's safer at work than it is at home. The Health Insurance Institute says so, basing the statement on an analysis of National Safety Council data. Last year there were 2.2 million disabling on-the-job injuries — compared with 3.1 million disabling injuries off the job, many in the home.

Honors Go To VFW Ladies

Other honors went to the Auxiliary itself. Cancer program and youth activities awards and a 100 per cent trophy for membership were received by past president and delegate Frances Split.

Among local delegates at the ladies convention were Mrs. J. Mayer, Mrs. C. Dahlstrom, Mrs. H. Lundgren, Mrs. L. Champa and Mrs. F. Earnest.

United Stewardess Is Gregory Monti's Bride

A June 17 wedding in Galen Ferry, Conn., made Margaret Lee Hains, a United Air Lines stewardess, the bride of Gregory L. Monti of Arlington Heights. Margaret, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Paul W. Hains Jr., returned to her home town for her nuptials, but is making Chicago her home as Greg's bride.

His parents are Mr. and Mrs. LeRoy J. Monti of North Highland Avenue in Arlington. The Monti family went east for the wedding weekend, with the groom's two brothers serving as his attendants. Martin was best man and Christopher was an usher for the noon ceremony in Our Lady of Lourdes Church.

THE OTHER usher was the bride's brother, Air Force Capt. Paul W. Hains III, who came from Murphy Dome, Alaska, for the service. Margaret's sister-in-law, Mrs. Paul Hains III, was her only attendant.

The bride chose an ivory satin peau gown with a high neckline, Empire bodice and lantern sleeves. The lines of the bodice and sleeves were accented with Alencon lace studded with seed pearls. The same lace trimmed the chapel train of the gown.

A four-tiered veil flowed from a Juliet cap which topped the bride's long dark hair, and her bouquet was a nosegay of summer flowers in pink, white and blue.

THE MATRON of honor appeared in a softly printed gown in shades of lavender, pink, blue and white. She carried a basket of flowers in the same shades as the bride's.

After the ceremony there was a reception for 100 guests at the Commissioned Officers Club at Groton, Conn., submarine base. The couple honeymooned for 10 days in Jamaica.

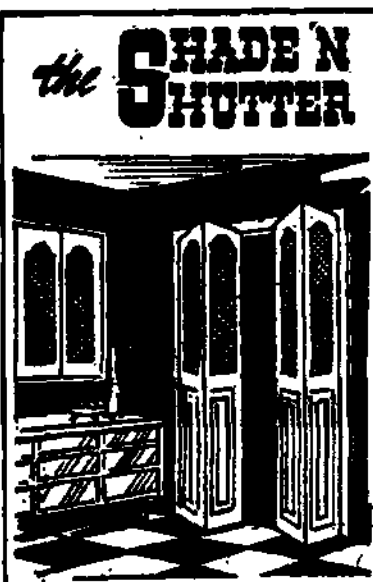

Margaret has been based in Chicago with United Air Lines. She is a graduate

Newlyweds Living In California

After a double ring wedding ceremony in Palatine Bible Church, Alonza Maureen Chase and her husband, Robert Coleman Mace, spent a weekend honeymoon in Oshkosh, Wis., and then drove across the country to Downey, Calif., where they are presently making their home.

The couple met three years ago in Belmont, Calif., where they attended the same high school.

Alonza is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Dale A. Chase of 1410 Joan Drive, Palatine. The groom's parents are George W. Mace of Burlingame, Calif., and Mrs. Stuart Taylor of Torrance, Calif.

ALONZA MADE her own gown. It was a white polyester crepe, princess style, with a rose lace bodice and lace medallions applied on the skirt. The chapel-length veil was edged with a lace ruffle and attached to a petal headpiece of lace and pearls. The bride carried white glamellias and wore a pearl pendant, a gift from the groom, and antique gold filigree and pearl earrings from her great-aunt.

Matron of honor was Mrs. Arinda Dolter of Anaheim, Calif., cousin of the bride. Bridesmaids were Nancy Motley of Anaheim and Francine Chase of Keokuk, Iowa, also her cousins.

The bride worked for Cinch Mfg. Co., Elk Grove, before her marriage. The groom is with Superior Hearth Products in Los Angeles.

Pre-wash Spotting

Try using an inexpensive paint brush to spot cotton work clothes, play clothes, towels and whatever with a soap or detergent paste before washing. Heavy spots may need additional scrubbing with a soft brush, but never scrub permanent press fabrics. Even soft bristles may rough up the surface of no-iron blends. Just gently rub in suds with fingers before laundering.

The Home Line

by Dorothy Ritz

Dear Dorothy: I'm about to lose my cool. I've been smelling a certain odor and can't figure out where it's coming from. At first I thought it came from the painting we had done recently, but the odor seems to get stronger all the time. Can you suggest anything that I can do?

—Mrs. J.L.

Call in a pest control expert. Odors can be hard to track down. In warm weather, an animal spot might suddenly turn up in the carpeting. Sometimes it can be new draperies because the finishing process emanates a slight odor. And sometimes it is mildew where moisture has collected. Some have even had the unfortunate experience of a squirrel or other animal falling behind a wall or stuck in the chimney of a fireplace or pipe. At times like this, the best resource is a professional with a lot of experience in this line.

Dear Dorothy: My easy way for grating lemon or orange peel is to freeze clean, thick orange and lemon peel in sandwich bags so there is always a supply when needed. Frozen peel grates easily.

Mrs. Ora Jones

Dear Dorothy: Have you ever included in your column the admonition that one shouldn't mix chlorine bleach with ammonia? Such an action could release chlorine gas which is very dangerous, as you know.

—Martha Turner.

Umpteen times — but not often enough if it brings it to the attention of someone who didn't know. Even more dangerous is to mix chlorine bleach with toilet bowl cleaner.

Dear Dorothy: I think the reason Mrs. H.R.'s bath towels are not absorbent is because she is using fabric softener.

—L.G.

You may be right. Constant use of fabric softener could do that. Some young mothers report they skip the fabric softener about every fifth load of diapers for this reason.

(Mrs. Ritz welcomes questions and hints. If a personal reply is required, please enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope. Write to Dorothy Ritz in care of Suburban Living, Paddock Publication, Box 280, Arlington Heights, Ill. 60006.)

NECTARINE POTPOURRI SALAD

- |                               |                                       |
|-------------------------------|---------------------------------------|
| 5 or 6 fresh nectarines       | 2 cups cooked prawns, crab or lobster |
| 2 California avocados         | 2 cups cooked ham strips              |
| Lime or lemon juice           | 2 cups diced cooked turkey or chicken |
| 1 small cucumber              | 1/2 cup stuffed green olives          |
| 4 tomatoes                    | Lime and lemon wedges                 |
| Crisp western iceberg lettuce | Herb Dressing                         |

Have all ingredients well chilled. Cut nectarines in half, remove pits and cut fruit into slices or large wedges. Halve avocados and remove seeds; peel and cut fruit into thick slices. Drizzle nectarines and avocados with lime or lemon juice. Run tines of fork down cucumber and cut into thin slices. Cut tomatoes into wedges. Arrange lettuce cups on serving platter or tray (or put together a tiered unit as shown in photograph) and top with nectarines and all other ingredients except dressing, arranged in an attractive manner. Serve with Herb Dressing. Makes 6 servings.

Herb Dressing: Combine 1 1/2 cups corn oil, 1/2 cup plain or tarragon flavor red wine vinegar, 2 teaspoons onion powder, 1 1/2 teaspoons garlic salt, 1/2 teaspoon each lemon pepper seasoning and paprika, 1 teaspoon each dry mustard, sugar and plain salt and 2 teaspoons crumbled basil. Beat, or shake well in covered jar, until blended. Makes about 1 1/2 cups.

Sweet Success with Nectarines

The season for that spectacular summer fruit — the Nectar of the Gods — nectarines, is an all too brief one. From June, when the nectarines first appear in the market, till they make their plentiful, but quick, appearance in September nectarines can be enjoyed many ways.

It's good to keep in mind that there are many varieties of this ancient but thoroughly modernized fruit. Some are freestone, and some are cling. Most of the early fruit of the season will be small to medium in size and freestone. As the season advances, the nectarines will be larger and more elegant to look at — many as large as the largest peach — and of the clingstone variety. In using the clings for slicing, you'll get prettier halves and wedges if you hold the nectarine with the stem end up and insert a grapefruit knife into this end and cut all the way around the pit. Lift, pulling gently to remove the pit, then cut the fruit as you wish.

Nectarines are so superb eaten right out of hand, you may have trouble hanging on to enough to try all the nectarine recipes you've been collecting. Buy extras, and hide a few so you can introduce new joys of eating for this nearly perfect fruit. Because the nectarine is fuzz-less, it requires no peeling, although for the Torte you'll want to do a quick-strip of the skin just to make the nectarine easy to cut with a dessert fork at stand-up summer buffets.

NECTARINE TORTE CALIFORNIA

- Torte Pastry
4 or 5 fresh nectarines
1/2 cup apricot nectar
1/4 cup sherry
1/2 cup sugar
4 teaspoons arrowroot
Dash salt
2 tablespoons lemon juice

Prepare Torte Pastry. Set aside 1/2 cup dough for topping. Press remaining over bottom and up sides of lightly greased 9-inch cake pan. Dip nectarines into boiling water for about 10 seconds to loosen skins. Pull off skins and cut fruit into 6ths to make 4 cups. Arrange fruit cut-side up in pastry-lined pan. Shape reserved dough into a long slender roll, about 18 inches, and arrange around top in a scalloped circle, as shown in photograph. Bake on lowest shelf of hot oven (400 degrees) for 20 minutes. Meanwhile, combine nectar, sherry, sugar, arrowroot and salt; heat to boiling, stirring. Remove from heat and blend in lemon juice. After cake has baked 20 minutes, remove from oven, spoon nectar glaze over and set pan on baking sheet or sheet of foil. Return to oven and bake about 20 minutes longer until glazed and richly browned. Serve warm or cool, plain or with whipped cream or vanilla ice cream. Makes 8 to 10 servings.

NECTARINE CHEESE TRAY

- 1 (3 oz.) package cream cheese
1 (3 oz.) package pimiento cream cheese
1 cup grated gouda or cheddar cheese
1/4 cup crumbled blue cheese
2 tablespoons soft butter
Paprika
Chopped parsley
Chopped walnuts or pecans
Toasted sesame seeds
4 to 6 fresh nectarines

Shape small balls of cream and pimiento cream cheese. Beat gouda or cheddar with blue cheese and butter until smooth. If mixture seems a little dry, add a few drops of sherry to moisten. Shape into balls. Roll assorted cheese balls in paprika, parsley, nuts and sesame seeds. Cover and chill. When ready to serve, cut nectarines into wedges and arrange on tray with assorted cheese balls. Makes 6 servings.

FREEZE NECTARINES FOR WINTER ENJOYMENT!

It's simple. Just peel and slice firm, ripe nectarines. Add sugar and lemon juice to taste. Mix and spoon into freezer bags or jars. Seal and freeze immediately to preserve flavor and color. Thaw in container, without opening, until ready to serve.

Torte Pastry: Resift 2 cups sifted flour with 1/4 cup sugar, 1 teaspoon baking powder, 1/2 teaspoon salt, 1/4 teaspoon mace. Cut in 1/2 cup butter, as for pastry. Beat 1 egg lightly with 1 tablespoon sherry and 1 teaspoon grated lemon peel. Add to first mixture and mix to stiff dough, pressing together to form a ball.

Busy Homemakers Rely On Casseroles

Macaroni Tuna Casserole

Busy homemakers and working wives have found a way to prepare food for emergencies in advance. It's simple: just prepare two casseroles of the same kind at once. One is to serve for dinner immediately; the other to freeze for future use. It takes only minutes more to make the second casserole, and provides the main dish for a day when there seems to be no time at all for food preparation.

Macaroni, economical and satisfying, forms the basis of a tasty tuna casserole, with pimiento-stuffed olives giving that extra touch of color and flavor. Homemakers are cautioned not to overcook macaroni when it is to be frozen, as the longer cooking time later will soften it further. Macaroni products which have been frozen should be used within two months at the most.

Another good use of the freezer is for leftovers. If the family objects to eating turkey several days in a row, it's a simple matter to prepare a casserole with the remainder of the big bird, and then freeze it for later use. Our second recipe for a turkey and noodle casserole is a good one for freezing.

MACARONI TUNA TWIN CASSEROLES

- 2 tablespoons salt
- 4 to 6 quarts boiling water
- 4 cups elbow macaroni (1 pound)
- 2 cans (16 ounces each) green peas
- 1/2 cup butter or margarine
- 1/2 cup flour
- 2 teaspoons salt
- 1/4 teaspoon pepper
- 1/4 teaspoon dry mustard
- 1 quart milk
- 3/4 cup sliced pimiento-

- stuffed olives
- 1 1/2 cups grated sharp Cheddar cheese
- 3 cans (6 1/2 to 7 ounces each) tuna, drained
- Cheese Crumb Topping

Add 2 tablespoons salt to rapidly boiling water. Gradually add macaroni so that water continues to boil. Cook uncovered, stirring occasionally, until tender. Drain in colander.

Meanwhile, drain peas; reserve 1 cup liquid. In saucepan melt butter over medium heat; stir in flour, seasonings. Gradually stir in milk and reserved liquid. Cook and stir until sauce boils 1 minute. Add olives and cheese; stir until cheese is melted.

For immediate use: Gently mix half of sauce with half of each; macaroni, peas and tuna. Turn into 2-quart casserole; sprinkle with Cheese Crumb Topping. Bake in 375-degree oven 20 to 25 minutes.

For future use: Cool remaining macaroni and sauce quickly; gently mix with peas and tuna. Turn into 2-quart casserole lined with heavy duty foil (allowing extra foil for fold). Seal with double fold. Freeze; remove casserole. When ready to use, remove foil — replace in casserole. Cover; bake unfrozen in 350 degree oven 1 hour. Uncover; sprinkle with Cheese Crumb Topping; continue baking 30 minutes or until bubbling hot. Makes 2 casseroles, 4 to 6 servings each.

To prepare Cheese Crumb Topping for each casserole: Mix together 1/4 cup grated sharp Cheddar cheese, 2 tablespoons dry bread crumbs and 1 tablespoon melted butter or margarine.

Note: Salt loses flavor on freezing; increase salt to taste for freezer casserole.

TURKEY AND NOODLE CASSEROLE

- 1 tablespoon salt
- 3 quarts boiling water
- 8 ounces medium egg noodles (about 4 cups)
- 1 medium onion, chopped
- 2 tablespoons chopped green pepper
- 1/4 cup butter or margarine
- 1 can (6 ounces) sliced mushrooms
- 1 package (10 ounces) frozen peas and carrots
- 1/4 teaspoon crushed thyme
- 1/4 teaspoon pepper
- 2 cans (10 1/2 ounces each) condensed cream of mushroom soup
- 3 cups cubed, cooked turkey
- 1 cup turkey stock or chicken bouillon
- Salt to taste

Add 1 tablespoon salt to rapidly boiling water. Gradually add noodles so that water continues to boil. Cook uncovered, stirring occasionally, until tender. Drain in colander.

Meanwhile, over low heat cook onion and green pepper in heated butter about 3 minutes. Add liquid from mushrooms, peas and carrots, thyme and pepper. Cover and cook 7 to 10 minutes, until vegetables are tender. Stir in soup until smooth. Gently mix in turkey, stock, mushrooms and noodles. Add salt if needed. Cool quickly. Turn into 3 1/2 quart casserole lined with heavy foil (allowing extra foil for fold). Seal with double fold. Freeze; remove casserole.

To serve, remove foil; replace in casserole. Cover; bake unfrozen in 350 degree oven 1 1/2 hours. Uncover; bake 30 minutes longer or until bubbling hot. Garnish with parsley, if desired.

Highland Lassies Prepare Progressive Dinner For The Lads

Eight young ladies recently prepared a four-course, progressive dinner for six lads. The young people, ranging in age from 13 to 16-years, are members of the Highland Lads and Lassies 4-H club.

The girls have been working on food projects and decided that it would be fun to put their talents to the test. Serving each course at a different home added more interest to the four-course dinner which lasted four hours.

Three girls were responsible for planning and preparation of the main course. Susan Cage provided the salad and the remaining girls worked in teams of two. Linda Simmons, Palatine, and Cindy Strunk, Arlington Heights, welcomed the group for fruit punch and appetizers. They provided a sweet sour sauce for dunking grapes, rolled pieces of ham, maraschino cherries and pineapple chunks.

Tomato juice cocktail and tossed salad, with homemade French dressing was waiting when the group arrived at Miss Cage's home in Rolling Meadows.

Nina and Sue Novak and Marilyn Moore, all of Arlington Heights, served lasagna at the next stop. The lasagna was made early in the day so the cooks could enjoy dinner with the rest of the group.

A strawberry dessert was Nancy Ernst's and Ellen Pearson's contribution to the dinner. Pound cake, nuts and mints accompanied the dessert served at the Ernst home in Arlington Heights.

LASAGNA

- 1 pound lasagna noodles
- 1 pound Ricotta cheese
- 3 eggs, beaten
- 2 packages spaghetti sauce mix
- 2 pounds ground beef
- 1 1/2-2 pounds Mozzarella cheese, Parmesan cheese
- Parsley, dried or fresh, chopped
- Boil lasagna noodles in 4 quarts salted water, to which 1 tablespoon oil has been added, 15 minutes; drain.

Mix Ricotta, eggs and 1/3 of the Mozzarella, grated, with a small amount of Parmesan cheese and parsley. Set aside.

Brown ground beef, drain. Season with salt, pepper and dash of basil. Prepare spaghetti sauce according to package directions and add seasoned, browned, meat.

Assemble in a 9x13-inch pan by slightly covering the bottom of pan with sauce, then alternating layers of noodles, Ricotta mixture, noodles and meat sauce. Final layer should be noodles covered with sliced Mozzarella cheese. Drizzle a little sauce on the top and garnish with Parmesan and parsley. Bake 45 minutes at 350 degrees.

Lasagna may be made early in the day and refrigerated.

STRAWBERRY DESSERT

- 2 small boxes frozen strawberries, thawed
- 1 package (6-oz.) strawberry gelatin
- 1 angel food cake
- Small carton whipping cream, whipped
- Strawberries for garnish
- Drain strawberries, reserving juice. Prepare gelatin according to package directions, using the strawberry juice for partial liquid. Refrigerate until thickened, then whip. Add whipped cream and strawberries to whipped gelatin.

Tear up angel food cake and place in 9x13-inch pan. Pour gelatin mixture over cake and refrigerate until ready to serve. Garnish each piece with fresh strawberries.

Campers Urged To Protect Natural Resources

Food safety has a double meaning for outdoor cooks, who should be just as concerned with ecology as they are with edibility.

Fifty million Americans go camping each year, says the North American Family Campers Assn. Millions more are hikers and picnickers. Many leave behind a trail of empty cans and packages, wrapping paper and leftover food.

Detergent suds from their wash water pollutes lakes, rivers and streams.

Some forest fires are started by campfires left untended or improperly extinguished.

All this damage to the environment is as easily avoided as are food poisoning and stomach upsets caused by bad food handling practices.

Some of the best advice and recipes are found in two Sierra Club books, "Food for Knapsackers" by Hesse Bunnelle and "Cooking for Camp and Trail" by Mrs. Bunnelle and Shirley Sarvis. The club is a nonprofit organization for the study and protection of our natural resources. It has chapters in 35 of the 50 states.

Unsatisfactory dishwashing is one of the main causes of infection spreading among large groups of campers. Protect yourself by washing all individual eating utensils in a pot of hot, soapy water with a long-handled scrub brush. Rinse them with boiling water from a second pot.

DUMP DISH AND rinse water on the ground well away from streams, lakes or rivers. Brush-covered or rocky areas are best. They keep dishwater from running back into the water supply and make food debris less noticeable. In areas remote from garbage cans, scatter waste food this way to feed local wildlife. What the animals and the birds don't eat will dry up and disintegrate.

Edible leftovers should either be carried out or disposed of like garbage. Don't leave food in open shelters where it will spoil and attract rodents. Unopened cans with labels intact are not only safe to leave, but they also will be appreciated by hungry campers who follow.

Mrs. Bunnelle suggests that almost all edibles be repackaged in plastic to lighten knapsack loads. This advice applies equally to campers who travel by trailer or recreational vehicles. Plastic packages rarely break. Bags and rigid plastic containers often take less space than glass ones. Both stackable containers and bags are easier to stow in cabinets and refrigerators so they won't slide about or fall out when you're on the road.

In camp food storage problems can range from dangerous to life-threatening.

In bear country, never store food in backpacks near bed sites. Don't even eat in bed or sleeping bag. Even if the smell of food doesn't attract bears, crumbs can draw rodents that damage or destroy the bedding.

Food storage is safest in securely-wrapped containers stacked well away from bed sites. Cover the stack with heavy plastic such as a painter's drop cloth and weight the plastic with pots, pans and other metal gear.

KEEP A COUPLE of pots and a flashlight within reach. If an animal disturbs the food stack, the clatter will awaken campers who can chase marauders away by yelling, waving lighted flashlights and banging pots and pans.

An alternative is called "bear-bagging." Food that is not in metal containers is placed in bags the size of pillow-cases which are hung from tree limbs, high enough up and far enough out to discourage bears and other climbing animals.

Plan high protein meals if your trip involves hiking or other strenuous activity. Mrs. Bunnelle writes that ascorbic acid Vitamin C tablets may be needed if a beverage high in that vitamin content is not served daily. Salt tablets also may be needed, especially in hot weather, at the beginning of a trip and during strenuous activity. At such times, many persons need more salt than can be added to food without ruining its flavor. Salt deficiency can lead to excess fatigue, headache, stomach cramps and diarrhea. (United Press International)

Cost Of Convenience

How to help cut the food bill: "If possible and if you have the time, bypass prepared foods. Frozen dinners, fancy frozen vegetables, readymade desserts or easy-to-fix casserole items may be convenient, but you have to pay for the convenience. By preparing these items, you can save on your food bill." The tip is from Virginia Knauer, director of the U.S. Office of Consumer Affairs. It was given in a recent issue of her "Consumer News" which comes out twice a month.

There Is A Difference Compare Anytime

Economical Sardine Pate

An imaginative, yet low-cost appetizer helps a budget-conscious hostess impress guests with less worry about busting the budget. A Norwegian sardine pate with mini rye biscuits can cost as little as four and one-half cents each, depending upon current supermarket prices. The smoky flavor of the sardines make the creamy pate a rich predinner treat.

NORWEGIAN SARDINE PATE

- 1 can (3 1/2 oz.) Norwegian sardines
- 1/4 pound butter
- 4 hard-cooked egg yolks, sieved
- 2 teaspoons lemon juice
- 1 teaspoon chopped parsley
- 4 drops Tabasco pepper sauce
- 1/8 teaspoon unflavored gelatin
- 2 teaspoons cold water
- Paprika or chopped parsley for sides of roll

Draw sardines well and mash. Blend with butter, egg yolks, lemon juice, parsley, Tabasco and salt, mixing well. Soften gelatin in cold water; dissolve over hot water, following directions. Stir into sardine mixture. Refrigerate until mixture becomes firm. Turn out onto waxed paper and shape into a roll about 9 inches long. Refrigerate until ready to use. Roll into paprika or chopped parsley. Cut into slices to serve. Makes 1 (9-inch) roll.

MINI RYE BISCUITS

- 1 cup sifted all-purpose flour
  - 4 teaspoons baking soda
  - 1 teaspoon salt
  - 1/2 teaspoon soda
  - 1 cup rye flour
  - 1 cup dairy sour cream
  - 1/2 cup milk
  - 1 tablespoon melted butter
- Resift all-purpose flour with baking powder, salt and soda. Stir in rye flour. Mix sour cream with milk, stir into dry mixture, blending well. Turn out onto lightly floured board and roll to 1/2-inch thickness. Cut with small floured cutter and place on greased baking sheet. Brush tops with melted butter. Bake in 450-degree oven 8 to 10 minutes, until browned. Serve warm. Makes about 2 dozen biscuits (1 1/4-inch diameter).

Mrs. Andrew Gabbani

At 71, She's Extraordinary

by SOIS SEILER

Mrs. Andrew J. Gabbani of Des Plaines calls herself an ordinary woman, but in truth she is extraordinary.

At 71 years of age, she is as busy and boundless in energy as a woman half her age. She takes night school courses regularly, gardens extensively, has numerous craft projects going and dedicates herself to Saint Joseph's Home for the Elderly in Palatine.

Every Wednesday Ida Gabbani goes to the Home to bake homemade goodies for the residents. She uses whatever ingredients the Little Sisters of the Poor, who operate the Home, have on hand. One week it might be cheese cakes, another week cup cakes, or cakes or cookies or cobblers. And she also bakes bread rolls or pecan rolls for one of the home's six dining rooms each week.

"Don't glamorize me," admonished Ida. "I like to do something worthwhile, so pleasing the elderly is also satisfying to me and keeps me contented and happy."

Cooking comes second nature to Ida. She and her husband operated a lunchroom in Des Plaines for 39 years, and then Ida worked in the kitchen at Maine East High School until her retirement in 1966.

Widowed for several years, she was accustomed to being active and looked around for something useful to do. Upon joining the Auxiliary of Saint Joseph's Home it was natural for Ida to express an interest in the kitchen. When residents indicated a longing for home-baked goods, Ida took it upon herself to satisfy this request and she has been doing it regularly for the past six years.

Ida increased many of her own recipes to large proportions for the Home, and some of the favorites of the elderly have been Oatmeal Chocolate Chip Cookies and Sugar Cookies along with the yeast rolls.

Ida acquired the basic yeast dough recipe from a class at adult evening school. From it she makes crescent, butterfly, cloverleaf and pecan rolls.

The sugar cookies she made when working at Maine East, and the children enjoyed them as much as the elderly. They are crispy and dainty, and can be made to look especially pretty by using colored sugar instead of granulated white.

The Oatmeal Chocolate Chip Cookies are also crispy and quite flavorful. Ida mixes coconut into half of the batter for variety, along with chocolate chips and chopped nuts. Both cookies make a nice snack with milk or an appetizing dessert served with fruit, gelatin or pudding.

In addition to her cooking, Ida (in her spare time) makes stuffed Raggedy Ann and Andy dolls and clown dolls which she sells, turning the proceeds over to Saint Joseph's Home.

Arising at 6 a.m. every day, Ida is on the go every minute, yet despairs that she doesn't have enough time to do everything she wants to do. Included among her hobbies are outdoor gardening and indoor plants, sewing for herself, her sister and her grandchildren, playing the organ and knitting. Never wasting a minute, Ida takes her handiwork with her when she goes visiting. In addition, she takes organ lessons, plus a course in defensive driving at the Des Plaines Police Department.

She has a son, Kenneth, who lives in Des Plaines, and a daughter Jeanette (Mrs. John) Ralston, of Kingsport, Tenn., and eight grandchildren.

The recipes she has shared today are in family-size proportions.

BASIC ROLL DOUGH

2 packages dry granular yeast
2 cups warm water
1/2 cup dry milk
2 teaspoons salt
2 tablespoons instant potato flakes or granules
2 eggs
1/2 cup salad oil
1/2 cup sugar
7 to 8 cups all-purpose flour

Dissolve yeast in warm water. With a wire whisk, add dry milk, salt, potato flakes, eggs, oil and sugar. Then add 2 cups flour and stir well with whisk.

Change to a large mixing spoon and beat in four more cups flour, one at a time. Put one cup of flour on a bread board, turn out dough onto board and knead in the flour. If necessary, add the last cup of flour. Dough must be soft yet not stick to the board.

Turn into a greased bowl and cover with waxed paper and a tea towel. Let rise in a warm place. When double in bulk, punch down and form into cloverleaf, butterfly, round rolls or crescents. Place in lightly-greased muffin tins or on a cookie sheet. Brush tops with beaten egg whites.

Let rise until double in bulk and bake at 375 degrees until golden, about 15 minutes. Yield: approximately 40 rolls.

SUGAR COOKIES

1/2 pound margarine
1 cup sugar
1 egg
2 tablespoons milk
1 teaspoon vanilla
2 1/2 cups all-purpose flour
1/2 teaspoon baking soda
1/2 teaspoon salt

Cream butter and sugar. When well-blended, add egg, milk and vanilla. Beat well. Sift flour, baking soda and salt together and beat into batter.

Form into balls about 1/4-inch in diameter and place on ungreased cookie sheet. With a glass dipped in sugar, flatten each cookie. Dip glass in sugar for each one. Colored sugar may be used, if desired.

Bake at 350 degrees for 8 to 10 minutes, or until a light, golden color. Makes approximately five dozen cookies.

OATMEAL CHOCOLATE CHIP COOKIES

1 cup margarine
1 cup sugar
1 cup light brown sugar
2 eggs, lightly beaten
2 teaspoons vanilla
1 teaspoon baking soda
1 tablespoon warm water
2 cups all-purpose flour
1 teaspoon baking powder
1/2 teaspoon salt
2 cups dry oatmeal
1 small package chocolate chips
1/2 cup chopped nuts
1/2 cup coconut (optional)

Cream butter and sugars thoroughly. Add eggs and vanilla. Dissolve baking soda in warm water and beat into batter.

Sift flour with baking powder and salt and beat into batter. Add oatmeal, chocolate chips and nuts. Coconut may be added to half of the batter, if desired.

Drop by teaspoonful onto ungreased cookie sheet. Bake at 350 degrees 8 to 10 minutes until slightly browned.

RESIDENTS OF St. Joseph's Home for the Elderly in Palatine look forward to Mrs. Andrew Gabbani's weekly visits. Every Wednesday she arrives at the Home to bake yeast rolls for one dining room, and then an ample supply of cakes or cookies for the entire home — which includes about 250 residents. Mrs. Gabbani has been baking for the Home the past six years.

Mostly For Men

by Charles Flynn

A neighbor came in from his farm loaded with fresh turnip tops and dropped a couple of sacks in our kitchen supplying the main ingredient for a meal which brought back memories of early days on the farm.

While the greens were being washed we put a cured piece of jowl bacon in a large kettle and covered with water. You can use cured pork hocks or a ham shank just as well. Bring to a boil, then cover and simmer at least an hour to brew the pot likker.

In another pot put a large fresh pork hock. Cover it with water and bring to boil, then simmer with the lid on for an hour.

When the jowl and fresh hock have cooked add the turnip greens to the large kettle, cover and cook gently for 1 to 1 1/2 hours. With the fresh hock put in small new red potatoes (2 per person is minimal) and let them simmer while the greens are getting tender. Season both kettles generously with salt.

To serve slice the lean meat from the hock and some of the jowl bacon on a platter and surround with the potatoes. Serve turnip greens in individual bowls and set a crust of vinegar on the table for those who like this addition to the greens.

Good company for this meal is a large platter of sliced tomatoes and plenty of little green onions. In the South, the pot likker from the kettle in which the greens have cooked is served in cups along with the meal.

OF COURSE, you have to have cornbread and I made these interesting and delicious corn meal pancakes. Sift together 1/2 cup flour, 1 teaspoon salt, 3 teaspoons baking powder, and 1 tablespoon brown sugar.

Now add 1 1/2 cups white corn meal. I like the stone ground meal which is available from Country Store Products Unlimited in Hinsdale, N.H. but regular meal will be o.k. Mix dry ingredients well.

Combine 2 beaten eggs with 1 1/2 cups milk and 4 tablespoons melted fat. Add this to dry ingredients and stir until well blended. Heat a griddle or iron skillet and rub with bacon fat as you would for frying pancakes of any kind.

Pour batter onto the griddle into cakes of about 3-inch size. Turn when cakes puff and begin to bubble and brown other side. Turn only once for best results. This recipe makes 10 to 12 corn meal pancakes.

A diet handbook published by the nutrition department of Lutheran General Hospital, Park Ridge, is a helpful tool in following a prescribed diet.

The booklet, "Convenience Foods for Calculated Diets," lists brand name convenience foods with nutritional and portion information contained along with the listing. It is published as a guide for weight reducers and diabetics. It allows them to use a variety of convenience foods while maintaining prescribed diets.

The idea for publishing a convenience foods booklet originated four years ago when the department of nutrition responded to a need of their own hospital patients. Weight reduction and diabetic patients needed a guide that would provide some good sense, variety and convenience once they left the hospital.

The clinical nutritionists began research on the various convenience foods and their nutritional content. The foods are listed with their nutritional content in a convenient manner — according to the serving or exchange basis so that patients can easily see how some foods can be substituted for others.

The 18-page booklet is provided to the hospital's weight reduction and diabetic patients when they leave the hospital. It is also available to the public for $1 and can be purchased at the hospital or by writing Clinical Nutrition Department, Lutheran General Hospital, 1775 Dempster Street, Park Ridge, Ill. 60068.

Roadside vegetable stands are open now and chances are, fresh corn will be a dinner highlight on many tables.

Once purchased, cook the corn immediately or keep in the refrigerator and cook as soon as possible. Fresh boiled corn is at its best when dropped into boiling water and cooked only 5 to 6 minutes. Bake or roast fresh corn from 20 to 25 minutes.

To cook fresh corn-on-the-cob, remove husks from ears and brush off silks. Drop in a kettle of boiling water, cover and cook 5 minutes. Remove from water and serve with seasoned spreads. Allow 1 or 2 ears per person.

To roast corn in-the-husk, loosen husks on ears of fresh corn; remove silks. Pull husks back over ears and tie in place with string or strips of husk. Soak in cold water 10 minutes. Arrange corn in a baking pan. Place in a preheated 350-degree oven for 20 to 25 minutes. Remove husks and serve ears with butter or margarine.

To bake in foil, remove husks and silks from fresh corn. Place each ear on a square of aluminum foil. Sprinkle with salt and ground black pepper and top with a thin slice of butter or margarine. Wrap securely by making a double lengthwise fold on top of the ear. Turn the ends up and fold smooth against the corn. Bake in a preheated 425-degree oven 20 to 25 minutes. To serve, open the fold and turn foil back, crimping to look attractive.

A chive spread for corn-on-the-cob can be made by adding 2 tablespoons freeze-dried chives, 1/2 teaspoon lemon juice, 1/2 teaspoon salt and 1/4 teaspoon pepper to 1/2 cup butter or margarine. Mix well and serve with corn.

JANICE and Jimmy Musfeldt often assist their mother Ann by preparing their own lunch. Grilled cheese sandwiches are one of the children's specialties. Being a home economist, Ann has a special interest in food preparation and her children are anxious to do their share. Besides lunch they often prepare breakfast for themselves to help Ann.

Mrs. Lauron Musfeldt

She's A Home Economist At Home

by FRAN HECKART

A former home economics instructor, Mrs. Lauron Musfeldt of Buffalo Grove practices what she teaches. Kitchen organization, nutritious meals and good shopping habits seem to come naturally to her.

Ann Musfeldt's key is practical organization. She has developed her own work schedule, never wasting a minute, but still has time for golf lessons, bridge, Buffalo Grove Newcomers club, a gourmet group and other activities.

"I often load the dishwasher or mix a cake while talking on the phone," said Ann. "That way, I accomplish two things at once."

She feels that planning weekly menus around store specials is a simple budget extender. However, Ann never scrumps where food is concerned because eating well is important to her.

Saving coupons and buying canned goods when they are on sale helps cut food costs, according to Ann. She also buys seasonal foods and meats on sale.

Often times large roasts and hams turn up in tasty casseroles and sandwich spreads the second time around. "We never have leftovers," said Ann, "But I serve a lot of planned-overs."

Ann considers her large freezer a necessity. She always keeps it stocked with frozen salads, vegetables and appetizers. Meats, desserts and other foods can also be found in ample supply.

"I very seldom use mixes," Ann remarked. "It's usually just as easy for me to make things from scratch."

Ann is often assisted by her two eager children Janice, 7, and Jimmy, 5. Many mornings they prepare their own breakfast. Ann puts the electric skillet on the table and Janice and Jimmy cook their eggs. The children are also quite adept at making grilled cheese sandwiches for their lunch.

Ann loves planning and giving dinner parties but always keeps a canned ham in the refrigerator for unexpected guests. A frozen fruit salad from the freezer, vegetables and a dessert complete the "emergency" dinner.

The following recipes are from Ann's extensive recipe collection.

BACON BITS

1 pound bacon
8 ounces cream cheese, room temperature
1 loaf bread

Cut each bacon strip in half lengthwise. Trim crusts from each slice of bread and spread with cream cheese. Cut each slice of bread into 3 strips. Fold each in half and wrap pre-cut bacon strip around it and secure with toothpick. Bake at 400 degrees for 10 to 12 minutes. Cool. Freeze of refrigerate overnight. Before serving let rolls stand at room temperature 1 hour then broil 2 to 3 minutes and serve.

HAM CHEESE CUBES

2 tablespoons horse radish
2 tablespoons mayonnaise
1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce
1/2 teaspoon seasoning salt
1/8 teaspoon pepper
6 thin slices boiled ham
8 ounces creamed cheese

Beat all ingredients except ham until creamy and of spreading consistency. Place 1 ham slice on wax paper. Spread cheese mixture over it. Place another slice of ham on top. Wrap securely in waxed paper and place in freezer. Use the same procedure, "sandwiching" the other four slices of ham. About 1 hour before serving and still partially frozen, cut lengthwise and crosswise into 1-inch cubes. Pierce with colored toothpicks and serve.

Note: The cheese mixture is good as a dip without the ham.

CHIPPED BEEF CHEESE BALL

8 ounces cream cheese
1 teaspoon grated onion
2 teaspoons horseradish
1/2 package chipped beef, finely chopped
1/2 cup salted pecans, finely ground
2 drops Tabasco
Mix all ingredients and form into a ball. Roll in chopped parsley and/or nuts.

CHERRY BOUNCE

1 fifth whisks
4 cans red cherries, pitted
Sugar

Drain cherries overnight or until fully dry. Measure drained cherries. Put cherries in gallon jug. Add a cup of sugar for every cup of cherries. Add whiskey and about 1 cup reserved cherry juice. Stuff opening of bottle with clean cloth. Shake 3 or 4 times a day. Use in 1 month for after-dinner drink or serve over ice cream.

STRASBERG PORK

Wrap 2 pound pork tenderloin in bacon and marinate overnight in the following:
1/2 cup soy sauce
1 tablespoon grated onion
1 clove garlic, chopped
1/4 teaspoon sugar

Line shallow baking pan with aluminum foil. Place meat on rack in pan and bake 1 1/2 to 2 hours at 325 degrees, basting with marinade twice while cooking.

Meat can be covered with aluminum foil during last 15 to 20 minutes of baking time.

Serve with frozen fruit salad, baked or twice baked potatoes, and vegetable.

The Celery Story

Celery by its ancient name proclaims its virtue as a low-calorie food to 20th century dieters.

Wild celery was called smallage from ancient times until the first quarter of the 17th century, says the Western Growers Assn., a trade organization representing the vegetable, melon and potato industry of California and Arizona. Until then, it had been used only for medicinal purposes in the Mediterranean area.

The name was changed to celery about the time — 1623 — the French cultivated the wild variety for use as a seasoning herb.

A stalk of celery has only about five calories and 1 cup, diced, about 20 calories.

Chicken Wellington

Elegant Chicken Dish

With so many developments in the convenience food area, it takes very little effort today to prepare gourmet dishes we wouldn't dream of attempting a few years ago.

To be able to serve your family peaches all year long at a reasonable price is still one of the miracles of our age. No wonder we refer to canned cling peaches as one of the original convenience foods. Today more and more we're teaming this standby fruit with newer convenience foods as they become available. And the result is deliciously different and interesting menus. Chicken Wellington is a wonderful example of how modern technology makes it possible for you to present a gorgeous, delicate gourmet treat to family or friends.

CHICKEN WELLINGTON

- 1 can (16 ounces) cling peach halves
- 4 large half breasts of chicken
- 1 can (13 1/2 ounces) chicken broth
- 1/2 cup white dinner wine

- 1 teaspoon seasoned salt
- 1 package (10 ounces) frozen patty shells
- Thin slices Swiss cheese and ham, chopped

Drain peaches. Remove skin and bones from chicken breasts. Heat broth with wine and salt. Add chicken breasts, cover, and simmer 20 to 25 minutes, until chicken is cooked through and tender. Cool in broth and drain, saving broth for soup or a sauce. Thaw patty shells. Split each chicken breast lengthwise and insert about 1 tablespoon chopped cheese and ham. Place patty shells with edges touching on floured board and roll into a sheet. Cut into four pieces. Place peach half cup-side down on each stuffed chicken breast, enclosing it completely. Place seam side down on ungreased baking sheet. Bake in preheated hot oven (400 degrees F.) about 30 minutes, until nicely browned. Serves 4.

Apricot Mousse

Dessert tops off a meal and for it to be the perfect finale it should be chosen to suit the meal it follows.

After a hearty meal, a rich and heavy dessert could leave all the diners uncomfortable "stuffed." But, the same dessert served after a light meal would be just the necessary addition for a feeling of satisfaction after eating.

A dessert should not contain more of the same type of food served previously in the meal. So, don't follow a cream soup with pudding, Waldorf salad with apple crisp or a souffle with meringue shells.

When the main course has been on the heavy side and lacks the tangy flavor of fruit, plan to serve apricot mousse. It will round out the entire meal perfectly.

APRICOT MOUSSE

- 1 pound dried apricots

- 2 cups water
  - 1/2 cup granulated sugar
  - 1/4 cup slivered blanched almonds
  - 1 cup heavy cream
  - 3 tablespoons confectioners' sugar
  - 1/2 teaspoon vanilla
- In covered saucepan, simmer apricots and water together for 25 minutes. Stir in 1/2 cup granulated sugar or more to taste and cook, uncovered, for 5 more minutes. Puree apricots in blender. Let mixture cool slightly; stir in almonds. Whip heavy cream until soft peaks form; add confectioners' sugar and vanilla; whip until stiff peaks form. Fold whipped cream into apricot mixture. Pour into small serving dishes. Chill well. If desired, garnish each with whipped cream and slivered almonds. Yield: 8 to 10 servings.

$52,000 Will Set Up Center

Community Service Gets State Mental Health Grant

Elk Grove Village's Community Service has received a $52,000 grant from the state to start a mental health center.

Jordan Rosen, Community Service director, said a letter was received yesterday from Gov. Richard B. Ogilvie announcing that the grant was approved.

Details and stipulations of the grant were not given to Community Service. Rosen said the Community Service Board will hold a meeting once the details of the grant are known.

The grant would permit the establishment of a mental health center to serve Elk Grove and Schaumburg townships. These communities, along with Wheeling and Palatine townships, had been served by the Northwest Mental Health Clinic in Arlington Heights.

DR. EUGENE Trager, director of Northwest, had opposed the formation of the Community Service center, calling the move "premature."

But Dr. Trager said yesterday he was "happy for Jordan (Rosen)" that the grant was approved. He expects a gradual phasing out of his group's services in Elk Grove and Schaumburg townships as the Community Service center develops. His group will still serve Wheeling and Palatine Townships.

Dr. Trager said that Northwest was given a $175,000 budget from the Illinois Department of Mental Health. This is an increase over last year's $130,000 budget, but was not as much as Northwest had requested. Dr. Trager said the clinic had asked for $195,000, but he said the lower sum was "adequate to do the job."

Community Service's application for the grant was submitted in January. Funds for the Department of Mental Health were among the last of the bills passed by the Illinois Legislature last month.

LAST DECEMBER, Rosen said the Community Service was applying for the grant "for the geographic concerns of our citizens and in terms of population growth we believe it would be difficult for one agency to handle all the four-township area."

Pending details of the grant, Community Service had planned to employ a part-time psychiatrist, two full-time social workers, a full-time outreach worker and a full-time secretary. In addition, the grant would be used to purchase medicines the psychiatrist may prescribe.

The center would provide screening for potential mental patients, care for persons released from mental hospitals and outpatient counseling for disturbed adults and children.

SCLC To Study Extent Of Racism In Suburbs

The Suburban Division of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference (SCLC) plans to launch a study to determine the extent of racism in the Northwest suburbs.

Clyde Brooks, suburban SCLC chairman, made the announcement Tuesday night at a chapter meeting in Arlington Heights calling the study "an affirmative action program" to create a positive environment for residents of minority racial groups living in the suburbs.

The investigation is to include educational opportunities for minority students, industrial hiring practices and open housing provisions.

ALTHOUGH THE SCLC will investigate all area communities, Arlington Heights, Des Plaines, Elk Grove Village, Hoffman Estates and Schaumburg are among those singled out for an "in depth look."

"The need for the study is apparent, according to the SCLC, because of the increasing numbers of minority persons living in the suburbs and the expectations of more moving here due to the expanding job market."

After the information is compiled, appropriate recommendations will be made to affect institutional change, the SCLC said. There was no specific course of action revealed.

Brooks told the group of 20 SCLC members that there is a definite shortage of low and moderate-income housing within the suburbs. "We want low-rise, low and moderate housing on scattered sites in every suburb," he said.

SUBURBAN POLICE departments which lack minority group representation also is an area of concern, Brooks said and the study will include local law enforcement agencies.

He said information will be gathered to find out if local police departments receive monies from the Illinois Law Enforcement Commission and whether the police are in compliance with equal opportunity requirements.

During the meeting a discussion was held regarding the progress of the SCLC in the suburbs. A representative from Hanover Park alleged that Hanover Park Human Relations Commission is "not moving forward with the agreement for improved minority relations."

The SCLC said it will continue to pursue a solution to reported racial incidents in that suburb.

The SCLC intervened in Hanover Park two months ago when a cross was burned in protest of a black child moving into a neighborhood there.

THE CROSS WAS burned on the front lawn of the prospective home of Prof. Willard Williamson of Harper College who has a year-old adopted black daughter.

The family later moved into the subdivision without further incident.

Study Proposes Community Commission

Village Health Care Revamping Urged

A sweeping study of Elk Grove Village's health care and environmental systems was submitted to the village board of health yesterday.

The study, approximately 200 pages long, describes all public and private health services available in the village; lists all federal, state and local agencies connected with health and environment, and recommends goals and policies for the village board of health and other government agencies.

The study was first suggested two years ago by Jack Pahl, then village president. He asked the board of health for a study on health care in the village.

The board undertook the study at Pahl's request.

The study is divided into two areas, environmental health and personal health. The environmental health committee was chaired by Mrs. Donna O. Farley. Mrs. Patricia Bourke chaired the personal health committee.

ENVIRONMENTAL health covered land use, transportation, water problems, air pollution, solid waste management, noise and visual pollution.

Personal health covered non-governmental health agencies, manpower available in health agencies, mental health facilities, school health services, emergency health services, disaster planning and industrial safety and health.

One of the general recommendations of the study is that the board of health be restructured into a "Commission for Community Health." Under a community health concept, the commission would work with other agencies to cover all aspects of health care in the village.

The study calls for an environmental health division, "to protect the health and well-being of residents by correcting existing environmentally negative conditions and preventing occurrence of such conditions in the future."

THE ENVIRONMENTAL health division would manage land use, transportation, all pollution problems and waste control.

A personal health division would determine if the community is receiving "adequate and accessible health care available at a cost that all individuals in the community can afford."

The board of health will submit the study to the village trustees as a guideline for future action by the board. A tentative date of early September was set for the study to be submitted.

2 Firemen Are Sworn In, 2 More Promoted

Two new Elk Grove Village firemen were sworn in by Village Pres. Charles Zetek and two other firemen received promotions and took the oath of their new offices at the village board meeting Tuesday.

John Mergens, 110 Essex Rd., the first fire chief of the Elk Grove Volunteer Fire Department, was promoted from lieutenant to captain. He gained fire-fighting experience while serving two years in the Coast Guard and nine years in the reserves, and joined the Elk Grove Village Fire Department in 1967. Mergens and his wife, Celine, have three children.

Raymond Hohman, 221 Walnut Ln., received a promotion from engineer to lieutenant. Hohman was an original paid member of the Elk Grove Village Fire Department in 1966 and has served with the Chicago Fire Department.

Dale Banot, 25 Forest Ln., and Harvey Speiden, 160 N. Wood Dale, Wood Dale, took the oath of office to formally join the Elk Grove Village Fire Department.

Banot was graduated from St. Patrick High School in Chicago and served four years in the Air Force.

Speiden served as a volunteer fire-fighter for 10 years and a captain in the Wood Dale Fire Department before coming to Elk Grove Village. He is presently enrolled in the fire science program at the College of DuPage. Speiden and his wife, Andrea, have three children.

MRS. JOSEPH IZZO, Elk Grove, takes a peek at the instructions while her daughter, Therese, 10, crochets in class sponsored by the park district.

This Morning In Brief

Convention At A Glance

Sen. George McGovern tonight is expected to accept the Democratic party's nomination for the presidency, which was given to him last night.

As the National Democratic Convention draws to an end the battles fought Monday night over the credentials of key state delegations apparently told the tale of the convention as a whole.

Facing the assembled Democrats now is the lone query of who will be the party's standard bearer with McGovern, who will be the vice-presidential candidate.

Although speculation focused on as many as a half-dozen public figures for that key post, the one candidate who could please everyone remained aloof.

Kennedy Says No

Senator Edward Kennedy of Massachusetts remained unmoved to the appeal for his nomination to the vice-presidency and remained in his home state.

Although McGovern himself has made no public statement about possible choices for a running mate, he did say he would telephone Kennedy after officially receiving the nomination.

Sources said he will either ask Kennedy to join the ticket or ask his advice in choosing a candidate. Kennedy has repeatedly said he will not accept the second spot.

Governors Choose Mills

Governors who met with McGovern yesterday reportedly urged him to offer the position to Kennedy or Rep. Wilbur Mills, D-Ark., who had earlier announced his withdrawal from the presidential race.

Others reportedly being considered included Sen. Abraham Ribicoff of Connecticut, Sen. Thomas Eagleton of Missouri, Sen. Philip A. Hart of Michigan, Gov. Reubin Askew of Florida and Leonard Woodcock, president of the United Auto Workers.

Wallace Rejected

Tuesday night's mild-mannered and restrained discussions over the party's platform typified the tone of the convention. In spite of an appeal from crippled Democratic hopeful George Wallace, the convention routinely voted down the Wallace planks on the platform and turned instead to a moderate platform inspired by the McGovern forces — but not as dramatically revolutionary as some of McGovern's early campaign speeches.

For Wallace, the last hope of the candidate was still to hold out the possibility of entering the presidential race as a third party candidate, thus ensuring some unpredictable vote tallies in November.

Youth Stay Calm

Outside, the hundreds of spectators to the convention remained as calm as the deliberations inside the convention hall itself. Police reported only the mildest of disturbances, virtually no arrests and generally good deportment among the young people living in tents.

Security remained strict, however, particularly around Governor Wallace as he traveled through the city.

Chicago Firm Hired

High Schools' Wage Study Set

A study on the administrative salary plan and evaluation procedures for the 25 administrators in High School Dist. 214 will be conducted this summer by A. T. Kearney and Co., a Chicago-based management consultant firm.

The Dist. 214 board of education voted Monday night to hire the firm to study their salary and evaluation procedures. The study will cost $15,500 for its first two parts and may cost an extra $3,000 if the district decides to implement new procedure when the study is completed.

IN APPROVING the hiring of Kearney, the board turned down proposals from several other firms, including one from Arthur Young and Co., an auditing firm that is now moving into the field of management consulting.

Board member Richard Buchhuber urged the board to hire Young because its study would be less expensive if the district decides to implement new procedures. Young's estimate of $15,500 included helping the district implement new procedures if necessary.

Other board members said they preferred Kearney because the firm has more experience in the type of study the board wants.

In its proposal, Kearney divides its study into three phases. Phase one will involve drawing up job descriptions for all administrators, developing a salary scale ranking the jobs in order of importance and evaluating the fringe benefits program.

PHASE TWO WILL include studying the district's present evaluation procedures and suggesting changes if necessary.

The district may later agree to pay up to $3,000 for a third phase of the study, which would involve drawing up procedures for implementing recommendations made in phase two. The board will be able to make that decision later.

In other action, the board agreed to add $25,000 to the budget for the Educational Maturity Program (EMP) which has been run this year in facilities provided by the Arlington Park District, and a self-contained classroom program at Prospect High School.

BOTH PROGRAMS ARE for students who have behavior or emotional problems and cannot get along in regular classes. Asst. Supt. Rod McLennan said the district will try to find facilities that can be shared by both programs so they can share psychologists and social workers who will help teachers working with the students.

The board also agreed to change its policy on the pass-no credit grading option allowed to students. Under the change, students will be able to change their grading option from regular letter grade to pass-no credit during the first six weeks of a class.

Students were allowed the no-credit option, which means a class grade will not affect a student's grade average, beginning last fall. Last year, however, students could not change the grading option once a class began.

3 Elements Basic To Job Safety: Pyle

The machine, the man and the environment are the three essential elements that must be controlled to have absolute safety on the job, Howard Pyle, president of the National Safety Council, told Elk Grove Village businessmen Wednesday.

"It is the purpose of the Occupational Safety and Health Act (OSHA) of 1970 to set some of these guidelines to provide the safest and healthiest possible environment for every worker in the United States," said Pyle. He spoke to 120 members of the Village Association of Industry and Commerce at their luncheon meeting.

"Employers are becoming increasingly aware of health hazards in their businesses and other conditions on the job that can seriously affect an employee's well-being," he said. Workmen's compensation takes care of things after the fact, but the occupational safety and health legislation was designed to remove potential problem situations.

He said OSHA has been criticized for being too trivial in some of its demands on industry, such as the height of toilet seats, but in general the main points are what has been sought by the National Safety Council and progressive companies in the past.

PYLE SAID voluntary compliance with the new federal occupational safety and health regulations is needed. He said the drafters of the legislation stipulated that citations should be given by inspectors when they first see violations, to encourage employers to correct dangerous situations on their own.

"If a businessman knew he wouldn't be cited or have to pay a fine, he might wait until an inspector pointed out violations before making any changes," he said.

Pyle said a good safety program involved management leadership and participation, assignment of responsibility for safety regulations, maintenance of safe working conditions, a safety incentive program for employees and supervisors, keeping a record of accidents, providing medical and first aid facilities and acceptance of responsibility for safety by employees.

Pyle is a former White House aide and a two-term governor of Arizona.

Attendance At Summer School Called A Record

Students in High School Dist. 214 are attending summer school this year in record numbers.

School officials report 7,069 students signed up for first semester summer school classes, with the largest number, 1,431, at Hersey High School in Arlington Heights.

Last year, 6,382 students attended summer school, which gives students the opportunity to make up courses failed during the year or to get started early on the following year.

Enrollment is about evenly divided between academic and non-academic subjects such as physical education, music, drama and driver's education. Summer school will continue through the first week of August.

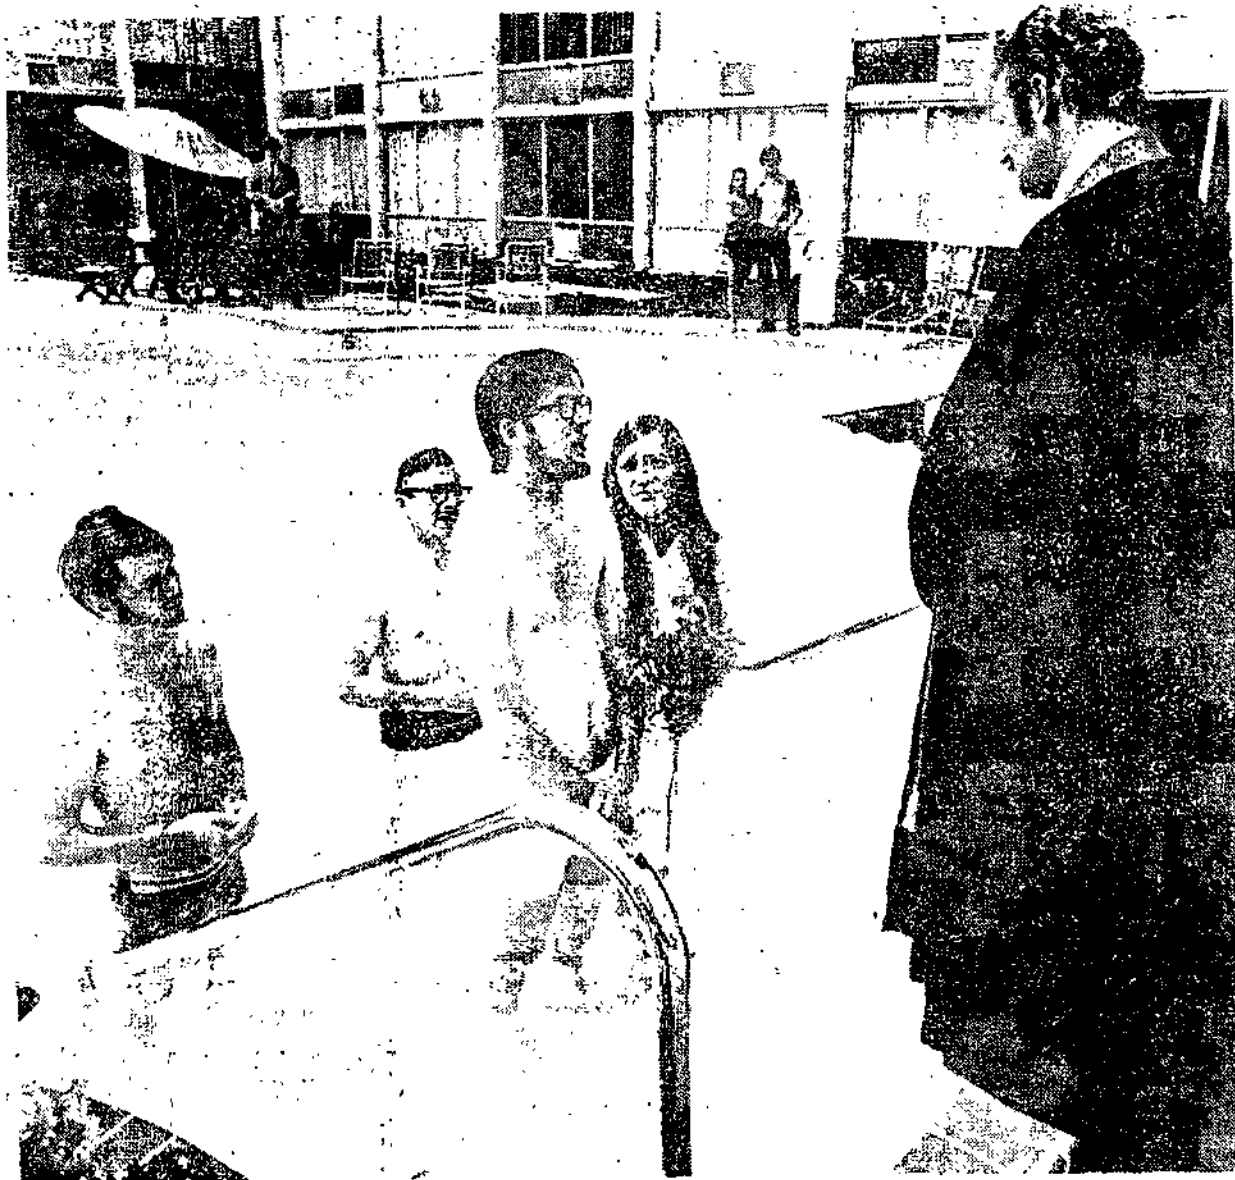

Included in the summer program are two courses that are taking the students out of the immediate area. One group from Forest View High School is working in Wisconsin building a house for an experimental architectural construction class. Another group, from Hersey, will spend two weeks near Mount Vernon in southern Illinois on an archeological dig.

THIS YEAR for the first time each school in the district has been able to plan its own summer school program. In the past the program has been coordinated on a district-wide basis.

The number of courses being offered has increased for incoming freshmen.

Besides their own, total enrollments at the schools are: Wheeling — 1,354; Prospect — 933; Elk Grove — 963; Forest View — 838; Rolling Meadows — 827; and Arlington, 611.

Students are not required to attend summer school in the school they attend during the year. However, school officials were unable to estimate how many students may have switched high schools for the summer.

They're Married In A Pool

by JOHN MAES

Jesse and Judy Tompkins will always have a soft spot in their hearts for the swimming pool at the Mount Prospect Holiday Inn. They were married in it yesterday.

Judy, of 72 Beau Ct., Des Plaines, a nursing assistant at Holy Family Hospital in Des Plaines, exchanged nuptial vows with Tompkins, 700 W. Rand Rd., Arlington Heights, yesterday morning while standing in waist-deep water.

The ceremony was fast and simple with no organ music or long bridal procession. The swimsuit-clad maid of honor and best man strolled solemnly along the pool deck and stepped into the pool.

Escorted by Salvatore DiGiovanni, manager of the inn at 200 E. Rand Rd., the bride emerged in a white bikini with a long white lace coat over it.

THE REV. Maurice Wright, of the Logan Square Baptist Church in Chicago (who said he forgot his swimming trunks) performed the ceremony from the top step of the pool.

After vows were exchanged, the newlyweds took a nuptial swim to the other end of the pool where they were greeted with smiles and champagne by guests and inn employees who had flocked around the pool to witness the wedding.

According to the new Mrs. Tompkins, the decision to be married in the pool came while discussing wedding plans with DiGiovanni, and it sounded like a good idea.

"This was just something they decided to do on the spur of the moment," said DiGiovanni. "I thought it was a great idea."

Rev. Wright said he had no objections when the couple asked him to perform the ceremony in the pool. He said he wasn't shocked at the couple's request — he once married a couple on roller skates.

Rotary Gives Hospital First $500 Of Pledge

The Elk Grove Village Rotary Club has given Alexian Brothers Medical Center a check for $500 as part of the club's $2,500 pledge to the hospital's $9 million expansion program.

Charles Willis, village manager and former Rotary president, presented Brother Ferdinand Leyva, hospital administrator, with the first of five $500 checks in June with remaining checks to be given to the hospital annually for five years. The money has been earmarked for an examination room in the hospital's planned outpatient department.

Willis said the Elk Grove Village Rotary Club, which was organized 18 months ago, chose the hospital building fund as its first major project because the members felt the hospital would have the widest community benefit of any project they could support.

He said the initial $500 was raised through member donations but there probably would be fund-raising activities in the future.

Human Side Of Social Security

Office's Clientele Is Varied

by JEAN CAFARELLA
Even staid governmental institutions like the Social Security office have their exciting days

"When I worked in Milwaukee we had a woman come in to collect a burial payment. She wanted us to hurry up because she had her husband parked outside in the hearse. She was on her way to the cemetery and decided to stop by while she was in the neighborhood."

So said Norman Thoresen, manager of the new Social Security office at 120 W. Eastman St., Arlington Heights. Sometimes the incidents are more serious.

Social Security offices occasionally get people who become so mad at the agency they assault employees. Many offices in Chicago have guards stationed there for protection.

"I HAD A FRIEND of mine in Green-castle shot and wounded by a crazy man who didn't get his check on time. This guy was 78 years old and had been in a halfway house for years," said Thoresen. "My friend was lying on the floor yelling 'That blank blank shot me!'"

Famous people sometimes come in for benefits. Former football coach Blanton Collier of the Cleveland Browns lost five months of Medicare payments because he didn't file with a Social Security office soon enough (like losing five yards for delaying a game).

The Arlington Heights office has only been open a couple of weeks and already is experiencing a communications gap. Just yesterday a couple fellows from Austria came in who couldn't speak a word of English. There we were motioning with our hands trying to explain that we needed their mothers' maiden names, birth certificates, etc. But we managed," said Thoresen.

"The Social Security offices do have some forms and literature printed in Spanish, but for most other languages the employees have to develop their own sign language."

"Mostly we get very nice people — reasonable, understanding — and everybody from the ditch digger to the college president," Thoresen said.

THE NEW OFFICE which opened July 3, is expecting to serve some 11,000 people in Arlington Heights, Palatine, Inverness, Rolling Meadows, Prospect Heights, Wheeling and Buffalo Grove. The office provides the same services as Chicago offices, but offers greater convenience.

Thoresen finds they get a lot of people who are looking forward to retirement. About half the beneficiaries in this area are over 65 and the next largest group is survivors and those permanently disabled. Common disabilities are heart conditions and terminal cancer.

A lot of young children are also brought in to receive a Social Security number for a new bank account or identification.

The armed forces have changed with the times. Name, rank and serial number is out. Name, rank and Social Security number is in.

THE NEW STAFF of ten has been kept busy. This week more than 35 people put in claims for benefits and more than 50 applied for Social Security numbers. Thoresen said sometimes it's harder to deal with intelligent and rich people because they make a greater effort to get as much as they can out of the Social Security program.

Social Security gradually has been expanding its service. They have set up a teleservice, which allows people to call the office and have their forms filled out over the phone. About 30 or 40 per cent of forms are filled out this way.

They also have expanded their efforts by including a referral service. If a person does not get enough money from Social Security or is not entitled to Social Security benefits, the office will tell him who to see for assistance. Often the welfare department is recommended.

"A lot of people just don't know where to go and they come here," said Thoresen. "Sometimes we help people find shelter or a hospital. We had a guy who asked us to find him a doctor closer to his home."

SOCIAL SECURITY benefits have also been increased by 20 per cent, beginning this September. The average monthly benefit for a retired couple would go from $224 to about $271. A widowed mother with two children will receive an average benefit of $386 a month instead of $322. All benefits received depend on factors such as the length of time a person works, his salary and whether he is disabled, widowed or a dependent minor.

The money must come from somewhere, and the average paycheck will have 5.5 per cent removed for Social Security instead of 5.2 per cent beginning Jan. 1.

Thoresen feels reforms are needed, and he would like to see the 6-month waiting period before collecting disability benefits either cut down or dropped. Social Security offices, however, can't lobby for legislation.

If a person lives long enough he can usually collect more than he pays in. A person who dies young and leaves survivors can have his survivors receive 15 to 20 times what he paid into the program.

"We have cases like a family with 10 kids receiving survivor benefits, or a 16-year-old kid who was paralyzed from the neck down in an accident getting Social Security money. You feel pretty good sending checks to these people," Thoresen said.

Columnist Anderson To Be At Harper

Washington columnist Jack Anderson will lecture at Harper College in Palatine July 25.

The lecture will be presented in the college center at 8 p.m. Harper students, faculty and staff are admitted free with their ID card. Admission for the public is $1.00.

Anderson, who recently made charges in his column concerning International Telephone and Telegraph Corp. and the Justice Department, continues to startle government officials with his exposures of "secret government documents."

Anderson was awarded the Pulitzer Prize in May for national reporting. The story that won the prize involved disclosures of administration policymaking during the India-Pakistan war.

Regarded as one of the most influential journalists in the country, Anderson took over the "Washington Merry-Go-Round" column in 1969 after the death of Drew Pearson, originator of the column.

ANDERSON says that he operates as a muckraker. To muckraker is to search out and expose publicly real or apparent misconduct of prominent officials.

When Anderson received the Pulitzer Prize he said, "The Pulitzer Prize is the Academy Award of journalism, so I have to be both pleased and proud to receive it. But far more is the significance of the award. This was given to me for exposing government secrets. The Pulitzer board therefore has recognized the right of the people to know what goes on in the back rooms of government and that's more important than any personal satisfaction I might have."

The columnist, son of Mormons, began his career at age 12 as Boy Scout editor of The Deseret News, a church-owned newspaper in Salt Lake City. He became a reporter on the Salt Lake Tribune at 18 and at 19 he served the required term as a missionary for the Church of Jesus Christ of the Latter Day Saints.

Anderson joined the Pearson staff in 1947 and now commands his own seven-man staff which produces seven columns a week for 700 newspapers. He is married and the father of nine children.

The Anderson lecture was selected by the Harper student faculty Cultural Arts Committee as one in the continuing series of events financed by student activity fees.

Faculty, Board Set To Meet With Mediator

by RICH HONACK

The Wheeling Faculty Council (WFC) and the Dist. 21 Board of Education negotiating teams are going back to the bargaining table — with the help of a mediator.

The two groups were informed Tuesday that federal mediator Ed Wise will meet with them at 10 a.m. July 27.

Wise's name was given to the groups by the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service. He is coming to the school district from the service's Chicago office.

The session with the mediator will be the first time in almost two months that the two teams have met. Their last meeting was June 8, at which time the WFC called for impasse procedures to begin.

AFTER SEVERAL verbal attacks from the spokesmen of both groups over the call for impasse and the threat of court action, the board agreed to the impasse on June 22.

The two teams are deadlocked over the entire financial package of the contract and three items in the procedural package.

The items in the financial package deadlocking acceptance are:

- Increase in teachers' salaries.
- Number of teacher sick days and personal leave days.
- Amount of insurance paid by the district for a teacher.

—Amount of fees, books and tuition for which teachers are reimbursed when taking advanced college courses.

—Professional compensation and related provisions for experienced teachers coming into the district.

In the procedural package teachers and the board are at odds over the following:

- The entire scope of the contract and what it includes.

- Whether or not fact-finding should be included in the impasse procedures.
- Whether or not the strike clause should be included in the contract if it is signed on a multi-year basis.

Representatives from both teams speculated yesterday that for the first time in the 1972-73 contract discussions the talks will be closed to the public. Since the third meeting all sessions have been open.

JOHN BARGER, chairman of the board team, and Larry Halter, spokesman for the WFC, said they believe the talks will be closed because mediators always work behind closed doors.

"I don't see how the talks will be open," said Barger. "But I've never been through mediation, so I can't be sure."

Halter, on the other hand, has been through mediation, and said it would be almost impossible to open up the talks.

The mediator usually separates the two teams and then goes back and forth between them — trying to settle differences and getting agreement in the problem areas, Halter said.

The first meeting with the mediator is expected to define the open issues and set up some type of ground rules as to how he will run the program. It is not known if Wise expects to get to the work of mediation at the first session.

According to the 1971-72 contract, Wise has 20 days from the time the two teams agree on him as the mediator in which to settle the dispute. If he does not do so in the allotted time the talks will go to fact-finding, and a fact-finder will be brought into the bargaining.

The two teams are expected to make a concession in the 20-day clause, because if they strictly adhere to it Wise will have only four days to try to bring them together.

Both Barger and Halter feel something will be worked out to give Wise more time.

The July 27 meeting will be in the Dist. 21 Administration Building, 999 W. Dundee Rd., Wheeling.

AS THOUGH SHE COULD taste what she is cutting out, Brenda Rudolphi concentrates on her work during the Wheeling Library Summer Program for children. The library is sponsoring all types of summer programs to keep children occupied while not in school and to help them become acquainted with the library as a means of education. Children may register and take part in these programs at the Wheeling Library, 850 Jenkins Ct., Wheeling.

Village Wants To Keep Fireworks

Although officials in several nearby communities are considering a clampdown on Fourth of July fireworks, people in Wheeling seem to like the traditional displays.

"It's just been the past few years we've been getting into this," Fire Chief Bernard Koepfen said. "But there have been no mishaps here. Everyone seems to enjoy it."

Koepfen said he has received no complaints about the fireworks from Wheeling residents. He added, however, that there is a movement in the state to ban all fireworks.

"If the ball starts rolling, I'm sure we'll follow it," he said.

THE WHEELING Jaycees, who sponsor the annual display at the Wheeling High School stadium, are also happy with the fireworks. "We plan on continuing the fireworks as long as we're able," said Tony Altieri, Jaycee president.

Altieri said the Jaycees take extra precautions in setting up the displays so that no one will be injured. This year the Jaycees who set off the fireworks attended a training session sponsored by the company that made the displays.

A fire truck and engine company are always on hand at the fireworks. The Jaycees also cover the unused fireworks with asbestos cloth to protect them from sparks until they are fired.

The Jaycees said they provide strict crowd control. "We keep them well back from the firing area," Altieri said. "We don't allow anybody within 50 to 100 yards. This is the area of greatest danger."

TWO CHILDREN were injured by fireworks this year in Mount Prospect. A nine-year-old suffered an eye injury when he was struck by an exploding firecracker, and a 14-year-old was burned in an explosion.

In response to these injuries, several Mount Prospect officials are looking into the safety and legal aspects of fireworks.

One man was killed and eight others injured in Wauconda on July 4 when a device exploded in a crowd of spectators. In Brookfield, a man was seriously burned when sparks ignited a pile of fireworks.

Last week, Elk Grove Village Fire Chief Allen Hulet asked the village board to ban community fireworks displays before there is a serious injury or someone is killed.

Local Teacher-Salary Talks Begin

Prospect Heights Educational Association (PHEA) negotiators accepted a Dist. 23 school board proposal giving district teachers 10 sick days plus two personal days leave per year at salary talks Tuesday.

The session marked the beginning of salary negotiations between the two teams and the first bargaining session since the PHEA agreed to accept its professional negotiations (PN) agreement June 15.

The salary package includes recommendations for pay hikes with merit increases, starting teacher's salary, raises for increased education along with extra class and duty pay.

The sick leave proposal, one of nine package items was the only one agreed on last night however.

The PHEA is asking a pay hike of 5.5 per cent plus merit increases of $800 yearly for superior, $600 for above average and $400 for competent teachers plus a proportionate 5.5 per cent wage increase for starting teachers.

THE PAY hike question was not resolved however because the recommended raise plus the merit increases exceed a 5.5 per cent ceiling set for wage hikes by the federal government.

According to board negotiator Donald McKay, any proposed wage hike over 5.5 per cent must be reviewed by the Internal Revenue Service (IRS). "We can't just approve a higher pay hike without IRS consent."

Larry Halter, PHEA spokesman feels Dist. 23 should qualify for the pay boost plus merit raises.

This Morning In Brief

Convention At A Glance

Sen. George McGovern tonight is expected to accept the Democratic party's nomination for the presidency, which was given to him last night.

As the National Democratic Convention draws to an end the battles fought Monday night over the credentials of key state delegations apparently told the tale of the convention as a whole.

Facing the assembled Democrats now is the lone query of who will be the party's standard bearer with McGovern; who will be the vice-presidential candidate.

Although speculation focused on as many as a half-dozen public figures for that key post, the one candidate who could please everyone remained aloof.

Kennedy Says No

Senator Edward Kennedy of Massachusetts remained unmoved to the appeal for his nomination to the vice-presidency and remained in his home state.

Although McGovern himself has made no public statement about possible choices for a running mate, he did say he would telephone Kennedy after officially receiving the nomination.

Sources said he will either ask Kennedy to join the ticket or ask his advice in choosing a candidate. Kennedy has repeatedly said he will not accept the second spot.

Governors Choose Mills

Governors who met with McGovern yesterday reportedly urged him to offer the position to Kennedy or Rep. Wilbur Mills, D-Ark., who had earlier announced his withdrawal from the presidential race.

Others reportedly being considered included Sen. Abraham Ribicoff of Connecticut, Sen. Thomas Eagleton of Missouri, Sen. Philip A. Hart of Michigan, Gov. Reubin Askew of Florida and Leonard Woodcock, president of the United Auto Workers.

Wallace Rejected

Tuesday night's mild-mannered and restrained discussions over the party's platform typified the tone of the convention. In spite of an appeal from crippled Democratic hopeful George Wallace, the convention routinely voted down the Wallace planks on the platform and turned instead to a moderate platform inspired by the McGovern forces — but not as dramatically revolutionary as some of McGovern's early campaign speeches.

For Wallace, the last hope of the candidate was still to hold out the possibility of entering the presidential race as a third party candidate, thus ensuring some unpredictable vote tallies in November.

Youth Stay Calm

Outside, the hundreds of spectators to the convention remained as calm as the deliberations inside the convention hall itself. Police reported only the mildest of disturbances, virtually no arrests and generally good deportment among the young people living in tents.

Security remained strict, however, particularly around Governor Wallace as he traveled through the city.

They're Married In A Pool

by JOHN MAES

Jesse and Judy Tompkins will always have a soft spot in their hearts for the swimming pool at the Mount Prospect Holiday Inn. They were married in it yesterday.

Judy of 72 Beau Ct., Des Plaines, a nursing assistant at Holy Family Hospital in Des Plaines, exchanged nuptial vows with Tompkins, 700 W. Rand Rd., Arlington Heights, yesterday morning while standing in waist deep water.

The ceremony was fast and simple with no organ music or long bridal procession. The swimsuit-clad maid of honor and best man strolled solemnly along the pool deck and stepped into the pool.

Escorted by Salvatore DiGiovanni, manager of the inn at 200 E. Rand Rd., the bride emerged in a white bikini with a long white lace coat over it.

THE REV. Maurice Wright of the Logan Square Baptist Church in Chicago (who said he forgot his swimming trunks) performed the ceremony from the top step of the pool.

After vows were exchanged the newlyweds took a nuptial swim to the other end of the pool where they were greeted with smiles and champagne by guests and inn employees who had flocked around the pool to witness the wedding. According to the new Mrs. Tompkins, the decision to be married in the pool came while discussing wedding plans with DiGiovanni, and it sounded like a good idea.

This was just something they decided to do on the spur of the moment," said DiGiovanni. "I thought it was a great idea."

Rev. Wright said he had no objections when the couple asked him to perform the ceremony in the pool. He said he wasn't shocked at the couple's request — he once married a couple on roller skates.

SCLC Plans Suburb Racism Study

The Suburban Division of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference (SCLC) plans to launch a study to determine the extent of racism in the Northwest suburbs.

Clyde Brooks, suburban SCLC chairman, made the announcement Tuesday night at a chapter meeting in Arlington Heights calling the study "an affirmative action program to create a positive environment for residents of minority racial groups living in the suburbs."

The investigation is to include educational opportunities for minority students, industrial hiring practices and open housing provisions.

ALTHOUGH THE SCLC will in vestigate all area communities, Arlington Heights, Des Plaines, Elk Grove Village, Hoffman Estates and Schaumburg are among those singled out for an "in depth look."

The need for the study is apparent according to the SCLC because of the increasing numbers of minority persons living in the suburbs and the expectations of more moving here due to the expanding job market.

After the information is compiled appropriate recommendations will be made to affect institutional change, the SCLC said. There was no specific course of action revealed.

Brooks told the group of 20 SCLC members that there is a definite shortage of low and moderate income housing within the suburbs. "We want low-rise low and moderate housing on scattered sites in every suburb," he said.

two months ago when a cross was burned in protest of a black child moving into a neighborhood there.

THE CROSS WAS burned on the front lawn of the prospective home of Prof. Willard Williamson of Harper College who has a year-old adopted black daughter.

The family later moved into the subdivision without further incident.

Airport Violation Ruling Expected

Cook County Circuit Court Judge Nathan Cohen will rule this afternoon on county charges that Pal-Waukee Airport has violated a 1963 special use permit. The ruling will be read at 2 p.m. in room 2407 of the Civic Center in Chicago.

Judge Cohen listened to almost two weeks of testimony in the case filed by Cook County and the Village of Wheeling earlier in June. The village was ruled out of the case since the airport is not within village limits. Cohen also dismissed two charges by the county.

Shaw Graduates

John R. Shaw of 18 E. Old Willow Rd., Wheeling, was among 537 students to receive undergraduate degrees from the University of Illinois Chicago Circle campus.

Board Tables Review Of Ordinance

After brief discussion Monday night, the Wheeling Village Board tabled further review of its environmental ordinance until all board members can be present. Trustee Edward Berger was absent because of an injury to his son.

The ordinance would create an environmental advisory commission that would study local pollution problems and advise corporate authorities of ways to combat local conditions contributing to pollution.

The village has been working on an environmental control ordinance since it was proposed during local elections in the spring of 1971. Several proposed ordinances have been sent back to committee for further study of local pollution problems and the makeup of the commission.

THE ORDINANCE currently under consideration provides only a general outline of the duties of the commission. Trustee Ronald Bruhn said he hoped the commission would develop its own guidelines when it had a firm grasp of local pollution problems.

The commission would be similar to the plan commission in that business would come before the village board only after study by the commission. "This would be a powerful commission," Village Atty. Paul Hamer said.

If the ordinance is passed the commission would have control over areas now handled at the county and state level, except where the state already had established standards.

IN OTHER ACTION, the village attorney was authorized to study an amendment to the vehicle tax that would give a car buyer seven business days to register his car with the village. Presently car buyers have only three days to register and purchase a village sticker.

Trustee Michael Valenza proposed the amendment, saying the present time length is unwieldy. "It creates a hardship on the people of the village," he said.

The board authorized the payment of $40,488.06 in bills for the month of June. The trustees also voted that a cost estimate be made of the installation of approximately 750 feet of permanent water line of Sixth Street south of Strong Street.

A zoning change was approved for the construction of a dinner restaurant near Milwaukee Avenue and Wolf Road. The board also directed the village attorney to draw up papers for the annexation of property at 745 McHenry Rd. and the zoning board was authorized to hold hearings on changing the property's agricultural zoning to business and industrial zoning.

THE TRUSTEES accepted the resignation of Mrs. Marianne Garvey from the human relations commission. Mrs. Garvey, who resigned for personal reasons, was appointed on Dec. 13, 1971. Her term would not have expired until April 30, 1973.

The board received a letter from the general manager of the Ramada Inn, Winnipeg, Man. Canada praising the Wheeling High School Band for its performance there last month. The board voted to send similar letters to the home towns of all the corps that participated in the drum and bugle corps contest here earlier this month.

The board then went into a three hour executive session to discuss personnel and acquisition of property.

3 Elements Basic To Safety On The Job: Council Chief

The machine, the man and the environment are the three essential elements that must be controlled to have absolute safety on the job. Howard Pyle, president of the National Safety Council, told Elk Grove Village businessmen Wednesday.

"It is the purpose of the Occupational Safety and Health Act (OSHA) of 1970 to set some of these guidelines to provide the safest and healthiest possible environment for every worker in the United States," said Pyle. He spoke to 120 members of the village Association of Industry and Commerce at their luncheon meeting.

"Employees are becoming increasingly aware of health hazards in their businesses and other conditions on the job that can seriously affect an employee's well-being," he said. Workmen's compensation takes care of things after the fact but the occupational safety and health legislation was designed to remove potential problem situations.

He said OSHA has been criticized for being too trivial in some of its demands on industry, such as the heights of toilet seats, but in general the main points are what has been sought by the National Safety Council and progressive companies in the past.

PYLE SAID voluntary compliance with the new federal occupational safety and health regulations is needed. He said the drafters of the legislation stipulated that citations should be given by inspectors when they first see violations to encourage employers to correct dangerous situations on their own.

"If a businessman knew he wouldn't be cited or have to pay a fine, he might wait until an inspector pointed out violations before making any changes," he said.

Pyle said a good safety program involved management leadership and participation, assignment of responsibility for safety regulations, maintenance of safe working conditions, a safety training program for employees and supervisors, keeping a record of accidents, providing medical and first aid facilities and acceptance of responsibility for safety by employees.

Pyle is a former White House aide and a two-term governor of Arizona.

Skin, Scuba Diving Show Is Wednesday

A demonstration of skin and scuba diving techniques will begin at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday at the community outdoor pool, 251 N. Wolf Rd., Wheeling.

Sponsored by the park district, the demonstration is free for all swimmers at the pool.

Members of the newly organized Wheeling Skin and Scuba Club will explain the use of diving equipment.

In case of poor weather, the demonstration will be at the indoor Neptune's Pool, 900 S. Elmhurst Rd.

Bicycle Paths Topic Of Meeting

Representatives from 11 park districts will discuss possibilities for a network of bicycle paths in the Northwest suburbs today at 2 p.m. at the Salt Creek Park District administration building, 500 S. Williams, Palatine.

Park districts involved include Arlington Heights, Rolling Meadows, Palatine, Buffalo Grove, Wheeling, Mount Prospect, Prospect Heights, Elk Grove Village, Des Plaines, Mundelein and Salt Creek.

"Each park district representative was asked to bring a map of proposed bike routes in their area," said James DeVos, director of Salt Creek Park District. "We hope to put together some sort of master plan."

DeVos also said the representatives will discuss means of financing the route network, and the possibility of working with local governments.

Office's Clientele Is Varied

by JEAN CAFARELLA

Even staid governmental institutions like the Social Security office have their exciting days . . .

"When I worked in Milwaukee we had a woman come in to collect a burial payment. She wanted us to hurry up because she had her husband parked outside in the hearse. She was on her way to the cemetery and decided to stop by while she was in the neighborhood."

So said Norman Thoresen, manager of the new Social Security office at 120 W. Eastman St. Arlington Heights.

Sometimes the incidents are more serious.

Social Security offices occasionally get people who become so mad at the agency they assault employees. Many offices in Chicago have guards stationed there for protection.

"I HAD A FRIEND of mine in Greencastle shot and wounded by a crazy man who didn't get his check on time. This guy was 74 years old and had been in a halfway house for years," said Thoresen. "My friend was lying on the floor yelling 'That blank blank shot me!'"

Famous people sometimes come in for benefits. Former football coach Blanton Collier of the Cleveland Browns lost five months of Medicare payments because he didn't file with a Social Security office soon enough (like losing five yards for delaying a game).

The Arlington Heights office has only been open a couple of weeks, and already is experiencing a communications gap. "Just yesterday a couple fellows from Aurora came in who couldn't speak a word of English. There we were, not knowing with our hands, trying to explain that we needed their mothers' maiden names, birth certificates, etc. But we managed," said Thoresen.

The Social Security offices do have some forms and literature printed in Spanish, but for most other languages the employees have to develop their own sign language.)

"Mostly we get very nice people — reasonable, understanding — and everybody from the ditch digger to the college president," Thoresen said.

THE NEW OFFICE, which opened July 3, is expected to serve some 11,000 people in Arlington Heights, Palatine, Inverness, Rolling Meadows, Prospect Heights, Wheeling and Buffalo Grove. The office provides the same services as Chicago offices, but offers greater convenience.

Thoresen finds they get a lot of people who are looking forward to retirement. About half the beneficiaries in this area are over 65, and the next largest group is survivors and those permanently disabled. Common disabilities are heart conditions and terminal cancer.

A lot of young children are also brought in to receive a Social Security number for a new bank account or identification.

The armed forces have changed with the times: name, rank and serial number is out. Name, rank and Social Security number is in.

THE NEW STAFF of ten has been kept busy. This week more than 35 people put in claims for benefits and more than 50 applied for Social Security numbers. Thoresen said sometimes it's harder to deal with intelligent and rich people, because they make a greater effort to get as much as they can out of the Social Security program.

Social Security gradually has been expanding its service. They have set up a toteservice, which allows people to call the office and have their forms filled out over the phone. About 30 or 40 per cent of forms are filled out this way.

They also have expanded their efforts by including a referral service. If a person does not get enough money from Social Security or is not entitled to Social Security benefits, the office will tell him who to see for assistance. Often the welfare department is recommended.

"A lot of people just don't know where to go and they come here," said Thoresen. "Sometimes we help people find shelter or a hospital. We had a guy who asked us to find him a doctor closer to his home."

SOCIAL SECURITY benefits have also been increased by 20 per cent, beginning this September. The average monthly benefit for a retired couple would go from $224 to about $271. A widowed mother with two children will receive an average benefit of $386 a month instead of $122. All benefits received depend on factors such as the length of time a person works, his salary and whether he is disabled, widowed or a dependent minor.

The money must come from somewhere, and the average paycheck will have 5.5 per cent removed for Social Security instead of 5.2 per cent beginning Jan. 1.

Thoresen feels reforms are needed, and he would like to see the 6-month waiting period before collecting disability benefits either cut down or dropped. Social Security offices, however, can't lobby for legislation.

If a person lives long enough he can usually collect more than he pays in. A person who dies young and leaves survivors can have his survivors receive 15 to 20 times what he paid into the program.

"We have cases like a family with 10 kids receiving survivor benefits, or a 16-year-old kid who was paralyzed from the neck down in an accident getting Social Security money. You feel pretty good sending checks to these people," Thoresen said.

Columnist Anderson To Be At Harper

Washington columnist Jack Anderson will lecture at Harper College in Palatine July 25.

The lecture will be presented in the college center at 8 p.m. Harper students, faculty and staff are admitted free with their ID card. Admission for the public is $1.50.

Anderson, who recently made charges in his column concerning International Telephone and Telegraph Corp. and the Justice Department, continues to startle government officials with his exposures of "secret" government documents.

Anderson was awarded the Pulitzer Prize in May for national reporting. The story that won the prize involved disclosures of administration policymaking during the India-Pakistan war.

Regarded as one of the most influential journalists in the country, Anderson took over the "Washington Merry-Go-Round" column in 1969 after the death of Drew Pearson, originator of the column.

ANDERSON says that he operates as a muckraker. To muckrake is to search out and expose publicly real or apparent misconduct of prominent officials.

When Anderson received the Pulitzer Prize he said, "The Pulitzer Prize is the Academy Award of journalism, so I have to be both pleased and proud to receive it. But far more is the significance of the award. This was given to me for exposing government secrets. The Pulitzer board therefore has recognized the right of the people to know what goes on in the back rooms of government, and that's more important than any personal satisfaction I might have."

The columnist, son of Mormons, began his career at age 12 as Boy Scout editor of The Deseret News, a church-owned newspaper in Salt Lake City. ## Faculty, Board Set To Meet With Mediator

by RICH HONACK

The Wheeling Faculty Council (WFC) and the Dist. 21 Board of Education negotiating teams are going back to the bargaining table — with the help of a mediator.

The two groups were informed Tuesday that federal mediator Ed Wise will meet with them at 10 a.m. July 27.

Wise's name was given to the groups by the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service. He is coming to the school district from the service's Chicago office.

The session with the mediator will be the first time in almost two months that the two teams have met. Their last meeting was June 8, at which time the WFC called for impasse procedures to begin.

AFTER SEVERAL verbal attacks from the spokesmen of both groups over the call for impasse and the threat of court action, the board agreed to the impasse on June 22.

The two teams are deadlocked over the entire financial package of the contract and three items in the procedural package.

The items in the financial package deadlocking acceptance are:

—Increase in teachers' salaries.

—Number of teacher sick days and personal leave days.

—Amount of insurance paid by the district for a teacher.

—Amount of fees, books and tuition for which teachers are reimbursed when taking advanced college courses.

—Professional compensation and related provisions for experienced teachers coming into the district.

In the procedural package teachers and the board are at odds over the following:

—The entire scope of the contract and what it includes.

—Whether or not fact-finding should be included in the impasse procedures.

—Whether or not the strike clause should be included in the contract if it is signed on a multi-year basis.

Representatives from both teams speculated yesterday that for the first time in the 1972-73 contract discussions the talks will be closed to the public. Since the third meeting all sessions have been open.

JOHN BARGER, chairman of the board team, and Larry Halter, spokesman for the WFC, said they believe the talks will be closed because mediators always work behind closed doors.

"I don't see how the talks will be open," said Barger. "But I've never been through mediation, so I can't be sure."

Halter, on the other hand, has been through mediation, and said it would be almost impossible to open up the talks.

The mediator usually separates the two teams and then goes back and forth between them — trying to settle differences and getting agreement in the problem areas, Halter said.

The first meeting with the mediator is expected to define the open issues and set up some type of ground rules as to how he will run the program. It is not known if Wise expects to get to the work of mediation at the first session.

According to the 1971-72 contract, Wise has 20 days from the time the two teams agree on him as the mediator in which to settle the dispute. If he does not do so in the allotted time the talks will go to fact-finding, and a fact-finder will be brought into the bargaining.

The two teams are expected to make a concession in the 20-day clause, because if they strictly adhere to it Wise will have only four days to try to bring them together.

Both Barger and Halter feel something will be worked out to give Wise more time.

The July 27 meeting will be in the Dist. 21 Administration Building, 909 W. Dundee Rd., Wheeling.

Land East Of Landfill To Be Eyed

The village administration of Arlington Heights now says it will make a study of the land to the east of the Arlington Heights landfill in compliance with requests made by the Village Board and The Environmental Control Commission (ECC).

Earlier, Village Mgr. L.A. Hanson had said the engineering and public works departments were studying the land west of the Nichols Road landfill site but did not plan to look at property to the east.

The village board, acting at the request of the ECC, Monday night asked Hanson to expand the study to include the easterly land.

The village study is being timed to coincide with a report by the Harza Engineering Co. which is studying the life and operation of the landfill.

Hanson said the land to the east was not included originally because of its proximity to Buffalo Grove, its high cost and the fact that the extension of Kennicott Drive will eventually isolate the eastern land from the present landfill.

Both the Harza and village studies are expected to be completed within the next several weeks.

Village Board Meet Canceled

The regularly scheduled Buffalo Grove Village Board meeting Monday night has been canceled because a quorum of the trustees will not be present. Business on the agenda for the meeting will be continued until July 24.

Trustees on vacation next week plus a vacancy on the board created the situation.

The board also will meet July 31 to review a report on the village water system and a suggested program for providing water in the future.

AS THOUGH SHE COULD taste what she is cutting out, Brenda Rudolfi concentrates on her work during the Wheeling Library Summer Program for children. The library is sponsoring all types of summer programs to keep children occupied while not in school and to help them become acquainted with the library as a means of education. Children may register and take part in these programs at the Wheeling Library, 850 Jenkins Ct., Wheeling.

Local Teacher-Salary Talks Begin

Prospect Heights Educational Association (PHEA) negotiators accepted a Dist. 23 school board proposal giving district teachers 10 sick days plus two personal days leave per year at salary talks Tuesday.

The session marked the beginning of salary negotiations between the two teams and the first bargaining session since the PHEA agreed to accept its professional negotiations (PN) agreement June 15.

The salary package includes recommendations for pay hikes with merit increases, starting teachers' salary, raises for increased education along with extra class and duty pay.

The sick leave proposal, one of nine package items was the only one agreed on last night however.

The PHEA is asking a pay hike of 5.5 per cent plus merit increases of $800 yearly for superior, $600 for above average and $400 for competent teachers plus a proportionate 5.5 per cent wage increase for starting teachers.

THE PAY hike question was not resolved however because the recommended raise plus the merit increases exceed a 5.5 per cent ceiling set for wage hikes by the federal government.

According to board negotiator Donald McKay, any proposed wage hike over 5.5 per cent must be reviewed by the Internal Revenue Service (IRS). "We can't just approve a higher pay hike without IRS consent."

Larry Halter, PHEA spokesman feels Dist. 23 should qualify for the pay boost plus merit raises.

He said Dist. 23 is a "catchup district" meaning that previous raises have not exceeded the IRS ceiling.

Halter predicted the IRS would approve the raises. "IRS officials have told me this district can qualify as a catchup district and there should be no problems there," Halter said.

HE FEELS both sides are more flexible now that salary talks are under way

Attendance At Summer School Called A Record

Students in High School Dist. 214 are attending summer school this year in record numbers.

School officials report 7,069 students signed up for first semester summer school classes, with the largest number, 1,431, at Hersey High School in Arlington Heights.

Last year, 6,382 students attended summer school, which gives students the opportunity to make up courses failed during the year or to get started early on the following year.

Enrollment is about evenly divided between academic and non-academic subjects such as physical education, music, drama and driver's education. Summer school will continue through the first week of August.

Included in the summer program are two courses that are taking the students out of the immediate area. One group from Forest View High School is working in Wisconsin building a house for an experimental architectural construction class. Another group, from Hersey, will spend two weeks near Mount Vernon in southern Illinois on an archeological dig.

THIS YEAR for the first time each school in the district has been able to and that they should move more swiftly than the procedural debate. This argument stalemated the talks for more than a month and at one point threatened to send them into outside arbitration.

Halter was not able to estimate how long a settlement will take, but added the teachers would like to have a contract before classes resume in September.

This Morning In Brief

Convention At A Glance

Sen. George McGovern tonight is expected to accept the Democratic party's nomination for the presidency, which was given to him last night.

As the National Democratic Convention draws to an end the battles fought Monday night over the credentials of key state delegations apparently told the tale of the convention as a whole.

Facing the assembled Democrats now is the lone query of who will be the party's standard bearer with McGovern, who will be the vice-presidential candidate.

Although speculation focused on as many as a half-dozen public figures for that key post, the one candidate who could please everyone remained aloof.

Kennedy Says No

Senator Edward Kennedy of Massachusetts remained unmoved to the appeal for his nomination to the vice-presidency and remained in his home state.

Although McGovern himself has made no public statement about possible choices for a running mate, he did say he would telephone Kennedy after officially receiving the nomination.

Sources said he will either ask Kennedy to join the ticket or ask his advice in choosing a candidate. Kennedy has repeatedly said he will not accept the second spot.

Governors Choose Mills

Governors who met with McGovern yesterday reportedly urged him to offer the position to Kennedy or Rep. Wilbur Mills, D-Ark., who had earlier announced his withdrawal from the presidential race.

Others reportedly being considered included Sen. Abraham Ribicoff of Connecticut, Sen. Thomas Eagleton of Missouri, Sen. Philip A. Hart of Michigan, Gov. Reubin Askew of Florida and Leonard Woodcock, president of the United Auto Workers.

Wallace Rejected

Tuesday night's mild-mannered and restrained discussions over the party's platform typified the tone of the convention. In spite of an appeal from crippled Democratic hopeful George Wallace, the convention routinely voted down the Wallace planks on the platform and turned instead to a moderate platform inspired by the McGovern forces — but not as dramatically revolutionary as some of McGovern's early campaign speeches.

For Wallace, the last hops of the candidate was still to hold out the possibility of entering the presidential race as a third party candidate, thus ensuring some unpredictable vote tallies in November.

Youth Stay Calm

Outside, the hundreds of spectators to the convention remained as calm as the deliberations inside the convention hall itself. Police reported only the mildest of disturbances, virtually no arrests and generally good deportment among the young people living in tents.

Security remained strict, however, particularly around Governor Wallace as he traveled through the city.

New Park To Be Named For Hero Doug Lindberg

An undeveloped park in the Winston Park subdivision in Palatine will be named Doug Lindberg Park, after a 16-year-old youth who drowned trying to save two children from Lake Louise in June.

Although the Palatine park board's official policy has been to name parks after trees or birds, an exception was made when petitions were circulated in Winston Park and three residents spoke at Tuesday's board meeting. The motion to name the park after Lindberg carried by a 3-2 vote of park district commissioners.

The park will border on Lake Louise in northeast Winston Park.

The policy for naming parks still stands, said park district director Fred P. Hall, but the residents' request "couldn't be dismissed simply because a policy had been decided." Commissioners opposing the break from policy held that a memorial for Lindberg in the park would be more fitting. The action is an exception, not a change, in board policy, the board members emphasized.

SWIMMING POOLS surfaced again at Tuesday's meeting, with a final answer on the indoor-versus-outdoor pool issue set for the July 25 meeting. Birchwood Park, where the new pool would be built, was surveyed, and Hall reported on seasonal usages in Arlington Heights indoor and outdoor pools.

Superintendents from School Districts 211 and 15 are meeting with Hall this morning to determine what financial help the school districts could give to maintain an indoor pool during the school year. Usage figures from Arlington Heights included only park district use, not school use, to give the Palatine commissioners some idea how much use an indoor pool would get.

In the last fiscal year, 33,024 non-school people used Arlington Heights' indoor pool in the September through April period.

"That figure was lower than our park board had hoped to generate (in Palatine)," Hall said. Other attendance figures from Wheeling and Elk Grove Village indoor pools will be studied before the board decides what it will opt for in a park district referendum sometime this fall. A tentative $450,000 budget is planned for a swimming pool in Birchwood Park, whether the pool is indoor or outdoor.

Besides park names and swimming pools, the board dealt with one other long-time issue, the lease from Commonwealth Edison Co. for two miles of right-of-way between Virginia Lake School and Hicks Road. The land will be used for a bike trail through Palatine. Following some minor changes in wording, the lease will probably be finalized at the next meeting. Residents bordering on the trail may then begin licensing 50-foot segments of the trail. Only the middle 85 feet of the 185-foot-wide right-of-way will be used for the actual trail. The remaining 50 feet on either side will be licensed by the park district to residents and community groups at a nominal fee.

Plan Commission Has 3 Public Hearings On Tap

Three public hearings, including a proposal to build a 40-lane bowling alley, are on the agenda of the Palatine Plan Commission for its meeting Tuesday. The meeting is scheduled for 8 p.m. in Palatine Village Hall.

The bowling alley, in addition to a new car dealership, restaurant "and various other commercial uses" would be on the southwest corner of Northwest Highway and Smith Street.

Owners of the property are seeking annexation to the village and the granting of B-2, general service district, zoning.

Also scheduled for public hearing is a petition for rezoning to construct a small office building on the northwest corner of Northwest Highway and Warren Avenue, near the Arlington Crest subdivision.

Another hearing is slated on the rezoning of a portion of property belonging to Yellow Freight Systems Inc., 405 W. Baldwin Rd.

In other action, the plan commission is expected to discuss an earlier hearing concerning possible rezoning of the Arlington Crest subdivision from R-1 to R-2.

Both are single-family residential districts but have differing lot specifications.

THE VILLAGE initiated steps to rezone the subdivision to avoid holding special hearings for each lot variance, but residents have largely opposed the move.

Their main contention is that the rezoning may cause a tax increase.

The plan commission also may further discuss the Burley property at Benton Street and Northwest Highway.

The owner has modified earlier plans because the village objected to its building density. The new plans call for 18 condominium units on the six lots in the Northview subdivision.

JESSE TOMPKINS OF Arlington Heights and Judy Springer of Des Plaines became man and wife in a wedding ceremony performed by the Rev. Maurice Wright of the Logan Square Baptist Church of Chicago.

A Swimming Pool Marriage

Jesse And Judy Take The 'Plunge'

by JOHN MAES

Jesse and Judy Tompkins will always have a soft spot in their hearts for the swimming pool at the Mount Prospect Holiday Inn. They were married in it yesterday.

Judy of 72 Beau Ct., Des Plaines, a nursing assistant at Holy Family Hospital in Des Plaines, exchanged nuptial vows with Tompkins, 700 W. Rand Rd., Arlington Heights, yesterday morning while standing in waist-deep water.

The ceremony was fast and simple with no organ music or long bridal procession. The swimsuit-clad maid of honor and best man strolled solemnly along the pool deck and stepped into the pool.

Escorted by Salvatore DiGiovanni, manager of the inn at 200 E. Rand Rd., the bride emerged in a white bikini with a long white lace coat over it.

THE REV. Maurice Wright, of the Logan Square Baptist Church in Chicago (who said he forgot his swimming trunks) performed the ceremony from the top step of the pool.

After vows were exchanged, the newlyweds took a nuptial swim to the other end of the pool where they were greeted with smiles and champagne by guests and inn employees who had flocked around the pool to witness the wedding.

According to the new Mrs. Tompkins, the decision to be married in the pool came while discussing wedding plans with DiGiovanni, and it sounded like a good idea.

"This was just something they decided to do on the spur of the moment," said DiGiovanni. "I thought it was a great idea."

Rev. Wright said he had no objections when the couple asked him to perform the ceremony in the pool. He said he wasn't shocked at the couple's request — he once married a couple on roller skates.

Schaumburg Seeks Mosquito Spray

by PAT GERLACH

Despite pending litigation, the Village of Schaumburg took emergency steps this week asking immediate, but temporary, resumption of Northwest Mosquito Abatement District spray control.

In the interim program, necessitated by recent and abundant rainfall, village sanitarian Robert Grossmann has asked the district to employ non-toxic spray materials.

Last year Schaumburg, along with Palatine, banned use of malathion and other chemicals considered to be toxic in the control program within the villages' municipal limits.

THE MOVE RESULTED in court action involving both villages; a continued hearing is scheduled July 27 in Cook County Circuit Court.

Wilbur Mitchell, district director, confirmed having met with Grossmann Wednesday and indicated the abatement district may begin spraying in Schaumburg as early as Monday.

He said Grossmann had agreed to the use of malathion as a spray substance since it is the only chemical used by the district.

In the discussion of the matter at Tuesday's village board meeting, Mayor Robert O. Atcher said the village has never prohibited any NMAD program but has forbidden only the use of the two chemicals considered environmentally harmful.

Schaumburg favors a drainage method rather than spray control and has advised NMAD accordingly, suggesting taxes could be better used in a program designed to eliminate mosquito breeding places, Atcher explained.

MITCHELL CONTENDS malathion is the least toxic substance used in control programs and says it is not overly harmful to birds, animals or humans.

He further explained that NMAD has used oil spray control and larvaciding in Schaumburg this year.

Village officials have indicated suspicions that NMAD has not come into the village since the ban was created.

Atcher also pointed out the ordinance preventing malathion gave NMAD authority to enter the village in an emer-

Bicycle Paths Topic Of Meeting

Representatives from 11 park districts will discuss possibilities for a network of bicycle paths in the Northwest suburbs today at 2 p.m. at the Salt Creek Park District administration building, 530 S. Williams, Palatine.

Park districts involved include Arlington Heights, Rolling Meadows, Palatine, Buffalo Grove, Wheeling, Mount Prospect, Prospect Heights, Elk Grove Village, Des Plaines, Mundelein and Salt Creek.

"Each park district representative was asked to bring a map of proposed bike routes in their area," said James DeVos, director of Salt Creek Park District. "We hope to put together some sort of master plan."

3 Elements Basic To Safety On The Job: Council Chief

The machine, the man and the environment are the three essential elements that must be controlled to have absolute safety on the job. Howard Pyle, president of the National Safety Council, told Elk Grove Village businessmen Wednesday.

"It is the purpose of the Occupational Safety and Health Act (OSHA) of 1970 to set some of these guidelines to provide the safest and healthiest possible environment for every worker in the United States," said Pyle. He spoke to 120 members of the village Association of Industry and Commerce at their luncheon meeting.

"Employers are becoming increasingly aware of health hazards in their businesses and other conditions on the job that can seriously affect an employee's well-being," he said. Workmen's compensation takes care of things after the fact, but the occupational safety and health legislation was designed to remove potential problem situations."

He said OSHA has been criticized for being too trivial in some of its demands on industry, such as the heights of toilet seats, but in general the main points are what has been sought by the National Safety Council and progressive companies in the past.

PYLE SAID voluntary compliance with the new federal occupational safety and health regulations is needed. He said the drafters of the legislation stipulated that citations should be given by inspectors when they first see violations, to encourage employers to correct dangerous situations on their own.

"If a businessman knew he wouldn't be cited or have to pay a fine, he might wait until an inspector pointed out violations before making any changes," he said.

Pyle said a good safety program involved management leadership and participation, assignment of responsibility for safety regulations, maintenance of safe working conditions, a safety training program for employees and supervisors, keeping a record of accidents, providing medical and first aid facilities and acceptance of responsibility for safety by employees.

Pyle is a former White House aide and a two-term governor of Arizona.

Firm Sells Safety

Industry Hazards Are Disappearing

by JOHN MAES

Mine Safety Appliances Co. started out in the World War I era making basic products for safety in mines when canaries in cages were still used to detect dangerous gases.

Today, more than 50 years later, MSA markets more than 4,000 lines of safety equipment for industry besides mine safety products and operates more than 100 branch offices around the world including Europe, Africa, India and the Far East.

"Recent trends toward work safety have greatly increased our market," said Al Lundin, manager of Chicago area office which operates out of Elk Grove Village at 370 Bond St.

"For instance, there isn't much of a mining industry around the Midwest so almost all the products we distribute from here are for industrial safety."

Gary, Ind. steel mills used MSA-built work helmets able to withstand the impact of molten steel along with gas, and carbon monoxide indicators able to detect noxious gases down to one part per billion.

FIRE DEPARTMENTS also have employed use of MSA breathing aids such as oxygen masks and respirators along with firemen's helmets, fireproof suits, and first-aid kits.

"Our company developed adhesive bandages long before Johnson and Johnson (the firm that makes Band-Aids) did," Lundin claims.

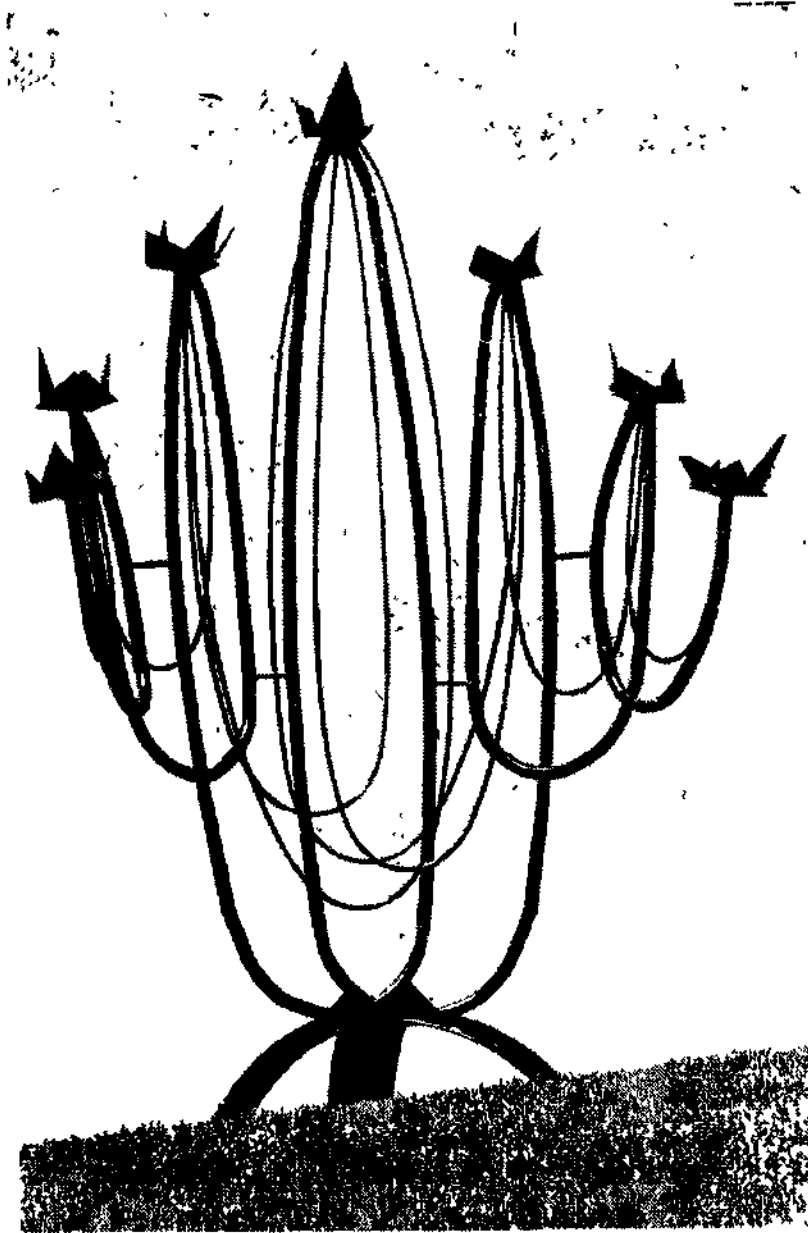

Factories also are utilizing the company's products and have purchased huge quantities of protective clothing, headwear and gloves. Also included in MSA's inventories is a barrier cream which protects hands against acids and harmful chemicals, and ear plugs which prevent hearing damage from excessive noise.

Death Of A Cab Co.

A Palatine taxicab firm will offer its last ride early Saturday.

Palatine Cabs, based in the Palatine train depot, will go out of business at 1:30 a.m. Saturday.

William Daniels, owner of the six-cab fleet, said the move involves both personal and business reasons. He had operated the cab service in the Palatine area for three years.

THE MENORAH, a sculpture work by Harold Kerr, is among several pieces of art at the Shalom Memorial Park in Palatine that will be featured on the television show "Sunday in Chicago" at 10 a.m. Sunday on Channel 5. Other pieces of art to be included in the show are "The Tree of Life," by sculptor Richard Hunt; "Elijah's Ascent to Heaven from Mount Carmel," by Pincus Shear, and "The Emblems of the Twelve Tribes of Israel," by Dr. Joseph Young. The cemetery is at Rand Road and Wilke Avenue.

Mosquito Spraying Called For By Schaumburg

He believes that it was the responsibility of NMAD to spray in Schaumburg during recent rainy conditions.

Atcher said Grossmann has the authority to contact NMAD in what he considers an emergency without express direction of the village board.

The sanitarian is also responsible for insuring cessation of the temporary program when conditions become less critical.

Regarding drainage control, Mitchell feels this method is presently impossible for several reasons.

IN ADDITION TO being financially out of the question, the problem becomes more difficult due to obstructions and faulty engineering.

In related action Tuesday, the village board amended the ordinance in question to permit larvaciding of catch basins and ground sewers provided work is done by a professional.

In response, Mitchell claimed this type of control is brought about with the same insecticides which are now banned in Schaumburg.

Palatine Majorettes Are State Champs

Palatine High School's majorettes, the Parades, twirled and danced to win the state championship held recently at Hershey High School in Arlington Heights.

Performing a Charlie Chaplain routine, the seven majorettes won the senior championship of dance-twirl in Illinois. The girls were Jean Fryman, Karen Mendrala, Marti Mohr, Cindy Schmackel, Sara and Kara Watts, and Dee Dee Dickenson. Their teacher is Adrian Mohr.

Navy Band To Present Concert Here Friday

The Great Lakes Naval Training Center Band will present a concert Friday night in Palatine.

The 32-member band, under the direction of Warrant Officer Dan Michaelson, will perform a smattering of naval and patriotic medleys, popular tunes and traditional music at 8 p.m. in the Palatine Hills recreation area.

Included in the program are "Fantasy of American Sailing Songs," "Washington's Grays March," "Moonlight Serenade," "Get Together," "Down Basie Street," "Light Vibrations," "Make Me Smile," "Born Free," "American Legion March," "We've Only Just Begun," "Outta Sight," "In the Mood," "Day Tripper," "God Bless America" and "Navy Medley."

Bible School Set

"My God, My Faith, My Life" is this year's theme for the Immanuel Lutheran Church's vacation Bible school.

Registration for children starts Monday.

The Bible school will run daily from 9 a.m. to 11 a.m. July 31 through Aug. 11 in the school building at Bothwell and Wood streets in Palatine. Children four years old through junior high school age may be registered by calling 358-2548 or 358-0757 next week. The church is at 203 N. Bothwell in Palatine.

Work To Begin Soon On Sanitary Sewer

Construction is expected to begin shortly on a sanitary sewer intended to serve mainly the Northview area of Palatine.

A $22,341 contract was awarded by the Palatine Village Board this week to Bari Sewer and Water Inc., Bensenville, to construct the sewer between Eagle Lane and Brockway Street.

Completion of the project, expected about 45 days after work is begun, will allow the lift station serving the Northview subdivisions to be eliminated.

Work is proceeding on the sewer because construction of the Northwest Highway interchange by the Metropolitan Sanitary District of Greater Chicago is continuing ahead of schedule.

City To Install Alarms At Wells

Security systems are going to be installed at all existing city water wells.

The Rolling Meadows City Council voted Tuesday night to spend about $5,000 to have burglar alarms installed linking the five wells to the police station.

The contract was awarded to Securetronics of Palatine.

City Mgr. James Watson said the city has not had problems with vandalism at the wells, but officials thought it would be a worthwhile preventive measure to take.

Village Approves Payout For Paramedic Gear

The Arlington Heights Village Board has approved the expenditure of $11,394 for emergency care medical equipment to be installed in Village ambulances.

The paramedic equipment will be operated beginning probably next month, by firemen who recently completed training at Northwest Community Hospital.

The new equipment will put ambulance attendants in radio contact with doctors at the hospital and also transmit visual indicators of the patient's condition.

Emergency treatment equipment for heart attack victims also is included in the ambulance package.

Besides Arlington Heights, Buffalo Grove, Hoffman Estates, Inverness, Mount Prospect, Palatine, Rolling Meadows, Schaumburg and possibly Wheeling are expected to participate in the new treatment program.

In addition, two local ambulance firms, Arlington Ambulance and Delta Ambulance, plan to offer the service.

Park District Offers Summer Recreation

Two new summer recreation programs will begin July 18 for Salt Creek Rural Park District residents.

A 6-week beginning guitar class will be offered, beginning July 18, from 8 to 9:30 p.m.

The class is open to residents of the district, and the fee is $12.

A tumbling class for preschool ages and grades one through five will also begin July 18. It will be held at Rose, South and Winston parks.

Annex Corridor Land Issue Hits A Partial Snag

One land annexation passed the Rolling Meadows city council Tuesday but a second hit a snag when it was learned that no public hearing had been held on the proposed annexation.

The two annexations would have provided a corridor linking the Rolling Meadows and Plum Grove Countryside park districts. The park districts plan to merge and need the land link.

While property along Frontage Road west of Ill. Rte. 53, known as the Locious property, was annexed without any problem, a two-acre site along Kirchhoff Road, west of Brookwood apartments, was sent back for a public hearing, to be held in August.

The annexation of the second parcel, known as the Wolf property, is expected to go through once the public hearing is completed on Wolf's plans to build a nursing home there.

THE LOCIOUS and Wolf properties will serve as the annexation corridor linking the two park districts.

They will connect the Creekside and Plum Grove Countryside subdivisions.

Creekside is served by the Rolling Meadows Park District while Plum Grove Countryside is in the Countryside district.

The plan to merge the districts has been under consideration for several months. It was started at the suggestion of the Countryside board of commissioners.

The annexation still will probably not affect the merger timetable, which is not expected to be concluded until October or

Move To Curb Flooding At Meadows High School

The High School Dist. 214 board of education will spend more than $20,000 to eliminate flooding at Rolling Meadows High School.

The board Monday night agreed to install pumps on the Rolling Meadows sewer line to ensure that sewage will not back up into the school during periods of heavy rains.

The pumps will be installed this summer at a cost of $20,150. The school was closed twice last year because sewage backed up into the locker rooms during heavy rains.

District officials have said the main problem is that Metropolitan Sanitary District sewers on Central Road that serve the school are inadequate to hold all the water present during storms. MSD officials have said they plan in several years to increase the capacity of the sewer lines.

The district has looked at several solutions to the flooding problem since it first appeared last December. One solution, which was rejected, would have shut off the sewer lines during heavy rains to prevent backups.

Local Youth Killed.

2nd Hurt In Wyoming

A Rolling Meadows youth was killed and another critically injured Tuesday night in Wyoming when their car crashed into a bridge abutment near the city of Casper.

The dead boy was identified by the Wyoming State Highway Patrol as Carl E. Whitcombe, 18, of 2603 Dove St., Rolling Meadows.

His companion, who was driving the car, was Michael A. Mozal, 18, 4700 Thorntree Ln., Rolling Meadows. Yesterday morning Mozal was in critical condition in a Casper hospital.

Homemade Bomb Set Off: No One Hurt

A homemade bomb exploded Tuesday night in Rolling Meadows, damaging a car and a truck. No one was injured.

Rolling Meadows Police Detective Charles Smith said the bomb exploded in front of 3303 St. James St. He said it had been placed on the running board of a pickup truck owned by William Fahn, 2412 Algonquin Rd.

Fahn was in the house on St. James Street when the bomb exploded and blew holes in the truck and through the door of a car, owned by Richard Nienan of Wheeling, parked near it.

Police recovered fragments of the bomb, and Smith said the device was a six-inch metal pipe, about one inch in diameter, loaded with some kind of explosive.

Smith said there is a suspect in the case but would not elaborate further.

Bicycle Paths

Topic Of Meeting

Representatives from 11 park districts will discuss possibilities for a network of bicycle paths in the Northwest suburbs today at 2 p.m. at the Salt Creek Park District administration building, 530 S. Williams, Palatine.

Park districts involved include Arlington Heights, Rolling Meadows, Palatine, Buffalo Grove, Wheeling, Mount Prospect, Prospect Heights, Elk Grove Village, Des Plaines, Mundelein and Salt Creek.

"Each park district representative was asked to bring a map of proposed bike routes in their area," said James DeVos, director of Salt Creek Park District. "We hope to put together some sort of master plan."

A Swimming Pool Marriage

Jesse And Judy Take The 'Plunge'

by JOHN MAES

Jesse and Judy Tompkins will always have a soft spot in their hearts for the swimming pool at the Mount Prospect Holiday Inn. They were married in it yesterday.

Judy of 72 Beau Ct., Des Plaines, a nursing assistant at Holy Family Hospital in Des Plaines, exchanged nuptial vows with Tompkins, 700 W. Rand Rd., Arlington Heights, yesterday morning while standing in waist-deep water.

The ceremony was fast and simple with no organ music or long bridal procession. The swimsuit-clad maid of honor and best man strolled solemnly along the pool deck and stepped into the pool.

Escorted by Salvatore DiGiovanni, manager of the inn at 200 E. Rand Rd., the bride emerged in a white bikini with a long white lace coat over it.

THE REV. Maurice Wright, of the Logan Square Baptist Church in Chicago (who said he forgot his swimming trunks) performed the ceremony from the top step of the pool.

After vows were exchanged, the newlyweds took a nuptial swim to the other end of the pool where they were greeted with smiles and champagne by guests and inn employees who had flocked around the pool to witness the wedding.

According to the new Mrs. Tompkins, the decision to be married in the pool came while discussing wedding plans with DiGiovanni, and it sounded like a good idea.

"This was just something they decided to do on the spur of the moment," said DiGiovanni. "I thought it was a great idea."

Rev. Wright said he had no objections when the couple asked him to perform the ceremony in the pool. He said he wasn't shocked at the couple's request — he once married a couple on roller skates.

Contract For Dundee Work Expected Soon

The initial work on the road will be storm sewer construction, a former stumbling block to progress on the project. The rest of the work will begin next spring.

BUFFALO GROVE had refused to approve past plans for the project because the state was going to channel the water runoff from the road into the White Pines Ditch.

The village agreed to plans for the project after the state promised to construct an oversize drainpipe to divert water from the road to a retention basin to be built on the Arlington Country Club golf course.

Buffalo Grove and the Metropolitan Sanitary District will pay a portion of the costs for the $300,000 retention basin. The Illinois Division of Waterways also will fund part of the project, scheduled to begin about Nov. 1.

When completed, Dundee Road will extend as four lanes from Elmhurst Road through Buffalo Grove. The project also will include the realignment of Buffalo Grove and Arlington Heights roads where they intersect with Dundee Road.

This Morning In Brief

Convention At A Glance

Sen. George McGovern tonight is expected to accept the Democratic party's nomination for the presidency, which was given to him last night.

As the National Democratic Convention draws to an end the battles fought Monday night over the credentials of key state delegations apparently told the tale of the convention as a whole.

Facing the assembled Democrats now is the lone query of who will be the party's standard bearer with McGovern; who will be the vice-presidential candidate.

Although speculation focused on as many as a half-dozen public figures for that key post, the one candidate who could please everyone remained aloof.

Kennedy Says No

Senator Edward Kennedy of Massachusetts remained unmoved to the appeal for his nomination to the vice-presidency and remained in his home state.

Although McGovern himself has made no public statement about possible choices for a running mate, he did say he would telephone Kennedy after officially receiving the nomination.

Sources said he will either ask Kennedy to join the ticket or ask his advice in choosing a candidate. Kennedy has repeatedly said he will not accept the second spot.

Governors Choose Mills

Governors who met with McGovern yesterday reportedly urged him to offer the position to Kennedy or Rep. Wilbur Mills, D-Ark., who had earlier announced his withdrawal from the presidential race.

Others reportedly being considered included Sen. Abraham Ribicoff of Connecticut, Sen. Thomas Eagleton of Missouri, Sen. Philip A. Hart of Michigan, Gov. Reubin Askew of Florida and Leonard Woodcock, president of the United Auto Workers.

Wallace Rejected

Tuesday night's mild-mannered and restrained discussions over the party's platform typified the tone of the convention. In spite of an appeal from crippled Democratic hopeful George Wallace, the convention routinely voted down the Wallace planks on the platform and turned instead to a moderate platform inspired by the McGovern forces — but not as dramatically revolutionary as some of McGovern's early campaign speeches.

For Wallace, the last hope of the candidate was still to hold out the possibility of entering the presidential race as a third party candidate, thus ensuring some unpredictable vote tallies in November.

Youth Stay Calm

Outside, the hundreds of spectators to the convention remained as calm as the deliberations inside the convention hall itself. Police reported only the mildest of disturbances, virtually no arrests and generally good deportment among the young people living in tents.

Security remained strict, however, particularly around Governor Wallace as he traveled through the city.

3 Elements Basic To Safety On The Job: Council Chief

The machine, the man and the environment are the three essential elements that must be controlled to have absolute safety on the job, Howard Pyle, president of the National Safety Council, told Elk Grove Village businessmen Wednesday.

"It is the purpose of the Occupational Safety and Health Act (OSHA) of 1970 to set some of these guidelines to provide the safest and healthiest possible environment for every worker in the United States," said Pyle. He spoke to 120 members of the village Association of Industry and Commerce at their luncheon meeting.

"Employers are becoming increasingly aware of health hazards in their businesses and other conditions on the job that can seriously affect an employee's well-being," he said. Workmen's compensation takes care of things after the fact, but the occupational safety and health legislation was designed to remove potential problem situations.

He said OSHA has been criticized for being too trivial in some of its demands on industry, such as the heights of toilet seats, but in general the main points are what has been sought by the National Safety Council and progressive companies in the past.

PYLE SAID voluntary compliance with the new federal occupational safety and health regulations is needed. He said the drafters of the legislation stipulated that citations should be given by inspectors when they first see violations, to encourage employers to correct dangerous situations on their own.

"If a businessman knew he wouldn't be cited or have to pay a fine, he might wait until an inspector pointed out violations before making any changes," he said.

Pyle said a good safety program involved management leadership and participation, assignment of responsibility for safety regulations, maintenance of safe working conditions, a safety training program for employees and supervisors, keeping a record of accidents, providing medical and first aid facilities and acceptance of responsibility for safety by employees.

Pyle is a former White House aide and a two-term governor of Arizona.

Death Of A Cab Co.

A Palatine taxicab firm will offer its last ride early Saturday.

Palatine Cabs, based in the Palatine train depot, will go out of business at 1:30 a.m. Saturday.

William Daniels, owner of the six-cab fleet, said the move involves both personal and business reasons. He had operated the cab service in the Palatine area for three years.

Hunting Ridge Plans Picnic

Hunting Ridge residents will have their third annual Hunting Ridge Homeowner's Association picnic July 22 from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. in the Deer Grove Forest Preserve.

For $5 per family, the event will include a picnic lunch, beer, soft drinks and ice cream. Door prizes and prizes for winners of the picnic games are planned.

Hunting Ridge families may contact their area representative for tickets or call Bob Dotts, 359-6387, who is also taking names of people willing to work on the picnic plans.

Park Board Meeting

The Plum Grove Countryside Park District will hold its monthly meeting July 26 at 7:30 p.m. in the Rolling Meadows City Hall.

Firm Sells Safety

Mine Safety Appliances Co. started out in the World War I era making basic products for safety in mines when canaries in cages were still used to detect dangerous gases.

Today, more than 50 years later, MSA markets more than 4,000 lines of safety equipment for industry besides mine safety products and operates more than 100 branch offices around the world including Europe, Africa, India and the Far East.

"Recent trends toward work safety have greatly increased our market," said Al Lundin, manager of Chicago area office which operates out of Elk Grove Village at 370 Bond St.

"For instance, there isn't much of a mining industry around the Midwest so almost all the products we distribute from here are for industrial safety."

Gary, Ind. steel mills used MSA-built work helmets able to withstand the impact of molten steel along with gas, and carbon monoxide indicators able to detect noxious gases down to one part per billion.

FIRE DEPARTMENTS also have employed use of MSA breathing aids such as oxygen masks and respirators along with firemen's helmets, fireproof suits, and first-aid kits.

"Our company developed adhesive bandages long before Johnson and Johnson (the firm that makes Band-Aids) did," Lundin claims.

Factories also are utilizing the company's products and have purchased huge quantities of protective clothing, headwear and gloves. Also included in MSA's inventories is a barrier cream which protects hands against acids and harmful chemicals, and ear plugs which prevent hearing damage from excessive noise.

Village Approves Payout For Paramedic Gear

The Arlington Heights Village Board has approved the expenditure of $11,394 for emergency care medical equipment to be installed in Village ambulances.

The paramedic equipment will be operated beginning probably next month, by firemen who recently completed training at Northwest Community Hospital.

The new equipment will put ambulance attendants in radio contact with doctors at the hospital and also transmit visual indicators of the patient's condition.

Emergency treatment equipment for heart attack victims also is included in the ambulance package.

Besides Arlington Heights, Buffalo Grove, Hoffman Estates, Inverness, Mount Prospect, Palatine, Rolling Meadows, Schaumburg and possibly Wheeling are expected to participate in the new treatment program.

In addition, two local ambulance firms, Arlington Ambulance and Delta Ambulance, plan to offer the service.

Industry Hazards Are Disappearing

by JOHN MAES

"It was always an accepted truth," Lundin said, "that people who worked around punch-presses and other high noise areas would become deaf after a while. Earplugs have put a stop to that."

Recent noise abatement legislation protects workers from being exposed to noise levels exceeding 90 decibels for more than eight hours.

Also, many construction companies use MSA hard hats made of polycarbonate plastic which can withstand the force of a blow from a two-pound hammer. These hats are also used by Texaco Oil Co. and Chicago & North Western Ry.

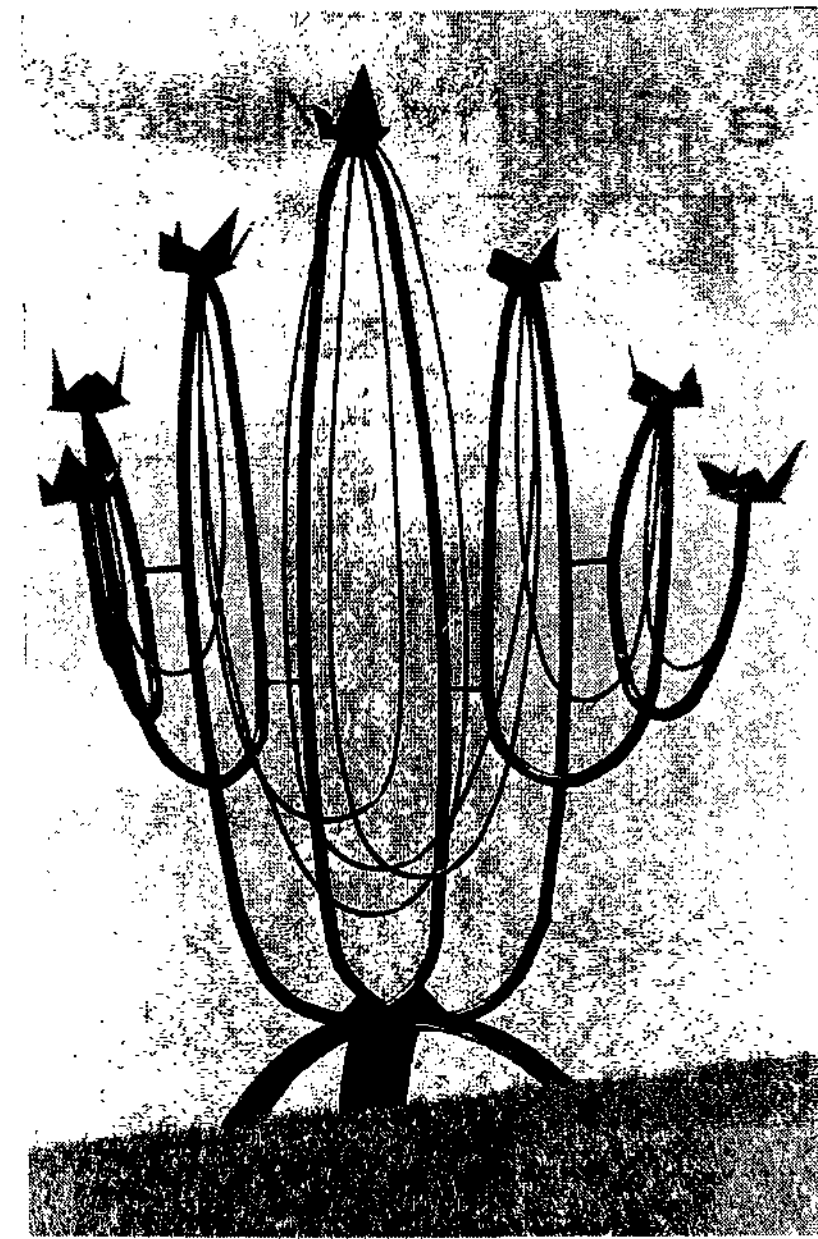

THE MINING industry, however, has by no means been forsaken by the company's progress in other areas.

During the recent mining disaster in Kellogg, Idaho, MSA representatives went immediately to the area to help coordinate shipping by plane of emergency supplies such as breathing aids and rescue equipment.

MSA also once developed a special harness to rescue a man trapped in a West Virginia mine.

"It won't be long before we develop special escape vehicles to suit this purpose," Lundin said.

In other areas of mine safety, gas detectors have replaced the canary in the cage. Miners are now equipped with gas masks and respirators to protect them from toxic mists and dust. Some breathing aids have alarm systems on them to warn the worker to leave a hazardous area and reach fresh air before his oxygen supply runs out.

in the show are "The Tree of Life," by sculptor Richard Hunt; "Elijah's Ascent to Heaven from Mount Carmel," by Pincus Shaar, and "The Emblems of the Twelve Tribes of Israel," by Dr. Joseph Young. The cemetery is at Rand Road and Wilke Avenue.

They also have developed a foam spreader that can extinguish a fire in a matter of seconds.

Lundin said the Federal Occupational Safety and Health Act passed in 1969, which outlines safety procedures industry must follow for their employees, has had a tremendous effect on MSA's market.

"NOT ONLY DO we manufacture more now," he added, "but all our products must meet certain quality standards."

The National Institute of Occupational Safety and Health (NIOSH), a federal agency, must approve all safety equipment before it can be used or sold. MSA submits samples of all their safety products for NIOSH approval, Lundin said.

As federal safety standards become even higher, mines and industry will become safer places to work.

Workers have been neglected for a long time," he said. "More legislation and better safety products are making it easier for them, though."

Occupational hazards may one day become a thing of the past and the motto of MSA may become common truth: "... that all men may work in safety."

New Park To Be Named For Hero Doug Lindberg

An undeveloped park in the Winston Park subdivision in Palatine will be named Doug Lindberg Park, after a 16-year-old youth who drowned trying to save two children from Lake Louise in June.

Although the Palatine park board's official policy has been to name parks after trees or birds, an exception was made when petitions were circulated in Winston Park and three residents spoke at Tuesday's board meeting. The motion to name the park after Lindberg carried by a 3-2 vote of park district commissioners.

The park will border on Lake Louise in northeast Winston Park.

The policy for naming parks still stands, said park district director Fred P. Hall, but the residents' request "couldn't be dismissed simply because a policy had been decided." Commissioners opposing the break from policy held that a memorial for Lindberg in the park would be more fitting. The action is an exception, not a change, in board policy, the board members emphasized.

SWIMMING POOLS surfaced again at Tuesday's meeting, with a final answer on the indoor-versus-outdoor pool issue set for the July 25 meeting. Birchwood Park, where the new pool would be built, was surveyed, and Hall reported on seasonal usages in Arlington Heights indoor and outdoor pools.

Superintendents from School Districts 211 and 15 are meeting with Hall this morning to determine what financial help the school districts could give to maintain an indoor pool during the school year. Usage figures from Arlington Heights included only park district use, not school use, to give the Palatine commissioners some idea how much use an indoor pool would get.

In the last fiscal year, 33,024 non-school people used Arlington Heights' indoor pool in the September through April period.

"That figure was lower than our park board had hoped to generate (in Palatine)," Hall said. Other attendance figures from Wheeling and Elk Grove Village indoor pools will be studied before the board decides what it will opt for in a park district referendum sometime this fall. A tentative $450,000 budget is planned for a swimming pool in Birchwood Park, whether the pool is indoor or outdoor.

Besides park names and swimming pools, the board dealt with one other long-time issue, the lease from Commonwealth Edison Co. for two miles of right-of-way between Virginia Lake School and Hicks Road. The land will be used for a bike trail through Palatine. Following some minor changes in wording, the lease will probably be finalized at the next meeting. Residents bordering on the trail may then begin licensing 50-foot segments of the trail. Only the middle 85 feet of the 185-foot-wide right-of-way will be used for the actual trail. The remaining 50 feet on either side will be licensed by the park district to residents and community groups at a nominal fee.

Navy Band To Present Concert Here Friday

The Great Lakes Naval Training Center Band will present a concert Friday night in Palatine.

The 32-member band, under the direction of Warrant Officer Dan Michaelson, will perform a smattering of naval and patriotic medleys, popular tunes and traditional music at 8 p.m. in the Palatine Hills recreation area.

Included in the program are "Fantasy of American Sailing Songs," "Washington's Grays March," "Moonlight Serenade," "Get Together," "Down Basie Street," "Light Vibrations," "Make Me Smile," "Born Free," "American Legion March," "We've Only Just Begun," "Outta Sight," "In the Mood," "Day Tripper," "God Bless America" and "Navy Medley."

$52,000 Mental Health Center Grant Coming

Elk Grove Village's Community Service has received a $52,000 grant from the state to start a mental health center.

Jordan Rosen, Community Service director, said a letter was received yesterday from Gov. Richard B. Ogilvie announcing that the grant was approved.

Details and stipulations of the grant were not given to Community Service. Rosen said the Community Service Board will hold a meeting once the details of the grant are known.

The grant would permit the establishment of a mental health center to serve Elk Grove and Schaumburg townships. These communities, along with Wheeling and Palatine townships, had been served by the Northwest Mental Health Clinic in Arlington Heights.

DR. EUGENE Trager, director of Northwest, had opposed the formation of the Community Service center, calling the move "premature."

But Dr. Trager said yesterday he was "happy for Jordan (Rosen)" that the grant was approved. He expects a gradual phasing out of his group's services in Elk Grove and Schaumburg townships as the Community Service center develops.

His group will still serve Wheeling and Palatine Townships.

Dr. Trager said that Northwest was given a $175,000 budget from the Illinois Department of Mental Health. This is an increase over last year's $130,000 budget, but was not as much as Northwest had requested. Dr. Trager said the clinic had asked for $195,000, but he said the lower sum was "adequate to do the job."

Community Service's application for the grant was submitted in January. Funds for the Department of Mental Health were among the last of the bills passed by the Illinois Legislature last month.

LAST DECEMBER, Rosen said the Community Service was applying for the grant "for the geographic concerns of our citizens and in terms of population growth we believe it would be difficult for one agency to handle all the four-township area."

Pending details of the grant, Community Service had planned to employ a part-time psychiatrist, two full-time social workers, a full-time outreach worker and a full-time secretary. In addition, the grant would be used to purchase medicines the psychiatrist may prescribe.

The center would provide screening for potential mental patients, care for persons released from mental hospitals and outpatient counseling for disturbed adults and children.

JESSE TOMPKINS OF Arlington Heights and Judy Springer of Des Plaines became man and wife in a watery wedding at Mount Prospect Holiday Inn swimming pool yesterday. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Maurice Wright of the Logan Square Baptist Church of Chicago.

New Clinic To Affect CAP?

Officials of the Mount Prospect Community Action Plan (CAP) are unsure how establishment of a new mental health center will affect their program, Robert Day, CAP director, said yesterday.

Elk Grove Village Community Service has received state funds to provide mental health services to Schaumburg and Elk Grove townships. CAP, a locally funded project, operates a telephone hotline and a free counseling service to residents in both Elk Grove and Wheeling townships.

"We'll have to wait and see what happens and how it will affect us," said Day. He said CAP's board of directors would probably discuss the matter at its next board meeting in August.

Day said several months ago the Elk Grove center might cause a duplication of effort. According to Community Service officials, the new center will provide for counseling of disturbed adults and children. CAP's ICE House, located in Elk Grove Township, provides the same type of counseling.

CAP officials have been working in conjunction with the Northwest Mental Health Association (NMHA) which has been serving Elk Grove, Schaumburg, Wheeling and Palatine townships. A NMHA official said yesterday he expects a gradual phasing out of the association's services in Elk Grove Township, because of the grant approval.

Chicago Youth Guilty

Gary L. DeRosa, 18, of Chicago, was found guilty Friday in Mount Prospect court of theft under $150 and was placed on one year's probation. Police caught DeRosa while he was taking two tires from the Mufich Buick parking lot, 801 E. Rand Rd., June 6.

In other court action Friday, Mrs. Richard J. Rickard, 415 N. Main St., dropped charges of battery against her husband. The incident allegedly took place June 16 in their home.

Two other defendants had their cases continued. Sherin M. Foreman, 18, of 636 W. Campbell St., Arlington Heights, will now appear Aug. 25 on charges of theft and possession of marijuana and a controlled drug (speed). She was arrested in Wieboldt's department store at Randolph last May.

Richard J. Pawlowski's new court date will be Aug. 18. The 22-year-old Bensenville man is charged with aggravated assault on David Greiner, 30 N. Donald, Arlington Heights.

Jesse and Judy Tompkins will always have a soft spot in their hearts for the swimming pool at the Mount Prospect Holiday Inn. They were married in it yesterday.

Judy of 72 Beau Ct., Des Plaines, a nursing assistant at Holy Family Hospital in Des Plaines, exchanged nuptial vows with Tompkins, 700 W. Rand Rd., Arlington Heights, yesterday morning while standing in waist-deep water.

The ceremony was fast and simple with no organ music or long bridal procession. The swimsuit-clad maid of honor and best man strolled solemnly along the pool deck and stepped into the pool.

Escorted by Salvatore DiGiovanni, manager of the inn at 200 E. Rand Rd., the bride emerged in a white bikini with a long white lace coat over it.

THE REV. Maurice Wright, of the Logan Square Baptist Church in Chicago (who said he forgot his swimming trunks) performed the ceremony from the top step of the pool.

After vows were exchanged, the newlyweds took a nuptial swim to the other end of the pool where they were greeted with smiles and champagne by guests and inn employees who had flocked around the pool to witness the wedding.

According to the new Mrs. Tompkins, the decision to be married in the pool came while discussing wedding plans with DiGiovanni, and it sounded like a good idea.

idea."

Rev. Wright said he had no objections when the couple asked him to perform the ceremony in the pool. He said he wasn't shocked at the couple's request—he once married a couple on roller skates.

Local Teacher-Salary Talks Begin

Prospect Heights Educational Association (PHEA) negotiators accepted a Dist. 23 school board proposal giving district teachers 10 sick days plus two personal days leave per year at salary talks Tuesday.

The session marked the beginning of salary negotiations between the two teams and the first bargaining session since the PHEA agreed to accept its professional negotiations (PN) agreement June 15.

The salary package includes recommendations for pay hikes with merit increases, starting teacher's salary, raises for increased education along with extra class and duty pay. The sick leave proposal, one of nine package items was the only one agreed on last night however.

The PHEA is asking a pay hike of 5.5 per cent plus merit increases of $800 yearly for superior, $600 for above average and $400 for competent teachers plus a proportionate 5.5 per cent wage increase for starting teachers.

THE PAY hike question was not resolved however because the recommended raise plus the merit increases exceeded a 5.5 per cent ceiling set for wage hikes by the federal government.

According to board negotiator Donald

McKay, any proposed wage hike over 5.5 per cent must be reviewed by the Internal Revenue Service (IRS). "We can't just approve a higher pay hike without IRS consent."

Larry Halter, PHEA spokesman feels Dist. 23 should qualify for the pay boost plus merit raises.

He said Dist. 23 is a "catchup district" meaning that previous raises have not exceeded the IRS ceiling.

Halter predicted the IRS would approve the raises. "IRS officials have told me this district can qualify as a catchup district and there should be no problems there," Halter said.

This Morning In Brief

Convention At A Glance

Sen. George McGovern tonight is expected to accept the Democratic party's nomination for the presidency, which was given to him last night.

As the National Democratic Convention draws to an end the battles fought Monday night over the credentials of key state delegations apparently told the tale of the convention as a whole.

Facing the assembled Democrats now is the lone query of who will be the party's standard bearer with McGovern, who will be the vice-presidential candidate.

Although speculation focused on as many as a half-dozen public figures for that key post, the one candidate who could please everyone remained aloof.

Kennedy Says No

Senator Edward Kennedy of Massachusetts remained unmoved to the appeal for his nomination to the vice-presidency and remained in his home state.

Although McGovern himself has made no public statement about possible choices for a running mate, he did say he would telephone Kennedy after officially receiving the nomination.

Sources said he will either ask Kennedy to join the ticket or ask his advice in choosing a candidate. Kennedy has repeatedly said he will not accept the second spot.

Governors Choose Mills

Governors who met with McGovern yesterday reportedly urged him to offer the position to Kennedy or Rep. Wilbur Mills, D-Ark., who had earlier announced his withdrawal from the presidential race.

Others reportedly being considered included Sen. Abraham Ribicoff of Connecticut, Sen. Thomas Eagleton of Missouri, Sen. Philip A. Hart of Michigan, Gov. Reubin Askew of Florida and Leonard Woodcock, president of the United Auto Workers.

Wallace Rejected

Tuesday night's mild-mannered and restrained discussions over the party's platform typified the tone of the convention. In spite of an appeal from crippled Democratic hopeful George Wallace, the convention routinely voted down the Wallace plank on the platform and turned instead to a moderate platform inspired by the McGovern forces—but not as dramatically revolutionary as some of McGovern's early campaign speeches.

For Wallace, the last hope of the candidate was still to hold out the possibility of entering the presidential race as a third party candidate, thus ensuring some unpredictable vote tallies in November.

Youth Stay Calm

Outside, the hundreds of spectators to the convention remained as calm as the deliberations inside the convention hall itself. Police reported only the mildest of disturbances, virtually no arrests and generally good deportment among the young people living in tents.

Security remained strict, however, particularly around Governor Wallace as he traveled through the city.

Who Are You? Village Will Try To Find Answer

by KURT BAER

Who really lives in Arlington Heights? What are their occupations, their likes and dislikes, their hobbies and friends? In search of answers to these and other questions the village planning department will sponsor a series of personal interviews with village residents beginning next week.

Results of the interviews will be included in a section of the new master plan for Arlington Heights, called "Arlington Heights Today."

Village Planner Joe Kesler hopes the interviews will add a personal dimension to the statistical facts and figures available in the U.S. Census reports for Arlington Heights.

Volunteers from the League of Women Voters and the Association of University Women will conduct the interviews, hopefully surveying 300 households throughout the village.

Four different questionnaires have been drawn up covering working men, married women, working married women and teenagers.

"THIS IS ONE aspect of planning that can be interesting and even exciting to the average person," Kesler says. "Much of planning, like traffic studies, water and sewer systems, has to be technical. But I hope the population profile will be more than just statistics."

Kesler says information derived from the interview will not be identified as coming from a particular individual and that persons interviewed will remain completely anonymous.

Survey questions touch on the family, occupation, social life and attitudes toward the community of the interviewees. Sample questions include:

"Do you notice any evidence of a generation gap within your family or generally speaking?"

"For what reasons did your present job originally appeal to you?"

"ARE THE PEOPLE within your social circle similar to you or diverse?"

"What are your views on the changing American morality and is this change evident in Arlington Heights?"

"Does residency in Arlington Heights contribute to your overall prestige?"

Kesler says the questions are not designed to be opinion surveys but rather points of departure for residents to talk about themselves and their role in the community.

In organizing the survey, the planning department divided Arlington Heights into 16 different geographical sections. Each of the 20 interviewers will make a random sample of 10 households in each section.

"Apartments as well as homes will be visited during the day and in the evening hours," Kesler said.

Each interviewer will carry a letter of introduction from the village identifying herself and explaining the purpose of the survey.

WHEN COMPLETED, information from interviews will be added to the census data and data from the planning department's residential survey which was mailed to 1,800 households last year.

Kesler says the planning department, which has already conducted a residential survey, a shopping survey and a manufacturing survey, has plans for just one more master plan-related survey and that will be on transportation.

Parks Pass Big Money Ordinance

An appropriations ordinance, stating that the Arlington Heights Park District will need over $12 million to operate during the 1972-73 fiscal year, was passed Tuesday night by the park board.

The ordinance also includes a special section to appropriate the $66,339 which the Cook County Clerk failed to levy for the 1971-72 fiscal year. The park board will make up the deficiency in this year's budget by issuing tax anticipation warrants.

The appropriation is down $50,000 from last year.

In other park district business, Jack C. Edwards was elected vice president of the board to replace William Meister who recently resigned.

The referendum committee reported that several residents of the park district are being considered for the chairmanship of the citizens' referendum committee. Once a chairman is named, the committee is expected to take one month to organize and one month to campaign for the referendum.

ACCORDING TO a tentative timetable, the $17 million referendum to finance an indoor ice skating rink and park improvements, will be held in late October. There was also some discussion of coupling the referendum with the national elections.

"I don't know if having a referendum with a general election is feasible, but we'd sure get more votes out," said Thomas Thornton, director of parks and recreation.

In other business, the park district attorney was instructed to revise two park district ordinances. One will keep parking lots in the park district open to 11:30 p.m., which is the time that park buildings close. The other ordinance change will make it legal to park bicycles in places other than bicycle racks.

The park district board also signed a lease agreement with Southminster Presbyterian Church, Central Road at Dryden, which allows the park to use an acre of land north of the parking area for $1 a year. The agreement calls for the park district to maintain the land.

by JOHN MAES

Pool Attendance Drops

Over 70,000 more people used the Arlington Heights Park District swimming pools in June of 1971 than they did this June.

Reasons for the poor swim turn-out in June were attributed by Ronald Dodd, superintendent of recreation, to the facts that the pools opened a week later this year and the weather has been unseasonably cool.

Because attendance was very low, daily swim receipts were $6,850 lower than last year. Total attendance for the month was 32,213 and daily swim tickets produced $2,690 in revenue. Dodd also reported that morning programs at the area parks have been smaller than in past years.

"Since summer school (in School Dist. 25) registration is free, numerous children are participating this year, and this has had an effect on our morning programs," Dodd said.

Though some programs have been eliminated this year because of lack of participation, overall receipts of summer activities to date are $3,000 more than last year's totals. So far, $33,950 has been generated by summer activities.

Boundary Issue On Board Agenda

The High School Dist. 214 Board of Education will begin considering attendance boundaries for Buffalo Grove High School at its next meeting July 27. Supt. Edward Gilbert told the board Monday night that preliminary discussions on the attendance boundaries can begin at that time. He said a small committee of district administrators and citizens has already been working on the problem.

Redrawing attendance boundaries has traditionally been among the most controversial issues facing the Dist. 214 board. In 1970, the board became involved in a lengthy dispute when considering boundaries for Rolling Meadows High School, which opened in fall.

Board members agreed Monday not to look at specific boundary proposals at the next meeting, but instead discuss general considerations that will go into their final decision.

Board Pres. Ray Ericson said he wanted to discuss general board concerns before looking at specifics in hopes of avoiding the problems that developed over the Rolling Meadows decision. With Rolling Meadows, the board began with specific proposals and then had counter proposals presented by angry citizen's groups.

THE BOARD has agreed to make decisions on Buffalo Grove boundaries by Dec. 1 of this year. The school is scheduled to open in September of 1973.

Gilbert did not believe the board should hold public hearings on any specific plan this summer, but should wait until September.

"I don't think it would be wise for the board to get into holding hearings in August," he said. "We should probably wait until the beginning of school and I would expect the board to make a decision in July."

Gilbert added he would not present any recommendation to the board, but would present alternate maps with possible boundary changes outlined on them.

Buffalo Grove High School is now under construction at Arlington Heights and Dundee roads in Buffalo Grove. Observers have expected that attendance boundaries for the new school will probably be drawn to take students away from Hersey High School in Arlington Heights and Wheeling High School.

Contract For Dundee Work Expected Soon

After several delays, state highway officials now say the contract for the widening of Dundee Road from Elmhurst Road to Rte. 53 definitely will be awarded in August. Construction probably will begin about a month later.

The contract originally was scheduled for the state Division of Highways' July letting, but there was not enough money left for the $6 million project after June bids were let.

Al Sifer, project engineer, told the Herald Wednesday that funds now are available and the project is scheduled for consideration Aug. 4.

The initial work on the road will be storm sewer construction, a former stumbling block to progress on the project. The rest of the work will begin next spring.

BUFFALO GROVE had refused to approve past plans for the project because the state was going to channel the water runoff from the road into the White Pines Ditch.

The village agreed to plans for the project after the state promised to construct an oversize drainpipe to divert water from the road to a retention basin to be built on the Arlington Country Club golf course.

Buffalo Grove and the Metropolitan Sanitary District will pay a portion of the costs for the $300,000 retention basin. The Illinois Division of Waterways also will fund part of the project, scheduled to begin about Nov. 1.

When completed, Dundee Road will extend as four lanes from Elmhurst Road through Buffalo Grove. The project also will include the realignment of Buffalo Grove and Arlington Heights roads where they intersect with Dundee Road.

Local Teacher-Salary Talks Begin

Prospect Heights Educational Association (PHEA) negotiators accepted a Dist. 23 school board proposal giving district teachers 10 sick days plus two personal days leave per year at salary talks Tuesday.

The session marked the beginning of salary negotiations between the two teams and the first bargaining session since the PHEA agreed to accept its professional negotiations (PN) agreement June 15.

The salary package includes recommendations for pay hikes with merit increases, starting teacher's salary, raises for increased education along with extra class and duty pay.

The sick leave proposal, one of nine package items was the only one agreed on last night however.

The PHEA is asking a pay hike of 5.5 per cent plus merit increases of $800 yearly for superior, $600 for above average and $400 for competent teachers plus a proportionate 5.5 per cent wage increase for starting teachers.

THE PAY hike question was not resolved however because the recommended raise plus the merit increases exceed a 5.5 per cent ceiling set for wage hikes by the federal government.

According to board negotiator Donald McKay, any proposed wage hike over 5.5 per cent must be reviewed by the Internal Revenue Service (IRS). "We can't just approve a higher pay hike without IRS consent."

Larry Halter, PHEA spokesman feels Dist. 23 should qualify for the pay boost plus merit raises.

He said Dist. 23 is a "catchup district" meaning that previous raises have not exceeded the IRS ceiling.

Halter predicted the IRS would approve the raises. "IRS officials have told me this district can qualify as a catchup district and there should be no problems there," Halter said.

HE FEELS both sides are more flexible now that salary talks are under way and that they should move more swiftly than the procedural debate. This argument stalemated the talks for more than a month and at one point threatened to send them into outside arbitration.

Halter was not able to estimate how long a settlement will take, but added the teachers would like to have a contract before classes resume in September.

Faculty, Board, Mediator All To Meet

by RICH HONACK

The Wheeling Faculty Council (WFC) and the Dist. 21 Board of Education negotiating teams are going back to the bargaining table — with the help of a mediator.

The two groups were informed Tuesday that federal mediator Ed Wise will meet with them at 10 a.m. July 27.

Wise's name was given to the groups by the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service. He is coming to the school district from the service's Chicago office.

The session with the mediator will be the first time in almost two months that the two teams have met. Their last meeting was June 8, at which time the WFC called for impasse procedures to begin.

AFTER SEVERAL verbal attacks from the spokesmen of both groups over the call for impasse and the threat of court action, the board agreed to the impasse on June 22.

The two teams are deadlocked over the entire financial package of the contract and three items in the procedural package.

The items in the financial package deadlocking acceptance are:

- Increase in teachers' salaries.
- Number of teacher sick days and personal leave days.
- Amount of insurance paid by the district for a teacher.
- Amount of fees, books and tuition for which teachers are reimbursed when taking advanced college courses.

—Professional compensation and related provisions for experienced teachers coming into the district.

In the procedural package teachers and the board are at odds over the following:

- The entire scope of the contract and what it includes.
- Whether or not fact-finding should be included in the impasse procedures.
- Whether or not the strike clause should be included in the contract if it is signed on a multi-year basis.

Representatives from both teams speculated yesterday that for the first time in the 1972-73 contract discussions the talks will be closed to the public. Since the third meeting all sessions have been open. JOHN BARGER, chairman of the board team, and Larry Halter, spokesman for the WFC, said they believe the talks will be closed because mediators always work behind closed doors.

Halter, on the other hand, has been through mediation, and said it would be almost impossible to open up the talks.

The mediator usually separates the two teams and then goes back and forth between them — trying to settle differences and getting agreement in the problem areas, Halter said.

The first meeting with the mediator is expected to define the open issues and set up some type of ground rules as to how he will run the program. It is not known if Wise expects to get to the work of mediation at the first session.

According to the 1971-72 contract, Wise has 20 days from the time the two teams agree on him as the mediator in which to settle the dispute. If he does not do so in the allotted time the talks will go to fact-finding, and a fact-finder will be brought into the bargaining.

The two teams are expected to make a concession in the 20-day clause, because if they strictly adhere to it Wise will have only four days to try to bring them together.

Both Barger and Halter feel something will be worked out to give Wise more time.

The July 27 meeting will be in the Dist. 21 Administration Building, 999 W. Dundee Rd., Wheeling.

DIAMONDS ARE A girl's best friend, agrees Mrs. Grace Mayer of Arlington Heights, who was the Chicagoland winner of a $15,000 one carat diamond recently given away by Martin J. Kelly Oldsmobile Inc., Arlington

Mobile Home Park Owner Fined $800

Associate Circuit Court Judge Anthony J. Scollito yesterday fined the owner of the Golf State Mobile Home Park on south Arlington Heights Road $800 for nuisance violations on the property.

The village had cited the owner of the property, Nicholas Tselos, for operating the trailer park without a license and for several sanitation violations which the village charged constituted a public nuisance.

The trailer park was closed last month in accordance with an agreement reached a year ago between Tselos and the Village Board of Trustees.

Oakton Narrows Choice For College Site To 4

by KATHERINE BOYCE

Efforts to find a permanent campus for Oakton Community College in Maine or Niles townships have now been centered on four sites according to college officials.

The Herald has learned that one of the four locations is the DeLaine Horse Farm, 6331 Beckwith Rd., Morton Grove, a 40-plus acre site adjacent to a Cook County Forest Preserve north of Dempster Street.

The four locations are among 23 under consideration by Oakton officials, who were unsuccessful this spring in obtaining a 105-acre vacant cemetery site in Niles from the Chicago Catholic Archdiocese.

LeRoy Wauck, president of the college's board of trustees, yesterday confirmed that the horse farm is one of the four properties under consideration but stressed that no final decision has been made on a campus location and "no one site has priority."

HE SAID THE Illinois Junior College Board is aware of Oakton's proceedings and has not expressed disapproval of any of the sites under consideration. The state board's approval and subsequent withdrawal of approval for the Maryhill Cemetery site in Niles helped lead to the controversy that forced Oakton to abandon its choice of that site in April.

Paul Gilson, Oakton trustee and chairman of the board's site committee, said the horse farm is "definitely one of the possibilities" but added that his committee has come to no decision on a permanent campus site. "The site committee has not recommended anything to the whole board," he said.

The identities of the three other sites under consideration have not been disclosed. Louise Hart, co-owner of the Morton Grove horse farm, said she has not been contacted by Oakton and added that the property "isn't for sale."

The farm was one of the 23 sites included on a list of properties given preliminary consideration that was released two years ago by college officials.

Oakton Pres. William Koehnline said the fact that the trustees are "focusing in" on four sites "doesn't mean we've set aside the 19 others." He said the college is willing to consider any site not on the list and acknowledged that several of the 23 have been ruled out for various reasons.

TWO LOCATIONS in the northwest corner of Oakton's college district, made up of Maine and Niles townships, have been offered for sale by the Archdiocese and may be among the three others being given prime consideration.

Although the two, the southeast corner of Wolf and Foundry roads in Des Plaines, and a site on the south side of Central Road east of the Des Plaines River, are not centrally located or easily accessible, they have one advantage college officials have had difficulty finding — an owner that is willing to sell.

The Oakton Board in April dropped a condemnation suit against the Archdiocese and another suit against the Illinois Junior College Board when it ended efforts to obtain the Maryhill property.

Community opposition, pressure from the Archdiocese and the state board's withdrawal of its approval for the site helped stir a controversy that ended with the defeat of incumbent Board Pres. Milton Falkoff and a subsequent board vote to drop the two lawsuits.

Wauck was reelected to the board last April for a one-year term. His campaign centered on getting a site as soon as possible.

"I've got to be described as a frustrated chairman," said Wauck, "I'd hoped we would have had something by now." He said, "It isn't that we aren't working," but it is a problem to get board members, lawyers and land owners together for discussion. Discussion has narrowed "down to a very few sites," said Wauck.

"IT LOOKS PRETTY clear that there won't be a referendum before fall," said Wauck, but the committee hopes to choose a site by September and hold a referendum before board elections in April.

Gilson said "meetings have been held with representatives of the Illinois Junior College Board and possible sites have been identified to them."

"Selection of the suitable and satisfactory site is our first priority," he said, adding that "no one site is going to satisfy everyone."

The site committee has been investigating possible locations since the college was formed two years ago. Primary considerations are access to roads, traffic flow, central location in the district, availability of water sewers, fire and police protection and "free use of adjoining recreational areas if possible," said Gilson. He said one good point about the DeLaine Farm site is that it is next to a forest preserve area.

Gilson said the committee is looking for a willing seller and doesn't want to condemn land.

"We're faced with the history of Maryhill," he said. The committee is consid-

They're Married In A Pool

by JOHN MAES
Jesse and Judy Tompkins will always have a soft spot in their hearts for the swimming pool at the Mount Prospect Holiday Inn. They were married in it yesterday.

Judy of 72 Beau Ct., Des Plaines, a nursing assistant at Holy Family Hospital in Des Plaines, exchanged nuptial vows with Tompkins, 700 W. Rand Rd., Arlington Heights, yesterday morning while standing in waist-deep water.

The ceremony was fast and simple with no organ music or long bridal procession. The swimsuit-clad maid of honor and best man strolled solemnly along the pool deck and stepped into the pool.

Escorted by Salvatore DiGiovanni, manager of the inn at 200 E. Rand Rd., the bride emerged in a white bikini with a long white lace coat over it.

THE REV. Maurice Wright, of the Logan Square Baptist Church in Chicago (who said he forgot his swimming trunks) performed the ceremony from the top step of the pool.

After vows were exchanged, the newlyweds took a nuptial swim to the other end of the pool where they were greeted with smiles and champagne by guests and inn employees who had flocked around the pool to witness the wedding.

According to the new Mrs. Tompkins, the decision to be married in the pool came while discussing wedding plans with DiGiovanni, and it sounded like a good idea.

Rev. Wright said he had no objections when the couple asked him to perform the ceremony in the pool. He said he wasn't shocked at the couple's request — he once married a couple on roller skates.

Niles Man Dies In Michigan Auto Crash

GREEN BAY, Wis. (UPI)—James L. Kressin, 28, of Niles, died in St. Vincent's Hospital here Wednesday from injuries sustained earlier in the day in an auto accident near Iron Mountain, Mich.

Kressin was alone in his car on U.S. 2 north of Iron Mountain when he lost control of the auto which ran off the roadway, throwing him from the vehicle, authorities said.

Air Pollution Study Of O'Hare Nears Completion

A $220,000 air pollution study of O'Hare International Airport will be completed in early October, according to spokesmen for Argonne National Laboratory.

The study, sponsored by grants awarded last December by the Federal Aviation Administration (FAA) and a state environmental agency, was designed to help create new air pollution standards and to find new ways to end airport pollution problems. FAA spokesmen have said.

Several Northwest suburban officials also said, when the grants were announced, that the study could be used to document growing O'Hare pollution problems, and to show the need for a third Chicago-area airport.

DON ROTE, who heads the Argonne study, told the Herald yesterday that all information necessary for the project has been gathered, and several more months will be needed to analyze findings and to draw recommendations and conclusions.

The study began with collection of information by the Atlantic Research Corp., a subcontractor to Argonne, a federal research laboratory near Lemont. Atlantic Research tested the air above O'Hare and also used an equipment-filled truck and measurement devices to measure air in Des Plaines, Elk Grove Village, Franklin Park and Addison.

Researchers measured air pollution from jet planes, airport service vehicles and automobile traffic throughout the airport area.

From this information, researchers will try to find out how the size of the airport, the number of flights, weather and other factors affect the amount of pollution generated from the airport. Rote has said.

Other research was also conducted at Orange County Airport in California — a much smaller airport than O'Hare — to provide comparison statistics, Rote indicated.

THE ARGONNE researchers then took these statistics and other information, including the effect of weather and air inversions, and rewrote them into mathematical and scientific relationships.

These were programmed into a room-size IBM 360 computer, so that a computer model of O'Hare was created — a model which would predict what air pollution level would be created if there were a certain number of flights, a certain level of auto traffic and various weather conditions.

From this model when fully completed, the researchers could predict the effect of increased air traffic, according to Rote. They could also help planners of the proposed new Chicago airport to design a less polluting facility.

"The Illinois Institute for Environmental Quality, the state agency that had provided part of the study grant, wants to use the results to solve airport problems throughout the state, according to Rote."

FAA spokesmen have told the Herald the study would be used to help create air pollution standards for airports.

Impact Wrench Taken

A pneumatic drive impact wrench valued at $176 was stolen from a Des Plaines automotive garage last weekend.

Police said burglars broke in a window on the side of Oakton Automotive Service, 1684 Oakton St. According to reports the power tool was taken from a work bench in the garage.

Governors Choose Mills

Governors who met with McGovern yesterday reportedly urged him to offer the position to Kennedy or Rep. Wilbur Mills, D-Ark., who had earlier announced his withdrawal from the presidential race.

Others reportedly being considered included Sen. Abraham Ribicoff of Connecticut, Sen. Thomas Eagleton of Missouri, Sen. Philip A. Hart of Michigan, Gov. Reubin Askew of Florida and Leonard Woodcock, president of the United Auto Workers.

Wallace Rejected

Tuesday night's mild-mannered and restrained discussions over the party's platform typified the tone of the convention. In spite of an appeal from crippled Democratic hopeful George Wallace, the convention routinely voted down the Wallace planks on the platform and turned instead to a moderate platform inspired by the McGovern forces — but not as dramatically revolutionary as some of McGovern's early campaign speeches.

For Wallace, the last hope of the candidate was still to hold out the possibility of entering the presidential race as a third party candidate, thus ensuring some unpredictable vote tallies in November.

Youth Stay Calm

Outside, the hundreds of spectators to the convention remained as calm as the deliberations inside the convention hall itself. Police reported only the mildest of disturbances, virtually no arrests and generally good deportment among the young people living in tents.

Security remained strict, however, particularly around Governor Wallace as he traveled through the city.

This Morning In Brief

Convention At A Glance

Sen. George McGovern tonight is expected to accept the Democratic party's nomination for the presidency, which was given to him last night.

As the National Democratic Convention draws to an end the battles fought Monday night over the credentials of key state delegations apparently told the tale of the convention as a whole.

Facing the assembled Democrats now is the lone query of who will be the party's standard bearer with McGovern, who will be the vice-presidential candidate.

Although speculation focused on as many as a half-dozen public figures for that key post, the one candidate who could please everyone remained aloof.

Kennedy Says No

Senator Edward Kennedy of Massachusetts remained unmoved to the appeal for his nomination to the vice-presidency and remained in his home state.

Although McGovern himself has made no public statement about possible choices for a running mate, he did say he would telephone Kennedy after officially receiving the nomination.

Sources said he will either ask Kennedy to join the ticket or ask his advice in choosing a candidate. Kennedy has repeatedly said he will not accept the second spot.

Special Training As Scout Leader

Bill Gradi, son of Mr. and Mrs. William M. Gradi, of Des Plaines, is receiving specialized training in Scout leadership at Philmont Scout Ranch and Explorer Base in the Rocky Mountains of northeastern New Mexico.

Gradi, 15, a Star Scout, is one of more than 800 Scouts selected from across the nation to participate in the 12-day summer course at the Junior Leader Instructor Training Camp, located on the 214-square mile ranch. The purpose of the course is to prepare these Scouts to assist their council in training other junior leaders.

A member of Troop 38, sponsored by the Orchard Place School, Gradi is receiving intensive instruction in patrol and troop activity planning, hike planning, campfire planning and conducting training programs.

The Junior Leader Training Camp is part of a far-reaching program conducted by the Boy Scouts of America at Philmont, involving more than 15,000 Scouts and leaders who hike the mountain trails each summer.

Oakton Campus Sites Down To Four

ering the two sites offered by the Archdiocese, said Gilson, but it is not known whether they are included in the three other sites being given prime consideration now. The two sites were rejected by the board last December because of drainage and transportation problems.

Kochline said the committee is not actively seeking sites outside the community college district. Gov. Richard B. Ogilvie recently signed into law a bill which places all Illinois territory in a junior college district. Under the law, which becomes effective Aug. 1, 1974, Illinois residents have the option of forming their own junior college district or joining one near them.

OAKTON TRUSTEES are planning a campus to serve all likely students in the existing district.

"The people of Niles and Maine townships voted to form a community college in 1969 and they would resent it if we built outside the district," said Kochline.

A Skokie resident has suggested that Niles West High School be converted to use by Oakton. Kochline said such a move might be a good idea but he doesn't think it could happen.

He said the transfer of property from one government body to another is difficult and doesn't occur often. Kochline said it would be difficult to "impose a new character" on the Skokie high school, in order to make it into a community college.

Stanton Leggett, president of Leggett and Associates, Inc., an education consulting firm in Chicago, has been hired by the board to formulate building plans for the new campus when the permanent site is found.

Leggett is asking students, faculty and administrators, as well as trustees what kind of campus they want for Oakton. He plans to use that information along with projected enrollment figures and Illinois Junior College Board student and classroom space ratios to devise a general plan for campus buildings to be given to college architects.

According to Leggett, the Illinois Junior College plan suggests a maximum junior college enrollment which is the equivalent of 6,000 full-time students. In projecting future enrollment the drop in the birth rate and the possible addition of new territory to Oakton's junior college district must be considered, said Leggett.

LEGGETT SUGGESTS that 50 acres should be the minimum size of the permanent site. Parking is a major problem for the community college, said Leggett. The number of parking spaces needed for the school goes up in direct proportion to enrollment, he said, whereas building space increases by only half the rate of the enrollment increase.

The total amount of space for a junior college with an enrollment of 6,000 has been set at 260,000 square feet by the Illinois Junior College Board. "This is not a generous allowance," said Leggett, and educators must plan carefully.

When Leggett completes his study in the fall and it is approved by the board, it will be given to college architects.

How to beat the savings squeeze.

It's so hard to save a buck. By the time all the bills are paid, there's nothing left to squeeze out of your paycheck for savings.

But there is a way to build a nest egg without having to worry about it. When you join the Payroll Savings Plan where you work, an amount you designate will be set aside automatically from each paycheck and invested in U.S. Savings Bonds. By saving a little from each paycheck, you don't feel the pinch. And before long, you'll find you've a sizable nest egg stashed away.

And now there's a bonus interest rate on all U.S. Savings Bonds—for E Bonds,  $5\frac{1}{2}\%$  when held to maturity of 5 years, 10 months (4% the first year). That extra  $\frac{1}{2}\%$ , payable as a bonus at maturity, applies to all Bonds issued since June 1, 1970 . . . with a comparable improvement for all older Bonds.

Ease your savings squeeze. Join the Payroll Savings Plan.

Bonds are safe. If lost, stolen, or destroyed, we replace them. When needed, they can be cashed or loaned. They may be altered and re-issued. And always remember, Bonds are a smart way to save.

RESPONSES: Talked with Lucille Weideman, sanitarian in Des Plaines, after last week's "roach" column. She, too, is very much aware of the problem and has been for several years.

Last year she attempted to organize homeowners on Stockton Street to encourage a unified effort to rid the block of the water bugs. She had little success.

It seems a number of home owners had not seen the ugly black bugs in their basement and assumed they didn't have them. That may have been true. But you can guarantee that they suddenly were invaded by the bugs once their neighbors exterminated their homes. The water bugs have a habit of simply moving from home to home once exterminating begins.

Individual attempts to be rid of the bugs will result in a home owner being able to control them — but rarely to completely eliminate them. That takes an area effort — something that hasn't happened yet.

LUCILLE GAVE a few tips on keeping the bugs from your home. Spread a layer of chlordane (an insect poison) inside your home where the house sits on the foundation another layer should be spread outside along the groundline. If you keep your shrubs cut 18 inches from your building it will also help to discourage the bugs.

After hearing from several other residents in town it seems the water bug problem is not limited to the south side. A housewife from the center of town walked into her kitchen late one night to find more than a dozen of the things scurrying across the floor. The Orchard Place area has its bugs and so does the part of Des Plaines just west of the downtown section, according to other residents.

Gala '72 Benefit Preparations Set

Invitations have been mailed for Gala '72, the seventh annual benefit for Lutheran General Hospital in Park Ridge. It will be held Saturday, July 22, at the Marriott Motor Hotel in Chicago.

Last year a capacity crowd of more than 800 persons attended the fund-raising party, and about $25,000 was raised. Proceeds last year were used to purchase a mobile image intensifier that performs highly detailed fluoroscopy, hospital officials said.

Featured entertainment will include singer Jeanne Steel, comedian and harmonica player Johnny O'Brien, the Hal Kartin Orchestra and the Jimmy Cross Band. Proceeds will be used to provide special aid to needy patients.

The benefit is supported by the medical staff, Service League and Men's Association of Lutheran General. Tickets for the Gala are $30 and can be obtained from the hospital.

Boat Motor Stolen

Thieves stole a 10 horsepower outboard motor from an unlocked garage sometime during the weekend.

Richard Schawaber, 1410 Cindy Ln., told police his overhead garage door was closed, but not locked, at the time of the burglary.

I'VE COLLECTED more than $500 of the $580.52 I was pledged for the Place For People volleyball marathon. Several of my sponsors sent in more money than they had pledged along with little notes of medical advice for sore limbs and strained muscles.

Everyone who had to pay took it good naturally — even though a lot of the "big money" sponsors never expected the old gal to last 38 hours. My super-sponsor (who pledged $2 an hour) has taken to calling me ironman but he says it with a smile and you can bet I'm going to call him first next year when I'm looking for sponsors.

Got a letter with my check from Aid. Alan Abrams, which read in part: "Notwithstanding the fact that your 38-hour marathon is possibly violative of the Wages and Hours Act, we are pleased to make payment in accordance with our prior understanding." Leave it to a lawyer. The only thing that was missing was "the party of the first part . . . the party of the second part."

Al also sent me a copy of the City Code and Judiciary committee report on "Ordinance on Cats" in reply to my cats column. I was glad he did. Here's what it says:

" . . . the problems of cats are not analogous to those of dogs and accordingly cannot be subject to the same requirements such as licensing, leashing, vaccinating; that those in favor of cats and those who oppose cats agree that no cat owner has the right to unreasonably interfere with the person or property of another; and that our Health Nuisance Ordinance in Chapter 15 accordingly should be amended to include as a nuisance the keeping of a cat so as to unreasonably interfere with the person or property of another . . ."

The proposed amendment was agreed to by both the pro and anti-cat factions in town who had testified at public hearings. The committee report was tabled, after several aldermen who had not attended the public hearings proposed vaccinating, licensing, leashing, etc., according to Al.

He suggested that any residents who feel strongly about the cat ordinance contact their aldermen rather than committee members.

THE COPS BEAT the kids — using bats and balls no less. The occasion was the Des Plaines Police Department vs. Place For People softball game last Sunday at Algonquin Field.

The men in blue shed their stars and handcuffs for sweat suits and whacked out 38 runs — trouncing the kids by 30.

West Park To Hold Treasure Hunt

West Park, 631 S. Wolf Rd., Des Plaines, will hold its third annual treasure hunt tomorrow at 9:15 a.m. Youngsters are invited to come and search for buried treasure. On Monday, July 17, West Park will have a peanut hunt, followed by a bicycle trip to Sims Bowl for a bowling party. Children must pay for their bowling and everyone will receive a prize.

Mikva: $3 Million 'Drop In Bucket'

Noise Study Grant Is Hit

U.S. Rep. Abner Mikva, D-2nd yesterday criticized a recent $3 million federal grant for research on jet airplane noise reduction, for being "a drop in the bucket."

The grant, to the General Electric Corp. of Avondale, Ohio, would not even begin to provide enough funds to do a thorough and innovative study of the aircraft noise problems, Mikva told the Herald.

According to Federal Aviation Administration (FAA) spokesmen yesterday, the grant contract was awarded late last month to conduct research into ways of muffling jet noise, creation of less noisy engines, and production of new noise absorbent materials.

MIKVA SAID "tens of millions" should be spent to research the health hazard created by airplane noise. The answer to jet noise isn't in "trinkets for engines" but complete redesign of airplanes and changes in landing and take-off procedures, Mikva said.

Admitted To Bar

Francis A. Nolan of 53 Seventh Ave., Des Plaines, a graduate of the College of Santa Fe, N.M. and The John Marshall Law School in Chicago, was recently admitted to the Illinois Bar in ceremonies held at the State Armory in Springfield.

City Aid. Alan Abrams, a member of the city council's environmental controls committee, also criticized the size of the federal grant yesterday, saying it is a "pittance, and an insult." The grant shows how little the federal government is concerned about the jet noise problem, he said.

A recent Northeastern Illinois Planning Commission report indicated that more than half of Des Plaines would be subjected to unsafe and unhealthy noise levels by 1975 unless steps are taken to reduce engine noise or to change flight patterns. The commission recommended construction in the southern two-thirds of Des Plaines of only well-insulated apartment buildings, because single-family homes will not be able to protect residents from the noise.

MIKVA SAID yesterday that about $2 million of the funds had been earmarked for noise research by Congress, as part research for the supersonic transport, the SST. But when the SST was finally rejected, the U.S. Department of Transportation (DOT) retained control over the already budgeted research funds.

"DOT is trying to spend the very minimum it can, to keep congressmen from complaining," Mikva said.

Research should be done now to find ways for jets to land at slower speeds, Mikva said. It might be possible, he said, to land a jet with non-jet, propeller engines, and only use the jet engines while the plane is airborne.

Mikva also indicated that the federal government would have to push hard to get the private airplane industry to create quieter jets, because no incentive now exists.

If more funds were spent to research the real damage noise creates — the health hazards and damage to human lives — the federal government would be forced by public opinion to force industrial compliance, he said.

When Kids And Parents Clash

Cyndie Sherly Helps Them Communicate

WHILE CYNDIE SHERLY'S main work is with young people who come to The Bridge, a youth center in Palatine, her job brings her into contact with parents too. She believes most unhappy relationships kids have with their families stem from a lack of communication and she tries to improve that.

by BILLIE BACHHUBER

Cyndie Sherly is well acquainted with "people problems." As a youth consultant with the Youth Services Bureau in Palatine — better known as The Bridge — she's heard them all: dissatisfactions at home and in school, drugs, unwanted pregnancies, dating troubles, the draft.

But Cyndie thinks most family difficulties really stem from what she terms "relationship problems." Having talked with family members from 3 to 85, she's concluded, "Family trouble comes from lack of communication, not a generation gap or how much money a family has." The same kinds of problems occur in a moneyed community like Inverness and a more moderate income town like Rolling Meadows, she said.

In dealing with young people who bring their troubles to her, Cyndie also becomes acquainted with parents and says she enjoys working with them as well as with their children. Though she does not contact parents unless the young people who seek her help give their consent, she is always happy to talk to the parents.

MRS. SHERLY, a graduate of Lake Erie College in Painesville, Ohio, with a degree in sociology, has talked to PTAs and other parent groups on family relationships.

This spring she moderated a 10-week group session for parents at Harper College. It was organized to give parents an opportunity to discover and exchange ideas, discuss their feelings and talk with others who had similar problems. The group read and discussed Thomas Gordon's "Parent Effectiveness" and books by Haim Ginott, child development authority.

While only women attended this pilot project, Cyndie said all of them, interested in being better parents, felt they learned a lot and were satisfied with how things went. This group has now disbanded for the summer, but Mrs. Sherly hopes another will be formed. Anyone interested may call her at 359-7490.

"PERHAPS IN THE FUTURE we can organize some encounter experiences, engage some special speakers and set up workshops for parents," she suggested enthusiastically.

Mrs. Sherly got into her present work at The Bridge after moving with her husband, Douglas, to Schaumburg two years ago. She was hired by the Palatine Youth Committee to help set up the Youth Services Bureau.

She had worked for the Opportunities Industrialization Center, a federally funded school in Erie, Pa., which gave job training to those from 15 to 85. Employed as a pre-vocational counselor, Cyndie also helped trainees with their personal problems. Her previous experience also includes working as a recreational supervisor for the Erie Park District and counseling and tutoring children in foster homes.

SINCE ITS FOUNDING The Bridge has grown from its original staff of three to nine youth consultants. Troubled youngsters call for help day and night, often just needing someone to talk to, Cyndie said.

Cyndie listens and tries to help. But she thinks many of the questions she's asked could be answered by parents. While not advocating a "buddy relationship," she believes deep friendship is very important between parent and child.

"Listen with understanding and be aware of what your child is feeling," is her advice to parents.

Inequality Damaging

Let Father Do Some Mothering

by ALISON GODDARD

New York — If men had greater equality at home and women had greater equality in the outside world, both would be better off and so would their children.

This is the viewpoint of Jean Baker Miller, M.D., assistant professor of psychiatry at the Albert Einstein Medical School here.

"Men haven't taken the responsibility for what goes on in the family in a really deep way," Dr. Miller observes. They've been out in the "hard, cruel world" all day and think they should be left alone when they get home in the evening. "They feel they've already done their bit," she adds, "by bringing in the money."

Ideally, the psychiatrist declares, the men "should be struggling for a more equal role in the family although such involvement is no fun in many cases."

DR. MILLER suggests that the wife meanwhile concentrate more on her own personal development.

"Women have viewed themselves as people who are neither as important nor as valuable as men," she notes. "They never believed they could directly achieve a sense of their own worth and so tried to achieve it vicariously through their husbands and children."

By concentrating all their drives and abilities on the family, the doctor points out, women established a certain leverage against their husbands. They could say: See how little you do around the house. See how much more attention I pay to the children. See how much better I am. This led to a number of psychological problems for them and particularly for their children, the psychiatrist declares.

THE INEQUALITY between the sexes, Dr. Miller contends, is generally damaging to both. "It divides and distances men and women," she says. "It isolates them. They don't express themselves much with one another."

Much of this has recently been brought out into the open by the women's liberation movement, the psychiatrist notes.

Before that, women feared they'd "make trouble" in their families or in their jobs if they aspired toward equality.

The new order "if it is to be," Jean Baker Miller asserts, will demand a number of adjustments by men. "They may now view women's aspirations as hostile and threatening," but these, she believes, "should not be harmful in the long run."

ACCORDING TO Dr. Miller, the ideal society should enable each parent to work part-time if he wishes to — perhaps five or six hours a day — and then share the family responsibilities more equally.

For women who have raised their families in the traditional way, "it's not easy for them to achieve a sense of their own value," the doctor asserts. To do so, they need to leave the confines of the family and "get both into action and interaction." They must move out into the world, the doctor explains, and begin to develop new concepts of themselves.

As they do this, and as they also interact with others, their self-image can begin to change and their confidence to grow. "Many more mature women can achieve this than believe they can," Dr. Miller declares, "but it's a tough thing to go through."

Auto Racing Gains Favor As Family Recreation

When the kids begin to drive you crazy because they're bored, and you can't think of anything new and different for them to do, and you're bored too — maybe you should try packing the family off to the auto races.

According to Mrs. Jeanmarie Fagan, public relations representative of the L&M Cigarette Co. which sponsors a series of auto races, the sport is "an exciting adventure the whole family can enjoy."

In promoting the family angle of auto racing for L&M, Mrs. Fagan travels around the country explaining to the uninitiated what it's like to go to the races and how to prepare for the day.

She suggests dressing casually and taking a picnic — as well as a beach blanket, suntan lotion, radio — much as you would for a day at the beach, which is where some races are held (Daytona, Fla., for instance).

HER FOOD tips include packing plenty of soft drinks, using mustard instead of mayonnaise on sandwiches (Mayonnaise tends to spoil in warm weather), and not peeling the tomatoes until you are ready to eat.

Residents of the northwest suburbs will have two opportunities in the near future to acquaint themselves with racing. An exhibit of race cars and appearances by racing drivers will take place at the Woodfield Mall in Schaumburg July 23 from noon till 5 p.m.

This weekend, an L&M-sponsored race will be held at Road America track in Elkhart Lake, Wis.

L&M claims that auto racing has become the leading spectator sport in the U.S. Among the benefits of racing for the family, according to Mrs. Fagan, are these: it is outdoors, the whole family can go together, one can meet lots of friendly people, it's inexpensive, and it's interesting.

A nominal fee of $7.50 covers the cost of materials used during the course. All sessions are closely coordinated and family members are urged to attend with the diabetic at no extra cost.

Reservations for the series starting July 24 are required. They may be made by calling Alexian Brothers' dietary department at 437-5500, extension 480.

Classes For Diabetics, Parents

Beginning Monday, July 24, Alexian Brothers Medical Center in Elk Grove Village will offer a series of four outpatient classes for diabetics and parents of diabetics.

The classes are held Monday through Thursday evenings of the fourth week of alternate months. Groups meet in the pastors' dining room on the ground floor of the medical center's main building from 7 to 8:30 p.m.

Presented by staff members of the dietary department and the education center, the series includes information about medical aspects of diabetes, diabetes emergencies, the diabetic exchange system, food preparation and eating away from home. A review session with questions, answers and discussion is also held.

The series was developed under the guidance of the head dietitian in cooperation with the education center and a staff physician.

A nominal fee of $7.50 covers the cost of materials used during the course. All sessions are closely coordinated and family members are urged to attend with the diabetic at no extra cost.

Reservations for the series starting July 24 are required. They may be made by calling Alexian Brothers' dietary department at 437-5500, extension 480.

Well-Designed Room For Family Living

A well-designed room can be all things to all people.

This family of seven designed a multipurpose room to complement its formal living room, knowing that a second living area would be necessary.

The large 15x24 foot room is ideal for entertaining, as the floor-to-ceiling stone fireplace establishes an impressive focal point. An unusual folding screen shields the back porch and yard in the evening.

Easy maintenance was vital to the planning of this family room, since it would receive heavy use by children as well as adults. A handsome woodgrain paneling, Marlite's textured oak, was chosen for the walls to create a warm atmosphere.

This plastic-finished paneling, which actually has the look and feel of real wood, harmonizes well with the massive stone hearth. The paneling, which is washable and never requires refinishing, also was used behind the shelves of a large built-in bookcase to achieve a coordinated appearance.

MARLITE TEXTURED oak paneling comes in 16 inch by 8 foot planks, which can be installed quickly over solid backing because it has tongue-and-grooved edges. Concealed metal clips and a special adhesive are used to secure a strong bond. Matching moldings are available.

The book case provides a handy reference point for children doing their homework in the room. Sliding doors close off the room when the teens have their friends in while their parents use the living room.

Bright splashes of red in the furniture and accessories accent the woodgrain paneling. It's easy to move the furniture or portable pillow sets around the room so that groups can gather informally, perhaps for a fondue.

The proof of the pudding is in the living, and this family room lives up to its name.

The Potting Shed

by Mary B. Good

Inchworms have been a particular pest in the area this year.

I knew they would be so last fall when I took a walk through the Forest Preserve and heard an ugly crunch, crunch, crunch and saw literally thousands of the things dangling from the trees and devouring the leaves — like Sherman's March to the Sea.

There is an organic product that can help homeowners and municipal officials and nurserymen stop the invasion, and do it with complete safety to pets, birds, and friendly insects, as well as themselves.

THURICIDE GIVES inchworms the ulcers. It is a stomach-destructive bacterium, and the approach is biological warfare. This interesting avenue of science involves giving the bug the bug. Like humans, insects get sick with virus, protozoa, fungi and bacteria. Scientists are now isolating close to 2,000 diseases of insects to a point where highly skilled production methods can manufacture these diseases. In this day and age, harmful bugs haven't got much of a chance! (Thuricide is distributed by the George Ball Seed Co., West Chicago.)

How's your fern? A scientist in Slippery Rock, Pa., is doing research to discover the insect-resistant element in ferns. Think about it — have you ever seen a buggy fern? And did you ever notice that the ground cover of our conifer forests is largely fern? Maybe ferns do have a thing going with the trees. Hmmmm, sounds intriguing!

A few tips for summer: If grass stains are a problem, rubbing alcohol removes them from cotton and colorfast material. Follow with regular washing.

WHAT CAUSES perennials to rot out?

Too much moisture and poor drainage. Don't keep your portable plastic pools on the lawn for any length of time. If your pool is cumbersome, dig up the sod underneath before getting your water legs. Take it from one who has had the experience. The smell of suffocated, rotting grass is no rose garden, and the odor takes weeks to dissipate.

The home gardener can take a tip on storage of seeds from the pros, if he has valuable leftover seeds to keep until next planting season. Store in a sealed container in as low a temperature short of freezing as is available. (Got a spot in the frig?)

To protect apples and other garden goodies from birds the Animal Repellent Co. has an acrylic fiber which prevents the wild creature from reaping the harvest before you do. It's a lightweight, n.e.a.r.-invisible, spider-like covering, which animals will not penetrate, and available at most good nursery or garden supply centers. Or better yet, plant a few sour fruits. Then the birds will stick their noses up at the sweets. (They have a "sour tooth.")

Two Ceremonies In One Week

The last weeks of school were especially busy for Linda Marie Locke and David G. Whitaker. Not only were the two Northern Illinois University seniors involved in finals and graduation, but they were completing plans for their wedding which took place June 10, one week after graduation. Linda, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Martin Locke, former Des Plaines residents who have recently moved to Akron, Ohio, became David's bride in a 4:30 p.m., double ring ceremony at St. Stephen's Catholic Church, Des Plaines. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas M. Whitaker, Waukegan, Ill.

The bride chose a traditional imported silk organza over crystal peau de soie gown, with a trim of Chantilly lace and pearls around the high, fitted neckline, bishop sleeves and front hem of the A-line skirt. The dress also featured an Empire waist and detachable chapel-sweep train. Her tiered veil of imported English illusion was held by a Camelot cap of Chantilly lace. She carried a bouquet of white roses.

MISS JUDY JEAN Locke, sister of the bride from Akron, was maid of honor. Also attending the bride were Kathleen Kemmer, Glen Elynn, and Lesley Plummer, Des Plaines. The attendants wore yellow chiffon over taffeta gowns, with softly gathered skirts and lantern sleeves. Their gowns were trimmed with ribbon-threaded Venice lace. They carried bouquets of yellow daisies.

Michael Whitaker, brother of the groom from Boston, Mass., was best man. Ushers included Michael J. Sloan, Lombard, and Lewis Wilker, Niles.

A reception for 150 guests was held at Casa Royale, Des Plaines. The couple left for a week's honeymoon in Springfield and other downstate cities. They are making their home in Elk Grove Village.

Prior to attending NIU, Linda was a student at St. Patrick Academy, Des Plaines, and David, at Waukegan Township High School. Linda is employed as a supervisor of the increased leadership program with the Des Plaines Park District and will be teaching on the junior high level in Oswego, Ill. In the fall, David has received a graduate assistantship at NIU and will be working towards his master's degree in guidance and counseling.

The Home Line

by Dorothy Ritz

Dear Dorothy: I'm about to lose my cool. I've been smelling a certain odor and can't figure out where it's coming from. At first I thought it came from the painting we had done recently, but the odor seems to get stronger all the time. Can you suggest anything that I can do?

—Mrs. J.L.

Call in a pest control expert. Odors can be hard to track down. In warm weather, an animal spot might suddenly turn up in the carpeting. Sometimes it can be new draperies because the finishing process emanates a slight odor. And sometimes it is mildew where moisture has collected. Some have even had the unfortunate experience of a squirrel or other animal falling behind a wall or stuck in the chimney of a fireplace or pipe. At times like this, the best resource is a professional with a lot of experience in this line.

Dear Dorothy: My easy way for grating lemon or orange peel is to freeze clean, thick orange and lemon peel in sandwich bags so there is always a supply when needed. Frozen peel grates easily.

Mrs. Ora Jones

Dear Dorothy: Have you ever included in your column the admonition that one shouldn't mix chlorine bleach with ammonia? Such an action could release chlorine gas which is very dangerous, as you know.

—Martha Turner.

Umpteen times — but not often enough if it brings it to the attention of someone who didn't know. Even more dangerous is to mix chlorine bleach with toilet bowl cleaner.

Dear Dorothy: I think the reason Mrs. H.R.'s bath towels are not absorbent is because she is using fabric softener.

—L.G.

You may be right. Constant use of fabric softener could do that. Some young mothers report they skip the fabric softener about every fifth load of diapers for this reason.

(Mrs. Ritz welcomes questions and hints. If a personal reply is required, please enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope. Write to Dorothy Ritz in care of Suburban Living, Paddock Publications, Box 280, Arlington Heights, Ill. 60006.)

Police Testimony Begins In Edward Hanrahan Trial

by ROGER CAPETTINI

Four Chicago policemen testified at the trial of State's Atty. Edward V. Hanrahan and his 13 co-defendants yesterday as the special prosecution team opened the trial by attempting to connect the raiding party with an arsenal of weapons.

Hanrahan; Richard Jalovec, one of his assistant state's attorneys; and 12 Chicago policemen are charged with conspiring to obstruct justice stemming from a pre-dawn raid on a Black Panther apartment Dec. 4, 1969. Panthers Fred Hampton and Mark Clark were killed during the raid.

The testimony offered by the four policemen during an all-day session in the hot, crowded, noisy courtroom provided little new information about the raid, but was used by the prosecution to establish the weapons were the same ones used during the raid. On a stand in front of Judge Philip Romiti's bench were a submachine gun, five shotguns, three revolvers and one carbine.

CHICAGO POLICE Lt. John C. Delaney, administrative assistant to the chief investigator of the state's attorney office at the time of the raid, said he issued the submachine gun and three shotguns to three of the defendants.

Delaney said Jalovec and Sgt. Daniel Groth of the state's attorneys police first asked for the weapons the day prior to the raid but Delaney refused to issue them. He said he did not give them the weapons because he was not certain the men in Sgt. Groth's unit were qualified to handle the weapons.

The lieutenant said later in the day that three policemen in a second unit at the office requested the weapons and he issued them, because he knew they were qualified.

Delaney identified the trio as defendants Joseph Gorman, Raymond Broderick, and William Corbett.

Delaney said along with the weapons he issued 110 rounds of .45 caliber ammunition for the machine gun to Gorman and 40 rounds of 12-gauge shotgun ammunition. He said the policemen told him they needed the weapons because they were going on a raid in search of illegal firearms.

Delaney said the next day 58 rounds of the machine gun ammunition was returned to him.

The lieutenant said the weapons were later sent to the Chicago police crime lab and to the Federal Bureau of Investigation in Washington, D. C. and both times were returned to him.

Earlier, the first witness called by special prosecutor Ellis Reid, Sgt. Mitchell Kretch, also assigned to the state's attorneys police, said he has had custody of the weapons since they were turned over to him by Delaney.

Of the 10 weapons, Kretch said, six of them were not the property of the state's attorneys office. He said he has memoranda indicating who owns the weapons, but under cross examination admitted he has no personal knowledge of that ownership.

The other two witnesses yesterday were patrolmen assigned to squadrol duty the day the raid took place at 2337 W. Monroe St.

Patrolman John Maxwell said he was sent to the address at 4:55 a.m. and arrived 10 minutes later. Maxwell said he was ordered to carry out an unidentified man on a stretcher and take the man to the Cook County Hospital.

Patrolman said the man was pronounced dead on arrival. He said he later learned the man was Fred Hampton. Patrolman Charles Strum, also on squadrol duty, said when he arrived at the Panther apartment he saw a man lying face down near the front door. He said he also saw a number of firearms and ammunition scattered about the room.

Strum said the man, who he later determined was Mark Clark, was also pronounced dead on arrival at the hospital.

The trial was recessed for the day shortly before 4 p.m. and is scheduled to resume today at 9:30 a.m. More than 150 witnesses are expected to be called before the trial is ended.

City Picnic Set For Saturday

More than 250 city employees and their families are expected to attend the annual city picnic Saturday at Northwestern Woods, east of downtown Des Plaines, according to City Clerk Eleanor Rohrbach.

Special activities including baseball are being planned. Outdoor grills for barbecues will be provided but no city funds will be expended for the picnic, she said.

As one of her special activities, Mrs. Rohrbach and Ald. Louis Czubakowski

(5th) will canoe down the Des Plaines River to the picnic area, as a way of examining both the beauty of the river and the ravages of pollution, according to the city clerk.

The boat trip is being arranged by the city's new environmental officer Philip Lindahl.

"I just hope we don't become part of the pollution ourselves," Mrs. Rohrbach said, after noting her only boating experience has been in a rowboat at Lake Okeoka, Howard and Lee streets, Des Plaines.

We just can't keep a secret. Especially when we have something to tell that's new and exciting.

We have hired a leading, nationally-known architect to design the most dramatic, livable and interesting homes ever built in the Chicago area. Reservations now being accepted.

They are real designer homes with sunken living rooms, cathedral ceilings, lots of glass, balconies and loft/dens. Houses that are not cramped, little rooms lined up under one roof, but rather houses that really lift the spirit, with spaces that soar upward and right through the house to spacious outdoor living areas.

Homes are priced from the low forties.

These new home designs will be featured in The Timbers of Old Mill Grove, the newest section of our successful community in the Northwest Suburbs.

Leaders Tumble; Mid-Teen NL Race Tightens

It was a day for upsets Tuesday in the National Division of the Mid-Teen League of Des Moines.

The unexpected occurred in both games, leaving an overall difference of just one game in second-half divisional play.

Kunkel Realty finally lost for the first time all season after 10 straight victories, 3-1 to First National Bank, and Elks Club — which like Kunkel had been 8-0 in the first half — dropped only its second game, 3-2 against Sellergren.

Kunkel and First National now have 2-1 records, while Elks and Sellergren are each 1-2, in second-half National play. The Bank team had been 3-4 and Sellergren 3-5 in the first half, but both are obviously improving.

Behind the pitching of Mark Ackerman, First National made three first-inning runs stand up. Ackerman did not walk a batter all evening while striking out four and allowing four hits. Fred Campobasso also pitched a fine game in defeat with a three-hitter.

The only rally the winners needed started when Frank Vala walked. Bill Carl then singled and Ackerman won his own game by belting a triple to bring in both runners. He also scored on an error. Kunkel managed only to end Ackerman's shutout bid in the fifth inning when Campobasso reached on an error, stole two bases and scored on a wild pitch.

Sellergren came from behind for a thrilling 3-2 triumph in the evening's other surprise. Again, both pitchers turned in impressive distance jobs. The winner was Chris Bouchee with six strikeouts, three walks and five hits yielded. Rick Wolfgram took a tough loss with a three-hitter, six strikeouts and six walks.

Elks scored its only two runs in the first inning when Bill Heyse doubled, Wolfgram stroked a sacrifice fly and Ken Schroeder walloped a home run.

Sellergren pulled even in the third on a walk to Chuck Provanzano, error, triple by Jeff Liggett, walk and stolen base by Roger Blumer, intentional pass to Bouchee, and Rich Carlson's single. Blumer was thrown out at the plate for the third out trying to score the go-ahead run on the last hit.

But Sellergren pushed across that winning run anyway in the fifth. Liggett again did the main damage with a double, went to third on a passed ball and scored on another errant pitch.

The game was halted after six innings because of darkness, depriving Elks of its last chance.

The league will stay busy with four more inner-division clashes this week. This evening (Thursday) will be the second of three big clashes between the unbeaten first-half powers, Kunkel and Elks. On Friday Sellergren plays First National and two American League games will be Sunday — Bantam vs. Allen's and Optimists vs. Johnson Sports.

Illinois Race Tracks Buckling Down

SPRINGFIELD (UPI) — Illinois racetracks are going to have to get along without the money produced by perfectas, quincellas, trifectas and other forms of "gimmick" betting but may get a second daily double to help make up for the loss in revenue.

The Illinois Racing Board took up the issue of betting Tuesday and reaffirmed an earlier decision to ban the gimmicks, including the quincella, where the bettor must pick the first two horses to finish the race; the perfecta, where he must choose the first two horses in their exact order of finish; and other, similar forms.

None of those betting pools, the board said, will be allowed after July 21.

The reason for the board's decision is that it is virtually impossible for the track to provide up-to-the-minute odds on such betting pools. That allows an unscrupulous owner, trainer, jockey or bettor to wager large sums of money on a fixed race without it being known to the betting public.

In straight wagering, track tote boards show continuously changing odds, reflecting the amount of money bet on each horse to win, place or show.

Board Chairman Alexander MacArthur cited several instances where he said the "blind" gimmick pools were used by racing personnel to win large profits on fixed races.

Two Ride State Title Trails

Rich Vehe and Steve Pederson, a couple of local bicycle enthusiasts out of Mt. Prospect and Prospect Heights, respectively, competed for the Lake Shore Wheelmen of Chicago over the weekend and dominated the Illinois State Bicycle Track Championships at Meadowhill Bicycle Track in Northbrook.

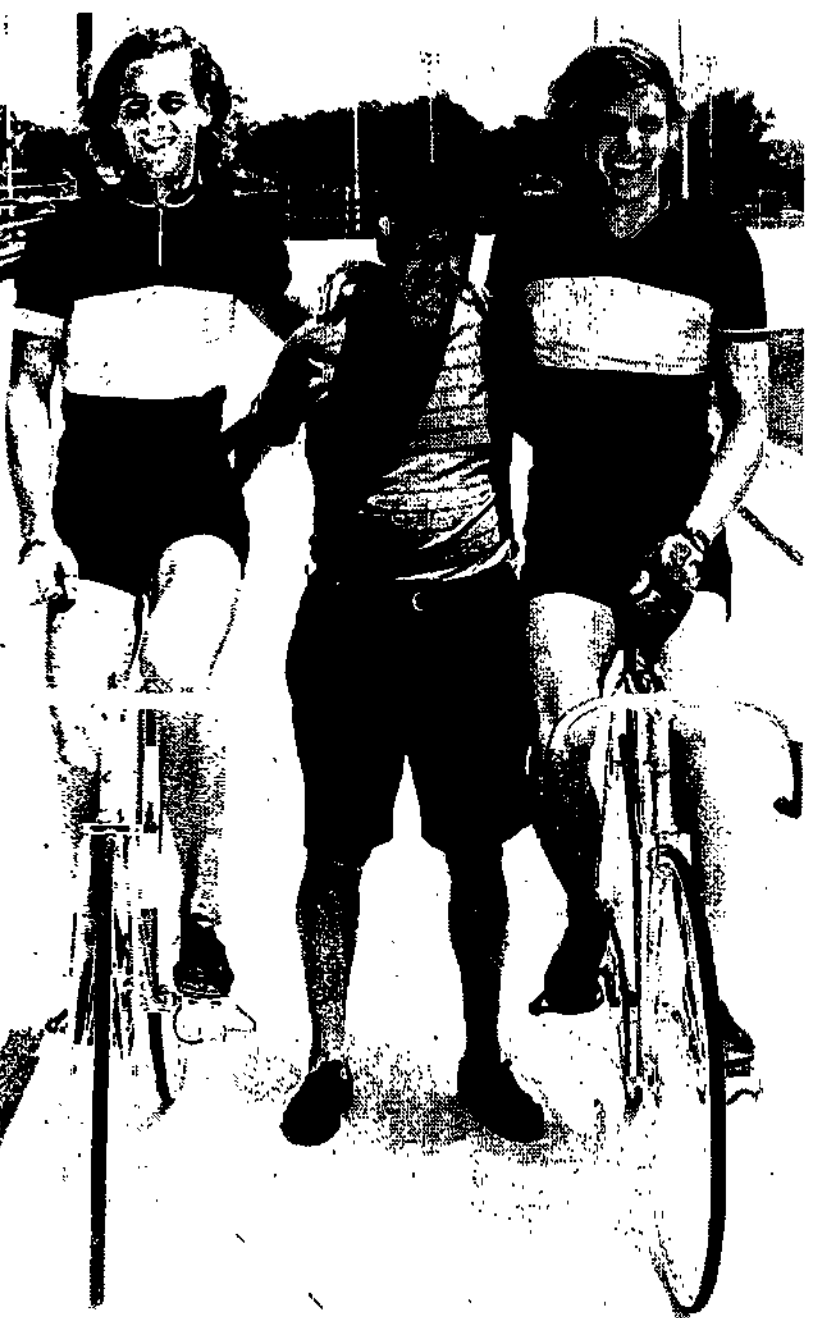

Each area star swept his division convincingly. Pederson blistered the track in each of the Junior Men's half-mile, one-mile, two-mile and five-mile competitions — out-pointing his nearest competitor, Henry Heirbaut of Chicago, by a whopping 28-14 margin in the overall championship point totals.

Vehe was equally impressive in land-sliding the 1,000 meter match sprints, the 4,000 meter individual pursuit, the 1,000 meter time trials and the 10-mile pack style final.

In capturing seven points per race, Vehe also buried runnerup Jim Rossi of the Windy City Wheelmen, 28-15. Vehe is only the second senior to ever win all four senior events.

Rossi, the senior men's runnerup, was six times National Champion and former member of the U. S. Olympic Team and Pan American Teams. He returned to racing this year after a three-year layoff.

The Lake Shore Wheelmen of Chicago won all championships except the senior women's circuit.

FV Sweeps Twin-Bill

Forest View enjoyed the home field advantage Tuesday against visiting Fenton. Seemingly to respond to the familiar territory, Falcon batters pounded the visitors into submission twice in Northwest Suburban League play, 5-1 and 8-1.

Rick Haaning had things under control over the first six innings to allow Coach Tom Seidel to use Jeff Kurz to get in some throwing time in the last frame.

The same thing happened in the nightcap as Bob Richter showed his stuff against the Bisons and Kurz finished up again.

cycle Track Championships at Northbrook last weekend. Pederson and Vehe both convincingly swept their divisions.

Good Rookies

CHICAGO (UPI) — The no-hit, no-run game authorized by Cubs' rookie Burt Hooten against the Phillies in the second game of the 1972 season was the first by a rookie in the National League since 1912. Coincidentally, it was the Phillies who were handcuffed then, too, by Charles Jeff Tseuau of the Giants.

Hockey Owner Kaiser Eyes Northwest Suburbs

'Supermarket Sports' In The Making?

by DOUG RAY

There he sat in a makeshift house trailer on the Zayre parking lot in Palatine, the man who holds the purse strings of Chicago's newest professional hockey franchise — the Chicago Cougars of the World Hockey Association (WHA).

Between sips of coffee from a styrofoam cup, financier Jordan H. Kaiser talked about his newly developed interest in hockey as well as his perennial love of tennis, which may be dearer to his heart if not his pocketbook.

"Tennis is in its infancy," he said. "The game is losing some sort of white-glove, country club image," helping it to gain acceptance by a broader public.

The 49-year-old former engineer is banking on the upsurge of the sport. Already under construction on Northwest Highway across from Arlington Park Race Track is the Kaiser-owned Arlington Indoor Tennis Club, with other similar projects for the Chicago area and throughout the state on the drawing board.

"TELEVISION HAS made the sport ... you can see professional and amateurs now, and families are beginning to play the game as a group year round," he added.

Kaiser has what he calls a "super-market of sports" under consideration in the suburbs to allow persons to participate in several sporting events in the same building. The Arlington Indoor Tennis Club and its related roller rink and ice rink is the pilot endeavor. All the facilities will be under a single roof.

"It's like a car dealer," he said, where if you want to buy a car the dealers are on the same street. You have the convenience of parking and shopping in the same general area.

The Arlington Indoor Tennis Club courts will be air conditioned for year-round use.

"When people learn about a sport, they want to participate all the time," he said.

The avid interest in sports led Kaiser into the financial deal which made him the principal owner of the Chicago Cougars hockey team. The team will play its first games at the Amphitheater in Chicago this fall under a two-year lease.

"I didn't know too much about hockey," the Glencoe resident admits. "But this Chicago franchise is the key to the new league." He said the team nearly moved to San Francisco until he provided stable financing to the franchise. "WE'RE INTO the new league for the long haul," he continued. He called the finances of the team's owners "unlimited."

Several years ago Kaiser held interests in bowling alleys in Chicago, but sold out when he felt the game was losing its following. He then began to construct apartment buildings in the suburbs, as well as shopping centers in Palatine and Rolling Meadows.

The Zayre parking lot and discount store is owned by Kaiser. His firm constructed the shopping center south of Kirchoff Road in downtown Rolling Meadows.

His endeavor into tennis courts and related sports under the same roof is appropriately named Sports Centers International, and "the purpose is to provide a total sports package," he said.

AND IF THE total sports package becomes a reality, local residents may look forward to a hockey stadium for Kaiser's Cougars somewhere in the Northwest suburbs. He owns various parcels of land here.

But just north of the trailer from which Kaiser spoke, there is a vacant lot which he owns, a lot large enough for a giant hockey arena.

He gestured toward the open land, but said nothing was definite. "We're interested in the Northwest suburbs and that's all there is to say now."

Social Security and You

Q—I AM 65 and have doctor bill insurance under Medicare. So far this year I've had medical expenses of $37. When should I send in my claim to get my money back?

A—Since the first $50 of medical expense in a year is not reimbursable, the Social Security Administration normally asks a patient to wait until this deductible is met before submitting a claim. But, if there is a reason to submit the bills earlier, they can be sent in at any time. As an example, sometimes it is necessary to submit a bill to Medicare for payment before a private insurance company will make their payment.
